[115] Zobrest is another example of conservative judicial activism because the Court did not need to reach the Establishment Clause issue at all. As an alternative to the Establishment Clause rationale, the State argued that the federal law at issue, the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), 20 U.S.C. § 1400 et seq., did not even require it to provide an interpreter at any private school if special education services were available at the local public school. If true, this contention would have eliminated the Establishment Clause problem. Although the State had neglected to raise this argument in the lower courts, the Supreme Court could have adhered to the general rule against deciding constitutional issues except where absolutely necessary by remanding the case for a determination of the statutory question. Instead, the Court reached out to decide a constitutional question that could have been avoided entirely. Existing federal precedent uniformly holds that the IDEA does not requires a state to provide an interpreter under such circumstances. See K.R. v. Anderson Community Sch. Corp., 81 F.3d 673 (7th Cir. 1996); Goodall v. Stafford County Sch. Bd., 930 F.2d 363 (4th Cir.), cert. denied, 112 S. Ct. 188 (1991); McNair v. Cardimone, 676 F. Supp. 1361 (S.D. Ohio 1987), aff'd on other grounds, 872 F.2d 153 (6th Cir. 1989); Work v. McKenzie, 661 F. Supp. 225 (D.D.C. 1987). Justice O'Connor criticized the majority for reaching the constitutional issue and refused to reach it herself. 113 S. Ct. at 2475 (O'Connor, J. dissenting).
[116]The Court's reliance on "private" choice ignores the fact that such "choice" is made possible only through public financial assistance provided by the government and so is not truly private.

Most likely, later today, we are going to be staffing a Presidential emergency designation for $5 Billion in grants to compensate air carriers for direct losses resulting from the September 11, 2001 attacks, specifically,, from the order by the Secretary of Transportation to ground all aircraft immediately. We also will most likely be staffing a Presidential Delegation of Authority delegating the authority to administer the funds to the Secretary of Transportation. Please be looking for these or have someone on your staff looking for them. We would appreciate an immediate response to both. Thanks.

Joseph R. Biden, Jr.

UNITED STATES SENATOR - DELAWARE

http://www.senate.gov/~biden

FOR RELEASE: September 25, 2001 CONTACT: Norm Kurz, 202-224-8895

Biden Urges New Tools For Law Enforcement, Stresses Practical Measure to Combat Bioterrorism Threat

Emphasizing the importance of the threat of bioterrorism and our need to take practical measures to combat such concerns, U.S. Senator Joseph R. Biden, Jr. today indicated his support for strengthening counter-terrorism measures to enhance the safety and national security interests of the nation.

"The September 11 attacks have focused our collective minds and energies on the need to take steps to prevent such atrocities from ever occurring again," Biden said. "I'm pleased the President has submitted proposed legislation to enact many of the needed measures I first offered in the 1995 terrorism bill, though I think we ought to consider some further steps as well. We've also got to get ahead of the curve on taking practical steps to reduce the risk of biological weapons."

Quoting from a letter he received in his capacity as Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Biden shared the views of Nobel Laureate and noted expert on infectious diseases Dr. Joshua Lederberg, who wrote that biological warfare constitutes a serious and complex threat to national security because it is available even to "rank amateurs."

Dr. Lederberg said at least a dozen countries are thought to be developing biological weapons. "In the current world where major states sustain some equilibrium through mutual deterrence," he wrote, biological warfare "offers opportunity for grave harm on the part of lesser actors," making it "probably the most perplexing and gravest security challenge we face." Lederberg's letter was entered into the record during a Foreign Relations Committee hearing Biden chaired September 5 on the Homeland Threat and Biological Weapons.

Following today's Judiciary Committee hearing with Attorney General John Aschroft, Biden spoke of his backing for the Administration's efforts to enact a terrorism bill while pointing out measures he has long supported and that ought to be included to strengthen the legislation.

In 1995, Biden authored the Omnibus Counter-Terrorism Bill that would have enabled law enforcement to pursue leads pursuant to credible terrorist threats.

"My standard has long been 'what's good for the mafia is good for the terrorists'," Biden said. "There is no sensible reason why we should treat terrorists more leniently. It's been obvious to me for many years that we need to give law enforcement authorities investigating and prosecuting international terrorists the same tools they have to fight drug kingpins and organized crime."

The President's bill, like the Biden proposal several years ago, would extend current wiretap authority to include terrorist crimes, thereby giving law enforcement the same tools to pursue terrorists they have long had in narcotics and racketeering cases. However, two other Biden proposals have not been included in the Administration's bill.

"I think most Americans would agree an identical standard should apply to terrorists and the mob. We should provide emergency 48 hour wiretap authority without prior judicial authorization," Biden said. "This is exactly what law enforcement can do today in cases involving organized crime, so long as the court makes an after-the-fact determination that there was probable cause to get the emergency wiretap in the first place.

"I also think the 'good faith' standard the Supreme Court has long recognized in the criminal law field should be applied to wiretaps," Biden added. Terrorists and other criminals should not go free when the police make an honest mistake, if they were otherwise acting reasonably and in 'good faith.' The Court already has held that this sensible policy is constitutional.

"Finally, we need to use roving wiretaps to follow a suspect anywhere and everywhere rather than just on a telephone," Biden argued. I strongly supported this tool in 1995 and am pleased Congress has since enacted into law a roving wiretap provision. However, while law enforcement gained the right to use this technique in 1998, cops continue to be hobbled by a higher burden than that required to obtain a 'bug.' This disparity should be corrected. "

Biden also indicated his concern regarding two potential provisions - concerning the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA) and measures relating to immigration - included in the Administration's terrorism bill.

"I agree the fight against international terrorism requires us to rethink whether the high wall we've erected separating the intelligence and law enforcement communities should be lowered," Biden said. "But historically we've been well-served by the bright line that divides our cops and spies. I have real concerns about ensuring that whatever we do in his area strikes the right balance between fighting terrorism and maintaining our civil liberties. There are genuine constitutional questions we must review.

"Similarly, tightening restrictions on non-citizens is one thing, but efforts to expand detentions should not cross the line and violate the rights of due process," Biden argued. "Legitimate and justified detentions, on a limited basis, will gain the approval of Americans. But law enforcement officials have the responsibility to act quickly to charge suspects with a crime, deport them, or release them.

"And all us must be vigilant in guarding the rights of fellow Americans who are in danger of discrimination on the basis of their name or skin color. Especially in a time of crisis, we cannot jettison our fundamental values and beliefs," Biden concluded.

As to those who are getting a little soft on me (Rachel), this is tough business, so I vote that we identify those who need some mild "encouragement," as the State Dept might phrase it. In that vein, there has been a secret motion to add one "H. Christopher Bartolomucci" to the bill.

I tried general regulations. A bill of attainder appears necessary after today's outcry and allegations of sandbagging. Please vote if you so desire on the following bill: "Absent emergency or peculiar circumstances, Courtney S. Elwood is hereby prohibited from entering the second floor West Wing Counsel's Office before 8:13:50 each morning."

Attached is a copy of our sec.-by-sec. status document from our Leahy discussions.

We are exchanging language on a number of these sections. If we can reach agreement on the definition of the federal crime of terrorism (which we will), a number of these provisions will fall in the "agreed to/settled" category.

I met with Bruce Cohen late today, and based on that meeting, I believe we're on track with positive negotiations with Hatch and Leahy. We agreed to:

Meet again on Friday at 11:00. (they will all be out for the Jewish holiday tomorrow). Prior to that meeting we will provide them with any language or feedback that we owe them. We will also be prepared on Friday to provide some more detailed feedback on some provisions that they have in their bill. We would hope to have the framework of a consensus package defined by Monday of next week. We will focus on Friday and Saturday on reaching some agreement on some of the most controversial provisions (FISA-related, mostly).

Bruce does not believe that we can reach the VP's deadline of next Friday (and neither to our Republicans), but he does believe that we can get it done by the end of the next week. He's for cutting a deal and taking it straight to leadership. He believes we'll need the rest of next week to finalize language and do all the vetting of other committee members (which we've already started on our end.)

In the meantime:

We will continue our parallel discussions with Feinstein, Schumer and Biden's staff (keeps positive pressure on Leahy and they can agitate with Daschle to keep pressure on Leahy)
We are also continuing, w/DoJ leg affairs and Senate Repub. Leadership, to run the traps on any Members who have particular concerns with specific provisions

Quick request/questions:

Nick, can you please send out an email to all Asst. Secs. tomorrow morning, informing them that they do not have authorization to be lobbying for the inclusion of their particular pet provisions on the anti-terrorism bill. As you know, many Departments have now moved ahead with sending their own mini terrorism packages up to the Hill, or are getting ready to do so, and these bills are majorly complicating this negotiation process (State, Treas, Interior, DoJ, all of them have a laundry list of stuff that didn't make it into the admin anti-terrorism package, and now they are "workin' it" up there.)

We can play this process out with Leahy and I believe we can get a bill out of this process that gets us 70-80% of what we want, but it will take longer (according to Bruce's calendar, 2 weeks --- and this schedule surely will only hold with significant pressure brought to bear on Leahy though our press operation, Daschle and other supportive law enforcement Dems). Does a longer time table trouble you? If so, we need to apply some major pressure on the Leadership. I'm not sure that gets us anywhere right now, but I wanted to let you know that the timetable looks longer than we had desired.

Can the Radio Address this weekend be on this issue? This would be VERY helpful!!!

Office of the Attorney General
Washington, D.C. 20530

MEMORANDUM FOR HEADS OF ALL FEDERAL DEPARTMENTS AND AGENCIES

FROM: John Ashcroft
Attorney General

SUBJECT: The Freedom of Information Act

As you know, the Department of Justice and this Administration are committed to full compliance with the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), 5 U.S.C. § 552 (2000). It is only through a well-informed citizenry that the leaders of our nation remain accountable to the governed and the American people can be assured that neither fraud nor government waste is concealed.

The Department of Justice and this Administration are equally committed to protecting other fundamental values that are held by our society. Among them are safeguarding our national security, enhancing the effectiveness of our law enforcement agencies, protecting sensitive business information and, not least, preserving personal privacy.

Our citizens have a strong interest as well in a government that is fully functional and efficient. Congress and the courts have long recognized that certain legal privileges ensure candid and complete agency deliberations without fear that they will be made public. Other privileges ensure that lawyers' deliberations and communications are kept private. No leader can operate effectively without confidential advice and counsel. Exemption 5 of the FOIA, 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(5), incorporates these privileges and the sound policies underlying them.

I encourage your agency to carefully consider the protection of all such values and interests when making disclosure determinations under the FOIA. Any discretionary decision by your agency to disclose information protected under the FOIA should be made only after full and deliberate consideration of the institutional, commercial, and personal privacy interests that could be implicated by disclosure of the information.

In making these decisions, you should consult with the Department of Justice's Office of Information and Privacy when significant FOIA policy issues arise, as well as with our Civil Division on FOIA litigation matters. When you carefully consider FOIA requests and decide to withhold records, in whole or in part, you can be assured that the Department of Justice will defend your decisions unless they lack a sound legal basis or present an unwarranted risk of adverse impact on the ability of other agencies to protect other important records.

This memorandum supersedes the Department of Justice's FOIA Memorandum of October 4, 1993, and it likewise creates no substantive or procedural right enforceable at law.

I am certain he would be excellent. I recommended that to DoJ first thing this morning, and I hope we can work it out.

How about Ted Olson? He knows the bill, supports it enthusiastically, and knows it to be constitutional from top to bottom. He's also got a unique perspective on September 11, 2001.

Subject: Judiciary Comm. hearing

The Constitution Subcommittee, chaired by Senator Feingold, announced last night that it will hold a hearing next Wednesday, October 3, at 10:00 am entitled "Protecting Constitutional Freedoms in the Face of Terrorism." They have given us as Ranking Member very few details yet, but we can expect the focus to be on the constitutional and privacy issues surrounding the Administration's legislation to fight terrorism.

For witnesses, I am contacting possible professors, such as John Manning.
Also,
we need to decide if we want to have someone other than a legal expert to appear, such as a victim or broader terrorism expert. If you have any suggestions for witnesses we should call to defend the Administration or other thoughts about the hearing, please contact me. Thanks.

I agree with you, John. Please note that, given COnyers blanket objection ot the DP, House Jud. will probably have to carve out death from these extensions of the conspiracy penalties.

Subject: New Death Penalties

All:

Yesterday I received via someone in OLA questions from Sampak Garg of the House Judiciary Committee staff. One of Garg's questions was "are there any new death penalties, in any sense of the word." I suppose that what he's getting at with that strange locution "in any sense of the word," is our provision that extends the same penalties for conspiracy and attempt as for the underlying offense, Section 303. Unless Section 303 provision is modified, the death penalty would be available, where it was not before, for the following offenses:

conspiracy to commit violence at international airports where that violence results in death (18 USC 37); conspiracy to maliciously destroy property used in interstate or foreign commerce by fire or explosive where it results in death (844(i)); conspiracy to murder an official of the United States (1114); and conspiracy to murder a national of the United States who is outside the United States (if first-degree) (2332).

We might want to get someone to double-check my work, but I believe that for all the other offenses in our list that had the death penalty, provision was already made for the death penalty for attempt or conspiracy.

We can wait until Monday to get them if you need the extra time. The meeting with POTUS can be as early as Wednesday, so we may need to turn the book in by COB Monday. Today's deadline was set when we thought the POTUS meeting was going to be Monday.

STATEMENT BY THE HONORABLE LEO MACKAY, JR.
DEPUTY SECRETARY
DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS

BEFORE THE
SUBCOMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT EFFICIENCY, FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT, AND INTERGOVERNMENTAL RELATIONS COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT REFORM
U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

October 10, 2001

INTRODUCTION

Mr. Chairman, and members of the Subcommittee, it is my pleasure to testify on behalf of the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) concerning our implementation of the Debt Collection Improvement Act (DCIA) of 1996.

The VA Chief Financial Officer's (CFO) staff has worked with VA's three administrations—the Veterans Benefits Administration (VBA), Veterans Health Administration (VHA), and National Cemetery Administration (NCA), as well as other VA elements to take the steps necessary to ensure our compliance with the requirements of the DCIA. VA personnel continue to work closely with Department of the Treasury's Financial Management Service (FMS) to implement the provisions of the DCIA.

In our previous appearance before this Subcommittee on June 8, 2000, we testified that VA was making progress in referring eligible debt to the Treasury Offset Program (TOP) and for cross-servicing. I am delighted to inform you today that VA will meet its goal of referring over 90% of eligible debt to TOP and the cross-servicing program by the end of this fiscal year.

SUMMARY OF VA DEBT COLLECTION STATUS

VA has made extensive efforts to reduce the establishment of debts and to collect those that have been established. At the end of FY 1996, the year in which the DCIA was enacted, VA had $4.2 billion in total receivables, with $2.4 billion delinquent. As of September 30, 2000, VA had $3.8 billion in total receivables, with $1.4 billion delinquent.

Of the $1.4 billion in delinquent debt at the end of FY 2000, $341.3 million was attributable to Direct Home Loan mortgages held by VA; $328 million to Compensation & Pension overpayments, $139.5 million to defaulted guaranteed home loans, $46.7 million to Readjustment benefit (Education benefit) overpayments, and $545.4 million to charges for the provision of medical care and services. The bulk of the last-mentioned amount, owed to VA's Medical Care Collection Fund, is comprised of claims filed with third-party health insurers and represents the gross amounts billed. These "claims" are not referable to Treasury for cross-servicing or administrative offset because they are not sum-certain amounts owed. Rather, the existence and amount of such third-party liability, if any, for the charges billed is determined pursuant to an administrative process that frequently involves extensive negotiations and appeals. This process requires determinations concerning the health plan coverage applicable in the individual case, to include resolution of both medical and legal issues, comparable to the process performed by private sector health care providers.

IMPLEMENTATION OF ADMINISTRATIVE OFFSET REQUIREMENT

At the end of FY 2000, VA had $328.7 million in delinquent debt eligible for TOP referral, and referred $220.5 million, or 67%. By the end of the 3rd quarter of FY 2001, VA referred $324.7 million, or 93%, of the $349.3 million eligible for referral to TOP. VA began participation in TOP in 2000 and has collected $40 million overall, $24 million of which has been collected this year. VA also participated in the Tax Refund Offset Program beginning in 1987 and collected $335 million from 1987 through 1999. The Tax Refund Offset Program became part of the TOP program in 2000. In addition, VA has been performing inter-agency matches over the last 10 years in order to offset VA debts from the pay of Federal employees or annuity payments of Federal retirees. VA will participate in centralized salary offset once it is completely incorporated into TOP.

In February of 2001, the Veterans Health Administration (VHA) began referring debts, through the Debt Management Center (DMC), to TOP. The types of debt included in these referrals are 1st party medical debts, ex-employee debts, and vendor/contractor debts. Through August, VHA referred $93.5 million and collected $19.2 million through TOP.

IMPLEMENTATION OF CROSS-SERVICING REQUIREMENT

For the cross-servicing program, VA had $263.4 million in delinquent debt eligible for referral at the end of FY 2000, and referred $45.5 million, or 17%. By the end of the 3rd quarter of FY 2001, VA referred $230.8 million, or 87%, of the $266.7 million eligible for referral for cross-servicing. VA implemented cross-servicing in the 4th quarter of FY 2000 after working with Treasury for an extended period to resolve differences in automated processes needed to update each other's databases. At Treasury's request, VA referrals have been limited to groups of 5,000 accounts per submission. Treasury has collected $5 million as of August. Over 90% of eligible debt will be referred by the end of FY 2001.

The referral of our debts to Treasury for cross-servicing took longer than anticipated. However, while we worked with Treasury to resolve our systems differences, we continued to refer our debts to the Treasury Offset Program, and also used Federal Salary Offset. Both of these programs have been highly effective external sources of collection for VA debt.

VA and Treasury continue to explore the efficacy of referring VA's 1st party medical debts for cross-servicing. These debts resemble a "revolving credit" account in that debtors incur additional charges on a periodic basis as medical services are provided. The nature of these debts makes the cross-servicing process especially problematic and expensive. Since such referral does not now appear to be cost effective, it must be determined whether VA should incur the expense of developing the automated processes necessary to refer all eligible 1st party debt. We should mention that VA executed a pilot project with Treasury in which we referred $1.1 million of VA's first party medical debts. However, Treasury has only collected approximately 1% of this amount. Treasury continues to review the results of this pilot project. A final determination on whether to refer 1st party medical debts for cross-servicing should be reached in FY 2002.

The remaining $36 million of eligible debt at the end of the 3rd quarter of FY 2001 is made up of a few smaller benefit programs and miscellaneous VHA debt such as vendor debt, employee debt, and non-federal sharing agreement debt. We continue to work toward referring most of this remaining debt for cross-servicing during FY 2002.

OTHER DCIA REQUIREMENTS

VA is in the process of amending its regulations to comply with the revised Federal Claims Collection Standards (FCCS). The amended regulations proposed will include a new regulation to authorize VA's use of administrative wage garnishment, which allows garnishment, without prior judicial action, of up to 15% of any disposable pay of an indebted individual. We will use this new debt collection tool in conjunction with the Treasury cross-servicing program.

VA DEBT MANAGEMENT CENTER

VA has had an automated collection system in place since 1975. Since 1991, VA has operated the Debt Management Center (DMC) in St. Paul, Minnesota, which controls and maintains this automated collection system. The DMC utilizes every collection tool available to Federal agencies in an operation that emphasizes the collection of debt. It also remains a highly efficient and effective operation that executes all requirements of a cross-servicing center. The DMC has for many years used automated payment processing and collections systems; benefit and salary offset; credit bureau reporting and private collection agency referrals; compromises and litigation; write-offs; and referrals to Treasury's administrative offset and cross-servicing programs. Beginning in 1987, all eligible VA debt has been consolidated and referred for the Tax Refund Offset Program. DMC also began referring benefit debts in 1997 and facilitated the referral of first-party medical billings to Treasury in December 1998 using the format originally intended for the Tax Refund Offset Program.

This concludes my statement. I certainly appreciate the opportunity to discuss VA's progress in implementing the DCIA. I will be happy to answer any questions the Subcommittee may have.

Subject: Terrorist Org definition, Admin Sec. 201

Attached is a revised version of your 201. The immigration experts tell me that the DOJ proposal on the definition of terrorist organization appears overly vague and broad. The grounds on which the Secretary of State would designate groups outside of the section 219 process is undefined, and no limits to the definition of ?terrorist organization? are supplied. The proposal also appears to grant the Attorney General the power to order the Secretary of State to list a group as a terrorist organization without offering any criteria for such a designation.

The proposal attached is supported by House Republicans and Democrats and is included in the Sensenbrenner-Conyers legislation to be introduced today. It offers the Justice Department the flexibility to treat non-listed organizations as terrorist organizations but provides some outer boundary to that flexibility to prevent problems of overbreadth and vagueness. It also treats differently for purposes of the ?terrorist activity? definition the solicitation of funds, individuals, and acts affording material support depending on whether the aid is given to a group that has been certified under section 219. We agree that all such support should be treated as terrorist activity where the acts are made in relation to a certified organization, but believe that when applied to noncertified groups, only conduct in furtherance of terrorist activity should be included. This avoids notice problems. This language has also been agreed to by House Republicans and Democrats.

Finally, we revise the retroactivity clause along similar lines, also adopting language agreed to in the House. Our retroactivity clause makes the new definition in the bill fully retroactive as applied to people associated with section 219 organizations that were so listed at the time, but not to those associated with groups that were not at that time section 219 organizations, unless the conduct was in furtherance of terrorist activity. Let us know if this revision is acceptable so we can get closure on this. I have also pasted in the amendment below. Beryl
Alternative Language for Sec. 201:

Amend ?Engage in Terrorist Activity Defined? as follows:

(IV) to solicit funds or other things of value for ?

(a) a terrorist activity;

(b) an organization designated as a foreign terrorist organization under section
219; or

(c) a terrorist organization described in clause (v) (II), but only if the solicitor knows, or reasonably should know, that the solicitation would further
a terrorist activity;

(V) to solicit any individual?

(a) to engage in conduct otherwise described in this clause;

(b) for membership in a terrorist government;

(c) for membership in an organization designated as a foreign terrorist organization under section 219; or

(d) for membership in a terrorist organization described in clause (v) (II), but only if the solicitor knows, or reasonably should know, that the solicitation would further a terrorist activity; or

(VI) to commit an act that the actor knows, or reasonably should know, affords material support, including a safe house, transportation, communications, funds, transfer of funds or other material financial benefit, false documentation or identification, weapons (including chemical, biological, and radiological weapons), explosives, or training ?

(a) for the commission of a terrorist activity;

(b) to any individual who the actor knows, or reasonably should know, has committed or plans to commit a terrorist activity;

(c) to an organization designated as a foreign terrorist organization under section 219; or

(d) to a terrorist organization described in clause (v) (II), but only if the actor knows, or reasonably should know, that the act would further a terrorist activity.?

Replace ?Terrorist Organization Defined? section with the following:

(V) Terrorist Organization Defined

?As used in this subparagraph, the term ?terrorist organization? means?
(I) an organization designated as a foreign terrorist organization under section 219; or

(II) with regard to a group that is not an organization described in subclause
(I), a group of 2 or more individuals, whether organized or not, which engages in, or which has a sizable subgroup which engages in, the activities described in subclause (I), (II), or (III) of clause (iii).?

Add the following section in place of Section 204:

Retroactive Application of Amendments.--

(1) In General. ? The amendments made by this section shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act and shall apply to ?

(A) actions taken by an alien before such date, as well as actions taken on or after such date; and

(B) all aliens, without regard to the date of entry or attempted entry into the United States?

(i) in removal proceedings on or after such date (except for proceedings in which there has been a final administrative decision before such date); or

(ii) seeking admission to the United States on or after such date.

(2) Special Rule for Aliens in Exclusion or Deportation Proceedings. ?
Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the amendments made by this section shall apply to all aliens in exclusion or deportation proceedings on or after the date of the enactment of this Act (except for proceedings in which there has been a final administrative decision before such date) as if such proceedings were removal proceedings.

(3) Special Rule for Section 219 Organizations. ?

(A) In General. ? Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) and (2), no alien shall be considered inadmissible under section 212(a)(3) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(3)), or deportable under section 237(a)(4)(B) of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1227(a)(4)(B)), by reason of the amendments made by subsection (a), on the ground that the alien engaged in a terrorist activity

described in subclause (IV)(b), (V)(c), or (VI)(c) of section 212(a)(3)(B)(iii) of such Act (as so amended) with respect to a group at any time when the group was not a foreign terrorist organization designated by the Secretary of
under section 219 of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1189).

(B) Construction. ? Subparagraph (A) shall not be construed to prevent an alien from being considered inadmissible or deportable for having engaged in a terrorist activity ?

(i) described in subclause (IV)(b), (V)(c), or (VI)(c) of section 212(a)(3)(B)(iii) of such Act (as so amended) with respect to a foreign terrorist organization at any time when such organization was designated by the Secretary of State under section 219 of such Act; or

(ii) described in subclause (IV)(c), (V)(d), or (VI)(d) of section
212(a)(3)(B)(iii) of such Act (as so amended) with respect to any group described in any of such subclauses.

Additional Technical Changes required:

Brett,

Just got off the phone with Pat Philben, one of the Deputies in OLC, and he said he spoke with you this morning. He says told you he hopes to have the answers to your Aug. 15 request by the end of this week. The answers may affect what we do with implementation of Charitable Choice Act of 1996, CSBGA of 1998, and SAMHSA I and II of 2000. More immediately, the letter may affect H.R. 7 in the Senate.

All --

Here is a new draft of the Admin. bill and a blackline against an old draft. This was sent to Leahy staff a few minutes ago. Please note that it is a working draft, and we have not yet compared it to the draft from
Sen. Leahy that we received at 8 pm tonight.

SEC. 3. CONSTRUCTION; SEVERABILITY.

Any provision of this Act held to be invalid or unenforceable by its terms, or as applied to any person or circumstance, shall be construed so as to give it the maximum effect permitted by law, unless such holding shall be one of utter invalidity or unenforceability, in which event such provision shall be deemed severable from this Act and shall not affect the remainder thereof or the application of such provision to other persons not similarly situated or to other, dissimilar circumstances.

SEC. 4. SENSE OF CONGRESS CONDEMNING DISCRIMINATION AGAINST ARAB AND MUSLIM AMERICANS.

(a) FINDINGS.–Congress finds the following:

(1) Arab Americans, Muslim Americans, and Americans from South Asia play a vital role in our Nation and are entitled to nothing less than the full rights of every American.

(2) The acts of violence that have been taken against Arab and Muslim Americans since the September 11, 2001, attacks against the United States should be and are condemned by all Americans who value freedom.

(3) The concept of individual responsibility for wrongdoing is sacrosanct in American society, and applies equally to all religious, racial, and ethnic groups.

(4) When American citizens commit acts of violence against those who are, or are perceived to be, of Arab or Muslim descent, they should be punished to the full extent of the law.

(5) Muslim Americans have become so fearful of harassment that many Muslim women are changing the way they dress to avoid becoming targets.

(6) Many Arab Americans and Muslim Americans have acted heroically during the attacks on the United States, including Mohammed Salman Hamdani, a 23-year-old New Yorker of Pakistani descent, who is believed to have gone to the World Trade Center to offer rescue assistance and is now missing.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.-- It is the sense of Congress that--

(1) the civil rights and civil liberties of all Americans, including Arab Americans, Muslim Americans, and Americans from South Asia, must be protected, and that every effort must be taken to preserve their safety;

(2) any acts of violence or discrimination against any Americans be condemned; and

(3) the Nation is called upon to recognize the patriotism of fellow citizens from all ethnic, racial, and religious backgrounds.

TITLE II–IMMIGRATION

SEC. 201. DEFINITIONS RELATING TO TERRORISM.

The Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 is amended–

(a) in Section 212(a)(3) (8 U.S.C. 1182)--

(1) in paragraph (B) –

(A) in clause (i) –

(i) by amending paragraph (IV) to read as follows:

"(IV) is a representative (as defined in clause (iv)) of : (a) a terrorist organization as designated by the Secretary under section 219 or paragraph (v)(ii), or (b) a political, social or other similar group whose public endorsement of acts of terrorist activity the Secretary has determined undermines U.S. efforts to reduce or eliminate terrorist activities, or";

(ii) by amending paragraph (V) to read as follows:

"(V) is a member of a terrorist organization as designated by the Secretary under section 219 or paragraph (v)(ii) paragraph, which the alien knows or should have known is a terrorist organization, or" ; and

(iii) by adding new paragraphs (VI) and (VII) to read as follows:

"(VI) has used his or her position of prominence within any country to endorse or espouse terrorist activity, or persuade others to support terrorist activity or a foreign terrorist organization, in a way that the Secretary of State has determined undermines U.S. efforts to reduce or eliminate terrorist activities; or

(VII) (a) is the spouse or child of an alien who is inadmissible under this section, if the activity causing the alien to be found inadmissible occurred within the last 5 years,"

(B) Exceptions for certain spouses and children. Clause (VII)(a) shall not apply to a spouse or child :

(i) who did not know or should not reasonably have known of the activity causing the alien to be found inadmissible under this section; or
(ii) whom the consular officer or the Attorney General has reasonable grounds to believe has renounced the activity causing the alien to be found inadmissible under this section";

(B) in clause (ii)--

(i) by inserting "it had been" before "committed in the United States"; and

(ii) by replacing "or firearm" with ", firearm, or other weapon or dangerous device";

(C) by amending clause (iii) to read as follows:

"(iii) Engage in terrorist activity defined

"As used in this chapter, the term "engage in terrorist activity" means, in an individual capacity or as a member of an organization--

"(I) to commit or to incite to commit, under circumstances indicating an intention to cause death or serious bodily injury, an act of terrorist activity;

"(II) to prepare or plan a terrorist activity;

"(III) to gather information on potential targets for terrorist activity;

"(IV) to solicit funds or other things of value for terrorist activity or for any terrorist organization;

"(V) to solicit any individual for membership in a terrorist organization, a government that supports terrorism, or to engage in a terrorist activity; or

"(VI) otherwise to commit an act that the actor knows, or reasonably should know, affords material support (including, without limitation, a safe house, transportation, communications, funds, transfer of funds or other material financial benefit, false documentation or identification, weapons (including, without limitation, chemical, biological, and radiological weapons), explosives, or training), to any organization that the actor knows, or reasonably should know, is a terrorist organization, or to any individual whom the actor knows, or reasonably should know, has committed or plans to commit any terrorist activity.

"Provided, however, that this clause shall not apply to any material support the alien afforded to an organization or individual who has committed terrorist activity if the Secretary, after consultation with the Attorney General, or the Attorney General, after consultation with the Secretary, concludes in his sole unreviewable discretion, that this clause should not apply."; and

(D) by adding a new clause after clause (iv) to read as follows:

"(v) Terrorist organization defined

"As used in clause i(VI) and clause (iii), the term "terrorist organization" includes but is not limited to an organization—

(i) designated under Section 219; or

(ii) otherwise designated by the Secretary of State, in consultation with or upon the request of the Attorney General, as a terrorist organization for purposes of this section.

Any such designation shall be controlling in all administrative and judicial proceedings, including actions under 28 U.S.C. 2241, and shall be conclusive evidence that the organization is a terrorist organization. With respect to an alien who was present in the United States at the time the act was committed, such designation shall also be conclusive evidence that the alien should have known that the organization was a terrorist organization unless the alien demonstrates that he acted prior to the designation and that he should not have known that it was a terrorist organization. With respect to other aliens, such designation shall be conclusive evidence that the alien should have known that the organization was a terrorist organization unless the alien demonstrates that he acted prior to the enactment of this clause and that he should not have known that he was supporting terrorist activity. In determining whether an organization is a terrorist organization in cases where no designation has been made, it shall not be considered that the organization also engages in nonterrorist activity."; and

(2) by adding a new subparagraph (F) as follows:

"(F) Any alien who the Secretary of State, after consultation with the Attorney General, or the Attorney General, after consultation with the Secretary of State, determines has been associated with a terrorist organization and intends while in the United States to engage solely, principally, or incidentally in activities that could endanger the welfare, safety, or security of the United States is inadmissible.";

(b) in Section 219(a) (8 U.S.C. 1189(a))--

(A) in paragraph (1)(B), by inserting "or terrorism (as defined in section 140(d)(2) of the State Department Authorization Act, Public Law 100-204 (22 U.S.C. 2656f(d)(2)) or retains the capability and intent to engage in terrorist activity or terrorism)" after "212(a)(3)(B))";

(B) in paragraph (1)(C), by inserting "or terrorism" after "terrorist activity";

(C) by amending paragraph (2)(A) to read as follows:

"(A) NOTICE.—

"(i) Seven days before making a designation under this subsection, the Secretary shall, by classified communication, notify the Speaker and

Minority Leader of the House of Representatives, the President pro tempore, Majority Leader, and Minority Leader of the Senate, and the members of the relevant committees, in writing, of the intent to designate an organization under this subsection, together with the findings made under paragraph (1) with respect to that organization, and the factual basis therefor.

"(ii) The Secretary shall publish the designation in the Federal Register seven days after providing the notification under clause (i).";

(D) in paragraph (2)(B)(i), by replacing "subparagraph (A)" with "subparagraph (A)(ii)";

(E) in paragraph (2)(C), by replacing "paragraph (2)" with "paragraph (2)(A)(i)";

(F) in paragraph (3)(B), by replacing "subsection (c)" with "subsection (b)";

(G) in paragraph (4)(B), by inserting after the first sentence the following:

"The Secretary also may redesignate such organization at the end of any 2-year redesignation period (but not sooner than 60 days prior to the termination of such period) for an additional 2-year period upon a finding that the relevant circumstances described in paragraph (1) still exist. Any redesignation shall be effective immediately following the end of the prior 2-year designation or redesignation period unless a different effective date is provided in such redesignation.";

(H) in paragraph (6)(A),

(i) by inserting "or a redesignation made under paragraph (4)(B)" after "paragraph (1)";

(ii) in clause (i), by

(I) inserting "or redesignation" after "designation" the first time it appears; and

(II) striking "of the designation"; and

(iii) in clause (ii), by striking "of the designation";

(I) in paragraph (6)(B), by

(i) replacing "through (4)" with "and (3)"; and

(ii) inserting the following new sentence at the end:

"Any revocation shall take effect on the date specified in the revocation or upon publication in the Federal Register if no effective date is specified.";

(J) in paragraph (7), by inserting ", or the revocation of a redesignation under paragraph (6)," after "paragraph (5) or (6)"; and

(K) in paragraph (8), by

(i) replacing "paragraph (1)(B)" with "paragraph (2)(B), or if a redesignation under this subsection has become effective under paragraph (4)(B)";

(ii) inserting "or an alien in a removal proceeding" after "criminal action"; and

(iii) inserting "or redesignation" before "as a defense".

SEC. 204. APPLICABILITY.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the amendments made by this title shall apply to all aliens, regardless of whether any such aliens entered the United States before or after the date of the enactment of this Act, or whether any relevant activity by any such aliens occurred before or after such date, and shall apply to all past, pending, or future deportation, exclusion, removal, or other immigration proceedings.

SEC. 205. MULTILATERAL CO-OPERATION AGAINST TERRORISTS.

Section 222(f) of the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 is amended–

(A) by inserting ": (1)" after "except that"; and

(B) by inserting the following before the period at the end:

"and (2) the Secretary of State in his discretion and on the basis of reciprocity may provide to a foreign government information in the Department of State's computerized visa lookout database and, when necessary and appropriate, other records covered by this section related to information in the database:

(A) with regard to individual aliens, at any time on a case-by-case basis for the purpose of preventing, investigating or punishing, acts that would constitute a crime in the United States, including, but not limited to, terrorism or trafficking in controlled substances, persons or illicit weapons; or

(B) with regard to any or all aliens in the database, pursuant to such conditions as he shall establish in an agreement with another government in which that government agrees to use such information and records for the purposes described in paragraph (A) or to deny visas to persons who would be inadmissible to the United States.".

SEC. 206. INTER-AGENCY DATA SHARING.

(a) Section 105 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1105), is amended–

(1) in the caption by adding "and Data Exchange" after "Officers";

(2) by designating all of section 105 as subsection (a);

(3) in subsection (a) as so designated, by inserting the words "and border" after the word "internal" in the second place that it appears; and

(4) by adding new subsections (b), (c) and (d) as follows:

"(b) The Attorney General and the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation shall provide the Department of State and the Service with access to the criminal history record information contained in the National Crime Information Center's (NCIC) Interstate Identification Index (NCIC-III), Wanted Persons File, and to any other files maintained by the National Crime Information Center that may be mutually agreed upon by the Attorney General and the agency to be provided access for the purpose of determining whether a visa applicant or applicant for admission has a criminal history record indexed in any such file. Such access shall be provided by means of extracts of the records for placement in the automated visa lookout or other appropriate database, and shall be provided without any fee or charge. The Federal Bureau of Investigation shall provide periodic updates of the extracts at intervals mutually agreed upon. Upon receipt of such updated extracts, the reviewing agency shall make corresponding updates to its database and destroy previously provided extracts. Such access to any extract does not entitle the Department of State to obtain the full content of the corresponding automated criminal history record. To obtain the full content of a criminal history record, the Department of State shall submit the applicant's fingerprints and any appropriate fingerprint processing fee authorized by law to the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"(c) The provision of the extracts mentioned in subsection (b) may be reconsidered by the Attorney General and the receiving agency upon the development and deployment of a more cost-effective and efficient means of sharing the information.

"(d) For purposes of administering this Section, the Department of State shall, prior to receiving access to National Crime Information Center data, promulgate final regulations to establish the conditions for the use of the information received from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in order-

"(1) to limit the redissemination of such information;

"(2) to ensure that such information is used solely to determine whether to issue a visa to an individual;

"(3) to ensure the security, confidentiality and destruction of such information; and

"(4) to protect any privacy rights of individuals who are subjects of such information.".

(b) Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit such authority as the Attorney General or the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation may have pursuant to other law (and procedures thereunder) to provide access to the criminal history record information contained in the National Crime Information Center's (NCIC) Interstate Identification Index (NCIC-III), or to any other information maintained by the NCIC, to any Federal agency or officer authorized to enforce or administer the immigration laws of the United States for the purpose of such enforcement or administration, upon terms that are consistent with such other law.

SEC. 4. SENSE OF CONGRESS CONDEMNING DISCRIMINATION AGAINST ARAB

AND MUSLIM AMERICANS.

(a) FINDINGS.–Congress finds the following:

(1) Arab Americans, Muslim Americans, and Americans from South Asia play a vital role in our Nation and are entitled to nothing less than the full rights of every American.

(2) The acts of violence that have been taken against Arab and Muslim Americans since the September 11, 2001, attacks against the United States should be and are condemned by all Americans who value freedom.

(3) The concept of individual responsibility for wrongdoing is sacrosanct in American society, and applies equally to all religious, racial, and ethnic groups.

(4) When American citizens commit acts of violence against those who are, or are perceived to be, of Arab or Muslim descent, they should be punished to the full extent of the law.

(5) Muslim Americans have become so fearful of harassment that many Muslim women are changing the way they dress to avoid becoming targets.

(6) Many Arab Americans and Muslim Americans have acted heroically during the attacks on the United States, including Mohammed Salman Hamdani, a 23-year-old New Yorker of Pakistani descent, who is believed to have gone to the World Trade Center to offer rescue assistance and is now missing.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.-- It is the sense of Congress that--

(1) the civil rights and civil liberties of all Americans, including Arab Americans, Muslim Americans, and Americans from South Asia, must be protected, and that every effort must be taken to preserve their safety;

(2) any acts of violence or discrimination against any Americans be condemned; and

(3) the Nation is called upon to recognize the patriotism of fellow citizens from all ethnic, racial, and religious backgrounds.

TITLE II–IMMIGRATION

SEC. 201. DEFINITIONS RELATING TO TERRORISM.

The Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 is amended–

(a) in Section 212(a)(3) (8 U.S.C. 1182)--

(1) in paragraph (B) –

(A) in clause (i) –

(i) by amending paragraph (IV) to read as follows:

"(IV) is a representative (as defined in clause (iv)) of : (a) a ~~foreign~~ terrorist organization~~,~~ as designated by the Secretary under section 219 or paragraph (v)(ii), or (b) a political, social or other similar group whose public endorsement of acts of terrorist activity the Secretary has determined undermines U.S. efforts to reduce or eliminate terrorist activities, or";

~~(ii) in paragraph (V) by inserting "or" after the comma following "…should~~

(ii) by amending paragraph (V) to read as follows:

"(V) is a member of a terrorist organization as designated by the Secretary under section 219 or paragraph (v)(ii) paragraph, which the alien knows or should have known is a terrorist ~~organization"~~organization, or" ; and

(iii) by adding new paragraphs (VI) and (VII) to read as follows:

"(VI) has used his or her position of prominence within any country to endorse or espouse terrorist activity, or ~~to~~ persuade others to support terrorist activity or a foreign terrorist organization, in a way that the Secretary of State has determined undermines U.S. efforts to reduce or eliminate terrorist activities; or

(VII) (a) is the spouse or child of an alien who is inadmissible under this section, if the activity causing the alien to be found inadmissible occurred within the last 5 years,";

(B) Exceptions for certain spouses and children. Clause (VII)(a) shall not apply to a spouse or child :

(i) who did not know or should not reasonably have known of the activity causing the alien to be found inadmissible under this section; or

(ii) whom the consular officer or the Attorney General has reasonable grounds to believe has renounced the activity causing the alien to be found inadmissible under this section";

(B) in clause (ii)--

(i) by inserting "it had been" before "committed in the United States"; and

(ii) by replacing "or firearm" with ", firearm, or other weapon or dangerous device";

(C) by amending clause (iii) to read as follows:

"(iii) Engage in terrorist activity defined

"As used in this chapter, the term "engage in terrorist activity" means, in an individual capacity or as a member of an organization--

"(I) to commit or to incite to commit, under circumstances indicating an intention to cause death or serious bodily injury, an act of terrorist activity;

"(II) to prepare or plan a terrorist activity;

"(III) to gather information on potential targets for terrorist activity;

"(IIIV) to solicit funds or other things of value for terrorist activity or for any terrorist organization;

"(IVV) to solicit any individual for membership in a terrorist organization, a government that supports terrorism, or to engage in a terrorist activity; or documentation or identification, weapons (including, without limitation, chemical, biological, and radiological weapons), explosives, or training), to any organization that the actor knows, or reasonably should know, is a terrorist organization, or to any individual whom the actor knows, or reasonably should know, has committed or plans to commit any terrorist activity.

~~"This~~ "Provided, however, that this clause shall not ~~be construed~~apply to ~~encompass~~ any material support the alien afford~~s~~ed to an organization or individual who ~~had previously~~has committed terrorist activity if the ~~alien establishes by clear and convincing evidence that such support was afforded only after that individual had permanently and publicly renounced and rejected the use of, and had ceased to commit or support, any terrorist~~ Secretary, after consultation with the Attorney General, or the Attorney General, after consultation with the Secretary, concludes in his sole unreviewable discretion, that this clause should not apply."; and

(D) by adding a new clause after clause (iv) to read as follows:

"(v) Terrorist organization defined

"As used in clause i(VI) and clause (iii), the term "terrorist organization" includes but is not limited to an organization—

(i) designated under Section 219; or

Any such designation shall be controlling in all administrative and judicial proceedings, including actions under 28 U.S.C. 2241, and shall be conclusive evidence that the organization is a terrorist organization. With respect to an alien who was present in the United States at the time the act was committed, such designation shall also be conclusive evidence that the alien should have known that the organization was a terrorist organization unless the alien demonstrates that he acted prior to the designation and that he should not have known that it was a terrorist organization. With respect to other aliens, such designation shall be conclusive evidence that the alien should have known that the organization was a terrorist organization unless the alien demonstrates that he acted prior to the enactment of this clause and that he should not have known that he was supporting terrorist activity. In determining whether an organization is a terrorist organization in cases where no designation has been made, it shall not be considered that the organization also engages in nonterrorist activity."; and

(2) by adding a new subparagraph (F) as follows:

~~"Any~~

"(F) Any alien who the Secretary of State, after consultation with the Attorney General, or the Attorney General, after consultation with the Secretary of State, determines has been associated with a terrorist organization and intends while in the United States to engage solely, principally, or incidentally in activities that could endanger the welfare, safety, or security of the United States is inadmissible.";

(b) in Section 219(a) (8 U.S.C. 1189(a))--

(A) in ~~subparagraph~~ paragraph (1)(B), by inserting "or terrorism (as defined in section 140(d)(2) of the State Department Authorization Act, Public Law 100-204 (22 U.S.C. 2656f(d)(2)) or retains the capability and intent to engage in ~~terrorist~~terrorist activity or terrorism)" after "212(a)(3)(B))";

(B) in ~~subparagraph~~ paragraph (1)(C), by inserting "or terrorism" after "terrorist activity";

(C) by amending ~~subparagraph~~ paragraph (2)(A) to read as follows:

"(A) NOTICE.—

"(i) Seven days before making a designation under this subsection, the Secretary shall, by classified communication, notify the Speaker and Minority Leader of the House of Representatives, the President pro tempore, Majority Leader, and Minority Leader of the Senate, and the members of the relevant committees, in writing, of the intent to designate an organization under this subsection, together with the findings made under paragraph (1) with respect to that organization, and the factual basis therefor.

"(ii) The Secretary shall publish the designation in the Federal Register seven days after providing the notification under clause (i).";

(D) in ~~clause~~ paragraph (2)(B)(i), by replacing "subparagraph (A)" with "subparagraph (A)(ii)";

(E) in ~~subparagraph~~ paragraph (2)(C), by replacing "paragraph (2)" with "paragraph (2)(A)(i)";

(F) in ~~subparagraph~~ paragraph (3)(B), by replacing "subsection (c)" with "subsection (b)";

(G) in ~~subparagraph~~ paragraph (4)(B), by inserting after the first sentence the following:

"The Secretary also may redesignate such organization at the end of any 2-year redesignation period (but not sooner than 60 days prior to the termination of such period) for an additional 2-year period upon a finding that the relevant circumstances described in paragraph (1) still exist. Any redesignation shall be effective immediately following the end of the prior 2-year designation or redesignation period unless a different effective date is provided in such redesignation.";

(H) in ~~subparagraph~~ paragraph (6)(A),

(i) by inserting "or a redesignation made under paragraph (4)(B)" after "paragraph (1)";

(ii) in clause (i), by

(I) inserting "or redesignation" after "designation" the first time it appears; and

(II) striking "of the designation"; and

(iii) in clause (ii), by striking "of the designation";

(I) in ~~subparagraph~~ paragraph (6)(B), by

(i) replacing "through (4)" with "and (3)"; and

(ii) inserting the following new sentence at the end: "Any revocation shall take effect on the date specified in the revocation or upon publication in the Federal Register if no effective date is specified.";

(J) in paragraph (7), by inserting ", or the revocation of a redesignation under paragraph (6)," after "paragraph (5) or (6)"; and

(K) in paragraph (8), by

(i) replacing "paragraph (1)(B)" with "paragraph (2)(B), or if a redesignation under this subsection has become effective under paragraph (4)(B)";

(ii) inserting "or an alien in a removal proceeding" after "criminal action"; and

(iii) inserting "or redesignation" before "as a defense".

~~SEC. 202. MANDATORY DETENTION OF SUSPECTED TERRORISTS.~~

~~Section 236 of the Immigration and Nationality Act is amended~~

~~(1) by redesignating subsection (e) as (f) and by inserting before the same the following new subsection:~~

~~"(1) Custody.--The Attorney General shall take into custody any alien who is certified under paragraph (3).~~

~~"(2) Release.--The Attorney General shall maintain custody of any such alien until such alien is removed from the United States. Such custody shall be maintained irrespective of any relief from removal the alien may be eligible for or granted until the Attorney General deems such alien is no longer an alien who may be certified pursuant to paragraph (3).~~

~~"(3) Certification.--The Attorney General may certify an alien to be an alien he has reason to believe may commit, further, or facilitate acts described in section 237(a)(4)(A)(i), (A)(iii), or (B), or engage in any other activity that endangers the national security of the United States.".~~

~~SEC. 203. HABEAS CORPUS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW~~.

~~"(g) Habeas corpus. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, including section 2241 of title 28, United States Code, judicial review of any issue arising out of the detention of any alien under section 236(e) of this Act may be had only by petition for~~ ~~writ of habeas corpus in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, without regard to where the alien is detained.".~~

SEC. 204. APPLICABILITY.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the amendments made by this title shall apply to all aliens, regardless of whether any such aliens entered the United States before or after the date of the enactment of this Act, or whether any relevant activity by any such aliens occurred before or after such date, and shall apply to all past, pending, or future deportation, exclusion, removal, or other immigration proceedings.

SEC. 205. MULTILATERAL CO-OPERATION AGAINST TERRORISTS.

Section 222(f) of the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 is amended–

(A) by inserting ": (1)" after "except that"; and

(B) by inserting the following before the period at the end:

"and (2) the Secretary of State in his discretion and on the basis of reciprocity may provide to a foreign government information in the Department of State's computerized visa lookout database and, when necessary and appropriate, other records covered by this section related to information in the database:

(A) with regard to individual aliens, at any time on a case-by-case basis for the purpose of preventing, investigating or punishing, acts that would constitute a crime in the United States, including, but not limited to, terrorism or trafficking in controlled substances, persons or illicit weapons; or

(B) with regard to any or all aliens in the database, pursuant to such conditions as he shall establish in an agreement with another government in which that government agrees to use such information and records for the purposes described in paragraph (A) or to deny visas to persons who would be inadmissible to the United States.".

SEC. 206. INTER-AGENCY DATA SHARING.

(a) Section 105 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1105), is amended–

(1) in the caption by adding "and Data Exchange" after "~~Officers~~"Officers";

(2) by designating all of section 105 as subsection (a);

(3) in subsection (a) as so designated, by inserting the words "and border" after the word "internal" in the second place that it appears; and

(4) by adding new subsections (b), (c) and (d) as follows:

"(b) The Attorney General and the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation shall provide the Department of State and the Service with access to the criminal history record information contained in the National Crime Information Center's (NCIC) Interstate Identification Index (NCIC-III), Wanted Persons File, and to any other files maintained by the National Crime Information Center that may be mutually agreed upon by the Attorney General and the agency to be provided access for the purpose of determining whether a visa applicant or applicant for admission has a criminal history record indexed in any such file. Such access shall be provided by means of extracts of the records for placement in the automated visa lookout or other appropriate database, and shall be provided without any fee or charge. The Federal Bureau of Investigation shall provide periodic updates of the extracts at intervals mutually agreed upon. Upon receipt of such updated extracts, the reviewing agency shall make corresponding updates to its database and destroy previously provided extracts. Such access to any extract does not entitle the Department of State to obtain the full content of the corresponding automated criminal history record. To obtain the full content of a criminal history record, the Department of State shall submit the applicant's fingerprints and any appropriate fingerprint processing fee authorized by law to the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"(c) The provision of the extracts mentioned in subsection (b) may be reconsidered by the Attorney General and the receiving agency upon the development and deployment of a more cost-effective and efficient means of sharing the information.

"(d) For purposes of administering this Section, the Department of State shall, prior to receiving access to National Crime Information Center data, promulgate final regulations to establish the conditions for the use of the information received from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in order-

"(1) to limit the redissemination of such information;

"(2) to ensure that such information is used solely to determine whether to issue a visa to an individual;

"(3) to ensure the security, confidentiality and destruction of such information; and

"(4) to protect any privacy rights of individuals who are subjects of such information.".

(b) Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit such authority as the Attorney General or the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation may have pursuant to other law (and procedures thereunder) to provide access to the criminal history record information contained in the National Crime Information Center's (NCIC) Interstate Identification Index (NCIC-III), or to any other information maintained by the NCIC, to any Federal agency or officer authorized to enforce or administer the immigration laws of the United States for the purpose of such enforcement or administration, upon terms that are consistent with such other law.

[DRAFT] Date-

The Honorable John J. LaFalce
Ranking Member Committee on Financial Services
U.S. House of Representative
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Mr. LaFalce:

We are responding to your request for our views as to whether it is appropriate to enact legislation to revise the bankruptcy and bank insolvency laws to facilitate the termination and netting of financial contracts.

Such legislation would reduce the impact of the failure of any one institution on the stability of the financial system. As a consequence, we support its prompt enactment. Such strengthening of the legal framework for financial contracts is perhaps the most important legislative recommendation contained in the April 1999 report of the President's Working Group on Financial Markets entitled Hedge Funds, Leverage, and the Lessons of Long-Term Capital Management.

Whether as part of comprehensive bankruptcy reform legislation or as a stand-alone bill, Congress should not fail to enact netting legislation this year. Further delays would unnecessarily place the financial system at greater risk.

Sincerely,

Alan Greenspan

The Honorable Paul O'Neill
Secretary
Department of the Treasury
Washington, DC 20551

Dear Chairman Greenspan and Secretary O'Neill:

We are writing to request your views on the need for the immediate consideration of legislation to revise the bankruptcy and bank insolvency laws with respect to the termination and netting of financial contracts. This legislation has been passed by both the Senate and the House for two years in a row as a non-controversial part of the bankruptcy bills to update our bank insolvency and bankruptcy laws to ensure the enforceability of financial contract close-out and netting in the event of a counterparty failure. The legislation was developed by the President's Working Group on the Financial Markets to provide certainty to the swap markets and other financial markets in order to prevent market destabilization in the event of the failure of a participant.

The language on netting needed to update the insolvency laws currently is included in the bankruptcy bills that have passed each house and are currently being considered by a Conference Committee. That Committee has not yet begun its reconciliation of the bills. Indeed, the Committee's first meeting was canceled as a result of the tragic events of September 11th. Given the many serious issues that remain to be resolved between the two houses, it will be some time before a final bill emerges.

As our economy and markets continue to recover from the events of September 11, we are concerned about the potential impact of delaying the amendment of our insolvency laws to provide certainty to the financial markets. Even in the absence of a major bankruptcy or insolvency, we are concerned that the increased risk of counterparty failure may lead to market instability, reducing the ability of firms to use these markets to manage their risks. We would like your views as to whether enactment of netting legislation would be a useful step that we could take to reduce the heightened systemic risk our financial system now faces.

We would appreciate your views on this matter at the earliest possible time.

Sincerely,

JOHN J. LaFALCE

All -- I am advised by the Biden staff that Bioterrorim is about to be dropped by Leahy due to opposition from the groups. I am also told that the suggestion has been made that our proposal was not fully vetted within the Adm. (HHS, etc). I don't know what we can do to preserve what we currently have but pass this on.

Please let me know if there is something I can do!!

Under Section 101 (b)(1):
"(a)In General.--
(3) (A) Where the law enforcement agency implementing an ex parte order under this subsection seeks to do so by installing and using its own pen register or trap and trace device on a packet-switched data network of a provider of electronic communication service to the public, the agency shall ensure that a record will be maintained which will identify:

(i) Any officer or officers who installed the device and any officer or officers who accessed the device to obtain information from the network;

(ii) The date and time the device was installed, the date and time the device was uninstalled, and the date, time, and duration of each time the device is accessed to obtain information;

(iii) The configuration of the device at the time of its installation and any subsequent modification thereof; and

(iv) Any information which has been collected by the device.

To the extent that the pen register or trap and trace device can be set automatically to record this information electronically, the record shall be maintained electronically throughout the installation and use of such device.

(B) The record maintained under subparagraph (A) shall be provided ex parte and under seal to the court which entered the ex parte order authorizing the installation and use of the device within 30 days after termination of the order (including any extensions thereof).

Draft side-by-side for sections 401-404 is attached .

Mike Payne

>>> Newstead, Jennifer 10/04/01 11:31AM >>>
All -- as you know we're in the home stretch of the legislative process on the terrorism bill. Now that Senate and House text have been separately "agreed", we are about to become embroiled in negotiations over what the final bill should look like.

To that end, we need to develop ASAP a side-by-side comparison of the new Senate and House bills (the Senate version is attached: I will forward the House version as soon as I have it). Viet requests that each of you take responsibility for producing the section of the side by side in your areas of expertise as follows (please delegate this if needed, but we ask that you or your designee set aside as much of the day today as possible to get this done). We ask that you start immediately and provide us with a preliminary draft by 3:30, and a final text no later than 7 pm. We will use the preliminary draft for the first round of pre-conference discussions which start at 4.

Please use the attached format (5 columns as marked) to assist me in generating one document at the end of the process.

Thanks very much for your help.

Title I FISA: David Kris
Title II: Mike Lindemann

(1) On page 3, strike line 18 and all that follows through page 5, line 13, and substitute the following:

==========

[NOTE: throughout, parentheses only surround the additions/changes to title 49 (and title 5), not the entirety of each amendment]

==========

(a) IN GENERAL.--(1) Chapter 1 of title 49, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"Sec. 114. Transportation Security Administration

"(a) IN GENERAL.--The Transportation Security Administration shall be an administration of the Department of Transportation.

"(b) HEAD OF ADMINISTRATION.--The head of the Administration shall be the Administrator, who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Administrator shall report directly to the Secretary of Transportation.

"(c) DEPUTY ADMINISTRATOR FOR SECURITY.--The Administration shall have a Deputy Administrator for Security appointed by the Secretary, with the approval of the President. The Deputy Administrator shall carry out transportation security duties and powers prescribed by the Administrator.

"(d) DEPUTY ADMINISTRATOR FOR INTELLIGENCE.--The Administration shall have a Deputy Administrator for Intelligence appointed by the Secretary, with the approval of the President. The Deputy Administrator shall carry out transportation security intelligence duties and powers prescribed by the Administrator.

"(e) POWERS AND DUTIES.--The Administrator shall carry out--

"(1) duties and powers related to transportation security as proscribed by the Secretary; and

"(2) additional duties and powers prescribed by the Secretary.

"(f) EFFECT OF CERTAIN DECISIONS.--A decision of the Administrator involving a duty or power specified in subsection (e) and involving notice and hearing required by law is administratively final.

"(g) CONSULTATION.--The Administrator shall consult with the Administrators of Department of Transportation Administrations and the Commandant of the United States Coast Guard on matters related to transportation security.

"(h) MANAGEMENT INCENTIVES.--In addition to the annual rates of basic pay authorized for the Administrator and the Deputy Administrators of the Administration, there may be paid a bonus for any calendar year of not to exceed 20 percent of the annual rate of basic pay, based on a performance evaluation of the individual by the Secretary of Transportation.

(2) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.--The analysis for chapter 1 is amended by adding at the end the following:

"114. Transportation Security Administration.".

(3) POSITIONS IN EXECUTIVE SERVICE; OTHER--

(A) Section 5313 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by inserting after--

"SUBCHAPTER I--GENERAL

"Sec. 5201. Definitions

"A term used in this chapter that is defined in section 40102 of this title has the meaning specified in section 40102.

"Sec. 5202. Acquisition management system; additional authority

"(a) IN GENERAL.--Notwithstanding provisions of Federal acquisition law, the Secretary of Transportation shall develop and implement, not later than January 1, 2002, an acquisition management system for the Transportation Security Administration that addresses the unique needs of transportation security and, at a minimum, provides for more timely and cost-effective acquisitions of equipment and materials.

"(b) APPLICABILITY OF FEDERAL ACQUISITION LAW.--The following provisions of Federal acquisition law shall not apply to the acquisition management system developed and implemented under this section:

"(1) Title III of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949.

"(2) The Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act.

"(3) The Federal Acquisition Streamlining Act of 1994.

"(4) The Small Business Act, except that all reasonable opportunities to be awarded contracts shall be provided to small business concerns and small business concerns owned and controlled by socially and economically disadvantaged individuals.

"(5) The Competition in Contracting Act.

"(6) Subchapter V of chapter 35 of title 31, relating to the procurement protest system.

"(7) The Brooks Automatic Data Processing Act.

"(8) The Federal Acquisition Regulation and any laws not listed in this subsection providing authority to promulgate regulations in the Federal Acquisition Regulation.

"(c) CERTAIN PROVISIONS OF THE OFFICE OF FEDERAL PROCUREMENT POLICY ACT.--Notwithstanding subsection (b)(2), section 27 of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act shall apply to the acquisition management system developed and implemented under this section with the following modifications:

"(1) Subsections (f) and (g) shall not apply.

"(2) Within 90 days after the date of the enactment of this section, the Secretary shall adopt definitions for the acquisition management system that are consistent with the purpose and intent of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act. After the adoption of those definitions, the criminal, civil, and administrative remedies provided under the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act apply to the acquisition management system.

"(3) In the administration of the acquisition management system, the Secretary may take adverse personnel action under section 27(e)(3)(A)(iv) of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act in accordance with the procedures contained in the Administration's personnel management system.

"(d) PROHIBITION ON RELEASE OF OFFEROR PROPOSALS.--(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), a proposal in the possession or control of the Secretary under this chapter may not be made available to any person under section 552 of title 5.

"(2) Paragraph (1) shall not apply to any portion of a proposal of an offeror the disclosure of which is authorized by the Secretary under procedures published in the Federal Register. The Secretary shall provide an opportunity for public comment on the procedures for a period of not less than 30 days beginning on the date of such publication in order to receive and consider the views of all interested parties on the procedures. The procedures shall not take effect before the 60th day following the date of such publication.

"(3) In this subsection, the term "proposal" means information contained in or originating from any proposal, including a technical, management, or cost proposal, submitted by an offeror in response to the requirements of a solicitation for a competitive proposal.

"(e) PROPERTY ACQUISITION.--(1) The Secretary is authorized to acquire by purchase, lease, condemnation, or otherwise any property, real or personal (including office space and intellectual property), facilities, services (including personal services), or any other items the Secretary decides is appropriate to carry out the provisions of this Act. The Secretary is also authorized to construct, repair, operate, and maintain, by contract or otherwise, such property, and to utilize, in his discretion, the services of a non-profit entity which may be established to assist in such acquisition services.

(2) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, including sections 1341, 6505, and 9701 of title 31 and all sections of title 41, the Secretary is authorized to enter into and perform such contracts, leases, grants, cooperative agreements, international agreements, or other transactions as the Secretary may decide is appropriate with any Federal agency or any instrumentality of the United States, any State, territory, or possession, or political subdivision thereof, any other governmental entity, or any person, firm, association, corporation, or educational institution, on such terms and conditions as the Secretary may consider appropriate. The Secretary may, with or without reimbursement, use or accept the services, equipment, personnel, or facilities of any other Federal agency, and any other public or private entity. The head of each Federal agency or department shall cooperate with the Secretary and is authorized, notwithstanding any other provision of law, to transfer to or to receive from the Secretary, without reimbursement, supplies, equipment, services, personnel and facilities. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary is authorized to lease to others or dispose of any property (real or personal).

"Sec. 5203. Multiyear procurement contracts for services and related items

"(a) GENERAL AUTHORITY.--Notwithstanding section 1341(a)(1)(B) of title 31, to carry out this chapter, the Secretary of Transportation may make a contract of not more than 5 years for the following types of services and items of supply related to those services for which amounts otherwise would be available for obligation only in the fiscal year for which appropriated:

"(1) Operation, maintenance, and support of facilities and installations.

"(2) Operation, maintenance, and modification of vehicles and other highly complex equipment.

"(3) Specialized training requiring high quality instructor skills, including foreign language training.

"(b) REQUIRED FINDINGS.--The Secretary may make a contract under this section only if the Secretary finds that--

"(1) there will be a continuing requirement for the service consistent with current plans for the proposed contract period;

"(2) providing the service will require a substantial initial investment in plant or equipment, or will incur a substantial contingent liability for assembling, training, or transporting a specialized workforce; and

"(3) the contract will promote the best interests of the United States by encouraging effective competition and promoting economies in operation.

"(c) CONSIDERATIONS.--When making a contract under this section, the Secretary shall be guided by the following:

"(1) The part of the cost of a plant or equipment amortized as a cost of contract performance may not be more than the ratio between the period of contract performance and the anticipated useful commercial life (instead of physical life) of the plant or equipment, considering the location and specialized nature of the plant or equipment, obsolescence, and other similar factors.

"(2) The Secretary shall consider the desirability of--

"(A) obtaining an option to renew the contract for a reasonable period of not more than 3 years, at a price that does not include charges for nonrecurring costs already amortized; and

"(B) reserving in the Secretary the right, on payment of the unamortized part of the cost of the plant or equipment, to take title to the plant or equipment under appropriate circumstances.

"(d) ENDING CONTRACTS.--A contract made under this section shall be ended if amounts are not made available to continue the contract into a subsequent fiscal year. The cost of ending the contract may be paid from--

"(1) an appropriation originally available for carrying out the contract;

"(2) an appropriation currently available for procuring the type of service concerned and not otherwise obligated; or

"(3) amounts appropriated for payments to end the contract.

"Sec. 5204. Multiyear procurement contracts for property

"(a) GENERAL AUTHORITY.--Notwithstanding section 1341(a)(1)(B) of title 31 and to the extent that amounts otherwise are available for obligation, to carry out this chapter, the Secretary of Transportation may make a contract of more than one but not more than 5 fiscal years to purchase property, except a contract to construct, alter, or make a major repair or improvement to real property.

"(b) REQUIRED FINDINGS.--The Secretary may make a contract under this section if the Secretary finds that--

"(1) the contract will promote transportation security and will result in reduced total contract costs;

"(2) the minimum need for the property to be purchased is expected to remain substantially unchanged during the proposed contract period in terms of production rate, procurement rate, and total quantities;

"(3) there is a reasonable expectation that throughout the proposed contract period the Secretary will request appropriations for the contract at the level required to avoid cancellation;

"(4) there is a stable design for the property to be acquired and the technical risks associated with the property are not excessive; and

"(5) the estimates of the contract costs and the anticipated savings from the contract are realistic.

"(c) REGULATIONS.--The Secretary may prescribe regulations for acquiring property under this section to promote the use of contracts under this section in a way that will allow the most efficient use of those contracts. The regulations may provide for a cancellation provision in the contract to the extent the provision is necessary and in the best interest of the United States. The provision may include consideration of recurring and nonrecurring costs of the contractor associated with producing the item to be delivered under the contract. The regulations shall provide that, to the extent practicable--

"(1) to broaden the transportation security industrial base--

"(A) a contract under this section shall be used to seek, retain, and promote the use under that contract of subcontractors, vendors, or suppliers; and

"(B) on accrual of a payment or other benefit accruing on a contract under this section to a subcontractor, vendor, or supplier participating in the contract, the payment or benefit shall be delivered in the most expeditious way practicable; and

"(2) this section and regulations prescribed under this section may not be carried out in a way that precludes or curtails the existing ability of the Secretary to provide for--

"(A) competition in producing items to be delivered under a contract under this section; or

"(B) ending a prime contract when performance is deficient with respect to cost, quality, or schedule.

"(d) CONTRACT PROVISIONS.--(1) A contract under this section may--

"(A) be used for the advance procurement of components, parts, and material necessary to manufacture equipment to be used in the national airspace system;

"(B) provide that performance under the contract after the first year is subject to amounts being appropriated; and

"(C) contain a negotiated priced option for varying the number of end items to be procured over the period of the contract.

"(2) If feasible and practicable, an advance procurement contract may be made to achieve economic-lot purchases and more efficient production rates.

"(e) CANCELLATION PAYMENT AND NOTICE OF CANCELLATION CEILING.--(1) If a contract under this section provides that performance is subject to an appropriation being made, it also may provide for a cancellation payment to be made to the contractor if the appropriation is not made.

"(2) Before awarding a contract under this section containing a cancellation ceiling of more than $ 100,000,000, the Secretary shall give written notice of the proposed contract and cancellation ceiling to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate and the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Representatives. The contract may not be awarded until the end of the 30-day period beginning on the date of the notice.

"(f) ENDING CONTRACTS.--A contract made under this section shall be ended if amounts are not made available to continue the contract into a subsequent fiscal year. The cost of ending the contract may be paid from--

"(1) an appropriation originally available for carrying out the contract;

"(2) an appropriation currently available for procuring the type of property concerned and not otherwise obligated; or

"(3) amounts appropriated for payments to end the contract.

"Sec. 5205. Severable services contracts for periods crossing fiscal years

"(a) IN GENERAL.--The Secretary of Transportation may enter into a contract for procurement of severable services for a period that begins in 1 fiscal year and ends in the next fiscal year if (without regard to any option to extend the period of the contract) the contract period does not exceed 1 year.

"(b) OBLIGATION OF FUNDS.--Funds made available for a fiscal year may be obligated for the total amount of a contract entered into under the authority of subsection (a).

"Sec. 5206. Protection of voluntarily submitted information

"(a) IN GENERAL.--Notwithstanding any other provision of law, neither the Secretary of Transportation, nor any agency receiving information from the Secretary, shall disclose voluntarily-provided safety or security related information if the Secretary finds that--

"(1) the disclosure of the information would inhibit the voluntary provision of that type of information and that the receipt of that type of information aids in fulfilling the Secretary's safety and security responsibilities; and

"(2) withholding such information from disclosure would be consistent with the Secretary's safety and security responsibilities.

"(b) REGULATIONS.--The Secretary shall issue regulations to carry out this section.

"Sec. 5207. Research, development, testing, and training

"(a) GENERAL REQUIREMENTS.--(1) The Secretary of Transportation shall conduct research (including behavioral research) and development activities appropriate to develop, modify, test, and evaluate a system, procedure, facility, or device to protect passengers and property against acts of criminal violence, terrorism, and aircraft piracy.

"(2) The Secretary may carry out or supervise, as necessary, any other research, development, testing, evaluation, and training for an area of transportation security.

"(3) To carry out this chapter, the Secretary may make contracts for research, development, testing, evaluation, and training.

"(b) DISCLOSURE.--(1) Notwithstanding section 552 of title 5, the Secretary shall prescribe regulations prohibiting disclosure of information obtained or developed in carrying out security research and development activities under this chapter if the Secretary decides disclosing the information would--

"(A) be an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy;

"(B) reveal a trade secret or privileged or confidential commercial or financial information; or

"(C) be detrimental to the safety of passengers in air transportation.

"(2) Paragraph (1) of this subsection does not authorize information to be withheld from a committee of Congress authorized to have the information.

"(c) TRANSFERS OF DUTIES AND POWERS PROHIBITED.--Except as otherwise provided by law, the Secretary may not transfer a duty or power under this section to another department, agency, or instrumentality of the United States Government.

"Sec. 5208. Authority to exempt

"The Secretary of Transportation may grant an exemption from a regulation prescribed in carrying out this chapter when the Secretary decides the exemption is in the public interest.

"Sec. 5209. Administrative

"(a) IN GENERAL.--The Secretary of Transportation may take action the Secretary considers necessary to carry out this chapter, including conducting investigations, prescribing regulations, standards, and procedures, and issuing orders.

"(b) GOVERNMENTAL ASSISTANCE.--The Secretary may use the assistance of any research or technical department, agency, or instrumentality of the United States Government on matters related to transportation security. Each department, agency, and instrumentality may conduct scientific and technical research, investigations, and tests necessary to assist the Secretary in carrying out this chapter.

"(c) INDEMNIFICATION.--The Secretary may indemnify an officer or employee of the Administration against a claim or judgment arising out of an act that the Administrator.

"SUBCHAPTER II--MULTIMODAL SECURITY

"Sec. 5231. General Responsibilities of the Administration

"The Secretary of Transportation shall--

"(1) develop policies, strategies, and plans for dealing with threats to transportation security;

"(2) coordinate countermeasures with appropriate departments, agencies, and instrumentalities of the United States Government;

"(3) undertake research and development activities necessary to enhance transportation security;

"(4) receive and assess intelligence information related to transportation security;

"(5) assess security threats to transportation;

"(6) serve as the liaison for transportation security to the intelligence and law enforcement communities;

"(7) issue and enforce security-related regulations and requirements;

"(8) inspect, maintain, and test security facilities, equipment, and systems;

"(9) ensure the adequacy of security measures for the transportation of cargo;

"(10) oversee the implementation, and ensure the adequacy, of security measures for transportation infrastructure;

"(11) implement and ensure the adequacy, of background checks for airport screeners, individuals with unescorted access to secure areas of airports, and other transportation security personnel; and

"(12) notwithstanding any other law, carry out duties and powers relating to transportation security vested in the Department of Transportation.

"5232. Aviation-related duties [from S. 1447, page 4, line 8--page 5, line 13]

"The Secretary of Transportation--

"(1) is responsible for day-to-day Federal security operations for air transportation or intrastate air transportation;

"(2) shall coordinate and direct, as appropriate, the security functions and responsibilities under chapter 449;

"(3) shall work in conjunction with the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration with respect to any actions or activities that may affect aviation safety or air carrier operations;

"(4) is responsible for hiring and training personnel to provide security screening at all United States airports involved in air transportation or intrastate air transportation; and

"(5) shall actively cooperate and coordinate with appropriate Federal agencies and departments with responsibilities for national security and criminal justice enforcement activities that are related to aviation security through the Aviation Security Coordination Council.

"Sec. 5233. General regulatory authority

"(a) IN GENERAL.--Under the authority of this chapter, the Secretary of Transportation shall prescribe regulations for the security of transportation in the United States, as well as to and from the United States, against terrorist attack and other, comparable threats, which regulations shall govern all aspects of the transportation system the Secretary considers appropriate.

"(b) ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURE ACT.--(1) IN GENERAL.--Except as provided in paragraphs (2) and (3), a proceeding to prescribe the regulations shall be conducted under section 553 of title 5.

"(2) EXCEPTION.--The Secretary may determine that transportation security requires the immediate issuance of a regulation without regard to the requirements of section 553 of title 5.

"(3) TRANSITION.--During the transition period provided in the Aviation Security Act, any action required to implement the Act shall not be subject to section 553 of title 5.

SUBCHAPTER IV--ENFORCMENT

"Sec. 5291. Enforcement and civil penalties

"Enforcement of the requirements and other provisions of this chapter, other than the imposition of criminal penalties, shall be carried out under chapter 463 of this title. The general civil penalty specified in section 46301(a) applies to a violation or other failure to comply with the requirements of this chapter, or a regulation prescribed or order issued by the Secretary of Transportation under this chapter.

"Sec. 5292. Criminal penalties

"A person that knowingly and willfully violates this chapter, or a regulation prescribed or order issued by the Secretary of Transportation under this chapter, shall be fined under title 18. A separate violation occurs for each day the violation continues.".

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.-- The analysis of Subtitle III of title 49, United States Code, is amended by inserting after the item for chapter 51 the following:

"52. Transportation Security.....5201".

(2) On page 6, strike lines 4 through 8, and add the following at the end of the bill:

SEC. 20. TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS.

(a) DEFINITION.--In this section, "date of transfer" is the date established by the Secretary of Transportation on which the authority exercised by the Office of Intelligence and Security (established under 49 U.S.C. 44931 as in effect on the date of the enactment of this Act) and of the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration over transportation security matters transfers to the Transportation Security Administration, as set forth in this section. The "date of transfer" shall not be later than January 1, 2002, and may be specified by the Secretary as an earlier date for specified authorities.

(b) IN GENERAL.--Effective on the date of transfer, there are transferred to the Transportation Security Administration of the Department of Transportation under the terms of this section the functions, personnel, and associated funding of the following program and project activities of the Department of Transportation:

(1) Office of Intelligence and Security, Department of Transportation;

(2) Crisis Management, Research and Special Projects Administration; and

(3) Civil Aviation Security functions (and related functions, including associated research and development), including Federal Air Marshals, Federal Aviation Administration.

(c) TRANSFER OF ASSETS AND PERSONNEL.—The personnel, property, and records employed, used, held, available, or to be made available in connection with a function transferred under this Act shall be transferred to the Administration for use in connection with the functions transferred, and unexpended balances of appropriations, allocations, and other funds shall also be transferred to the Administration.

(d) LEGAL DOCUMENTS- All orders, determinations, rules, regulations, permits, grants, loans, contracts, settlements, agreements, certificates, licenses, and privileges--

(1) that have been issued, made, granted, or allowed to become effective by the transferring entities, any officer or employee of the transferring entities, or any other Government official, or by a court of competent jurisdiction, in the performance of any function that is transferred by this Act or the amendments made by this Act; and

(2) that are in effect on the effective date of such transfer (or become effective after such date pursuant to their terms as in effect on such effective date), shall continue in effect according to their terms until modified, terminated, superseded, set aside, or revoked in accordance with law by the Administration, any other authorized official, a court of competent jurisdiction, or operation of law.

(e) PROCEEDINGS.--(1) The provisions of this Act shall not affect any proceedings or any application for any license pending before the transferring entities at the time this Act takes effect, insofar as those functions are transferred by this Act; but such proceedings and applications, to the extent that they relate to functions so transferred, shall be continued. Orders shall be issued in such proceedings, appeals shall be taken therefrom, and payments shall be made pursuant to such orders, as if this Act had not been enacted; and orders issued in any such proceedings shall continue in effect until modified, terminated, superseded, or revoked by a duly authorized official, by a court of competent jurisdiction, or by operation of law.

(2) Nothing in this subsection shall be deemed to prohibit the discontinuance or modification of any proceeding described in paragraph (1) under the same terms and conditions and to the same extent that such proceeding could have been discontinued or modified if this Act had not been enacted.

(3) The Secretary of Transportation is authorized to provide for the orderly transfer of pending proceedings from the transferring entities.

(f) SUITS.--(1) This Act shall not affect suits commenced before the date of the enactment of this Act, except as provided in paragraphs (2) and (3). In all such suits, proceeding shall be had, appeals taken, and judgments rendered in the same manner and with the same effect as if this Act had not been enacted.

(2) Any suit by or against the transferring entities begun before the date of transfer shall be continued, insofar as it involves a function retained and transferred under this Act, with the Administration (to the extent the suit involves functions transferred to the Administration under this Act) substituted for the transferring entity.

(3) If the court in a suit described in paragraph (1) remands a case to the Administration, subsequent proceedings related to such case shall proceed in accordance with applicable law and regulations as in effect at the time of such subsequent proceedings.

(g) CONTINUANCE OF ACTIONS AGAINST OFFICERS.--No suit, action, or other proceeding commenced by or against any officer in his official capacity as an officer of the transferring entity shall abate by reason of the enactment of this Act. No cause of action by or against the transferring entity, or by or against any officer thereof in his official capacity, shall abate by reason of the enactment of this Act.

(h) EXERCISE OF AUTHORITIES- Except as otherwise provided by law, an officer or employee of the Administration may, for purposes of performing a function transferred by this Act or the amendments made by this Act, exercise all authorities under any other provision of law that were available with respect to the performance of that function to the official responsible for the performance of the function immediately before the effective date of the transfer of the function under this Act or the amendments made by this Act.

(i) REFERENCES.--Any reference to the transferring entities in any Federal law, Executive order, rule, regulation, or delegation of authority, or any document of or pertaining to the transferring entities or an officer or employee of the transferring entities is deemed to refer to the Administration or a member or employee of the Administration, as appropriate.

(3) At each place in the bill where the words "Deputy Secretary" or "Deputy Secretary for Transportation Security" appear, substitute "Secretary of Transportation".

(4) At each place in the bill after page 13 where the words "Administrator" or "Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration" appear, substitute "Secretary of Transportation".

(5) On page 31, strike line 19 and all that follows through line 2 on page 32, and substitute the following:

> (i) SCREENER PERSONNEL.--Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary may employ, appoint, discipline, terminate, and fix the compensation, terms, and conditions of employment of such a number of individuals as the Secretary determines may be necessary to carry out the screening function of the Secretary under this Act.

[STAFF WORKING DRAFT]

October 3, 2001

Purpose: To improve aviation security.

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES—107TH Cong., 1ST Sess.

OCTOBER ——, 2001

( ) Referred to the Committee on ———— and ordered to be printed

( ) Ordered to lie on the table and to be printed

INTENDED to be proposed by Mr. HOLLINGS (for himself and Mr. MCCAIN)

Viz: Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the "Aviation Security Act".

(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents for this Act is as follows:

Sec. 1. Short title.
Sec. 2. Findings.
Sec. 3. Transportation security function.
Sec. 4. Aviation Security Coordination Council.
Sec. 5. Improved flight deck integrity measures.
Sec. 6. Deployment of Federal air marshals.
Sec. 7. Improved airport perimeter access security.
Sec. 8. Enhanced anti-hijacking training for flight crews.
Sec. 9. Passenger screening.
Sec. 10. Training and employment of security screening personnel.
Sec. 11. Suspension and removal.
Sec. 12. Research and development.
Sec. 13. Flight school security.

REV_00132779

Sec. 14. Report to Congress on security.
Sec. 15. General aviation and air charters.
Sec. 16. Security funding.
Sec. 17. Increased funding flexibility for aviation security.
Sec. 18. Authorization of funds for reimbursement of airports for security mandates.
Sec. 19. Definitions.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds the following:

(1) The safety and security of the civil air transportation system is critical to the United States' security and its national defense.

(2) A safe and secure United States civil air transportation system is essential to the basic freedom of Americans to move in intrastate, interstate, and international transportation.

(3) The terrorist hijackings and crashes of passenger aircraft on September 11, 2001, converting civil aircraft into guided bombs for strikes against civilian and military targets requires the United States to change fundamentally the way it approaches the task of ensuring the safety and security of the civil air transportation system.

(4) The existing fragmentation of responsibility for that safety and security among government agencies and between government and nongovernment entities is inefficient and unacceptable in light of the hijackings and crashes on September 11, 2001.

(5) The General Accounting Office has recommended that security functions and security personnel at United States airports should become a Federal government responsibility.

(6) Although the number of Federal air marshals is classified, their presence on both international and domestic flights would have a deterrent effect on hijacking and would further bolster public confidence in the safety of air travel.

(7) The effectiveness of existing security measures, including employee background checks and passenger pre-screening, is impaired because of the inaccessibility of, or the failure to share information among, data bases maintained by different Federal and international agencies for criminal behavior or pertinent intelligence information.

SEC. 3. TRANSPORTATION SECURITY FUNCTION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 102 of title 49, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsections (d), (e), and (f) as subsections (e), (f), and (g); and

(2) by inserting after subsection (c) the following:

"(d) DEPUTY SECRETARY FOR TRANSPORTATION SECURITY.—

See amendments

tation or intrastate air transportation, in consultation with the Attorney General, the Secretary of Defense, and the heads of other appropriate Federal agencies and departments; and

"(E) shall actively cooperate and coordinate with the Attorney General, the Secretary of Defense, and the heads of other appropriate Federal agencies and departments with responsibilities for national security and criminal justice enforcement activities that are related to aviation security through the Aviation Security Coordination Council.".

(b) REVIEW AND DEVELOPMENT OF WAYS TO STRENGTHEN SECURITY.—Section 44932(c) of title 49, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking "x-ray" in paragraph (4);

(2) by striking "and" at the end of paragraph (4);

(3) by striking "passengers." in paragraph (5) and inserting "passengers;"; and

(4) by adding at the end the following:

"(6) to strengthen and enhance the ability to detect nonexplosive weapons, such as biological, chemical, or similar substances; and

"(7) to evaluate such additional measures as may be appropriate to enhance physical inspection of passengers, luggage, and cargo.".

(c) TRANSITION.—Until the Deputy Secretary for Transportation Security takes office, the functions of the Deputy Secretary that relate to aviation security shall be carried out by the Assistant Administrator for Civil Aviation Security of the Federal Aviation Administration.

See Amendments

SEC. 4. AVIATION SECURITY COORDINATION COUNCIL.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 44911 of title 49, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(f) AVIATION SECURITY COORDINATION COUNCIL.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—There is established an Aviation Security Coordination Council.

"(2) FUNCTION.—The Council shall work with the intelligence community to coordinate intelligence, security, and criminal enforcement activities affecting the safety and security of aviation at all United States airports and air navigation facilities involved in air transportation or intrastate air transportation.

"(3) CHAIR.—The Council shall be chaired by the Secretary of Transportation or the Secretary's designee.

"(4) MEMBERSHIP.—The members of the Council are:

"(A) The Secretary of Transportation, or the Secretary's designee.

"(B) The Attorney General, or the Attorney General's designee.

"(C) The Secretary of Defense, or the Secretary's designee.

"(D) The Secretary of the Treasury, or the Secretary's designee.

"(E) The Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, or the Director's designee.

"(F) The head, or an officer or employee designated by the head, of any other Federal agency the participation of which is determined by the Secretary of Transportation ~~in consultation with the Attorney General~~ to be appropriate.

"(g) CROSS-CHECKING DATA BASE INFORMATION.—The Secretary of Transportation, acting through the Aviation Security Coordination Council, shall—

"(1) explore the technical feasibility of developing a common database of individuals who may pose a threat to aviation or national security;

"(2) enter into memoranda of understanding with other Federal agencies to share or otherwise cross-check data on such individuals identified on Federal agency data bases, and may utilize other available data bases as necessary; and

"(3) evaluate and assess technologies in development or use at Federal departments, agencies, and instrumentalities that might be useful in improving the safety and security of aviation in the United States.".

(3) requiring that such flight deck doors remain locked while any such aircraft is in flight except when necessary to permit the flight deck crew access and egress;

(4) prohibit the possession of a key to any such flight deck door by any member of the flight crew who is not assigned to the flight deck; and

(5) take such other action, including modification of safety and security procedures, as may be necessary to ensure the safety and security of the aircraft.

(b) COMMUTER AIRCRAFT.—The Administrator ~~shall~~ The Secretary shall direct to investigate means of securing, to the greatest feasible extent, the flight deck of aircraft operating in air transportation or intrastate air transportation that do not have a rigid fixed door with a lock between the passenger compartment and the flight deck and issue such an order as the Administrator deems appropriate (without regard to the provisions of chapter 5 of title 5, United States Code) to ensure the inaccessibility, to the greatest extent feasible, of the flight deck while the aircraft is so engaged.

SEC. 6. DEPLOYMENT OF FEDERAL AIR MARSHALS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 44903(d) of title 49, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"The Secretary may place Federal air marshals on every scheduled passenger flight in air transportation and intrastate air transportation.".

(b) DEPLOYMENT.—Within 30 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Transportation, under the authority of subsections (d) and (e) of section 44903 of title 49, United States Code, shall—

(1) provide for deployment of Federal air marshals on flights in air transportation and intrastate air transportation;

(2) provide for appropriate background and fitness checks for candidates for appointment as Federal air marshals;

(3) provide for appropriate training, supervision, and equipment of Federal air marshals; and

(4) require air carriers to provide seating for Federal air marshals on any flight without regard to the availability of seats on that flight.

(c) INTERNATIONAL FLIGHTS.—The Secretary shall work with the International Civil Aviation Organization and with appropriate civil aviation authorities of foreign governments under section 44907 of title 49, United States Code, to address security concerns on flights by foreign air carriers to and from the United States.

(d) INTERIM MEASURES.—The Secretary may, after consultation with the heads of other Federal agencies and departments, use personnel from those agencies and departments, ~~on a reimbursable or nonreimbursable basis,~~ to provide air marshal service on domestic and international flights, and may use the authority provided by section 324 of title 49, United States Code, for such purpose.

(e) REPORTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Transportation shall submit the following reports in classified form, if necessary, to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure:

(A) Within 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act, an assessment of the program carried out under section 44903(d) of title 49, United States Code.

(B) Within 120 days after such date, an assessment of the effectiveness of the security screening process for carry-on baggage and checked baggage.

(C) Within 12 months after the date of enactment of this Act, an assessment of the safety and security-related training provided to flight and cabin crews.

(2) RECOMMENDATIONS.—The Secretary may submit, as part of any report under this subsection or separately, any recommendations the Secretary may have for improving the effectiveness of the Federal air marshal program or the security screening process.

(f) COOPERATION WITH OTHER AGENCIES.—The last sentence of section 106(m) of title 49, United States Code, is amended by striking "supplies and" and inserting "supplies, personnel, services, and".

SEC. 7. IMPROVED AIRPORT PERIMETER ACCESS SECURITY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 44903 of title 49, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(h) IMPROVED AIRPORT PERIMETER ACCESS SECURITY.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Transportation, in consultation with the airport operator and law enforcement authorities, may order the deployment of such personnel at any secure area of the airport as necessary to counter the risk of criminal violence, the risk of aircraft piracy at the airport, the risk to air carrier aircraft operations at the airport, or to meet national security concerns.

"(2) SECURITY OF AIRCRAFT AND GROUND ACCESS TO SECURE AREAS.—In determining where to deploy such personnel, the Secretary shall consider the physical security needs of air traffic control facilities, parked aircraft, aircraft servicing equipment, aircraft supplies (including fuel), automobile parking facilities within airport perimeters or adjacent to secured facilities, and access and transition areas at airports served by other means of ground or water transportation. The Secretary of Transportation, after consultation with the Aviation Security Coordination Council, shall consider whether airport and air carrier personnel and other individuals with access to such areas should be screened to prevent individuals who present a risk to aviation security or national security from gaining access to such areas.

"(3) DEPLOYMENT OF FEDERAL LAW ENFORCEMENT PERSONNEL.—The Secretary of Transportation may enter into a memorandum of understanding or other agreement with the Attorney General or the head of any other appropriate Federal law enforcement agency to deploy Federal law enforcement personnel at an airport in order to meet aviation safety and security concerns.".

(b) SMALL AND MEDIUM AIRPORTS.—The Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration shall develop a plan to provide technical support to small and medium airports to enhance security operations, including screening operations, and to provide financial assistance to those airports to defray the costs of enhancing security.

see amendment

(c) CHEMICAL AND BIOLOGICAL WEAPON DETECTION.—Section 44903(c)(2)(C) of title 49, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(C) MAXIMUM USE OF CHEMICAL AND BIOLOGICAL WEAPON DETECTION EQUIPMENT.—The Secretary ~~of Transportation~~ shall require airports to maximize the use of technology and equipment that is designed to detect potential chemical or biological weapons.".

To the extent the Secretary deems appropriate,

(d) IMPROVEMENT OF SECURED-AREA ACCESS CONTROL.—Section 44903(g)(2) of title 49, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking "weaknesses by January 31, 2001;" in subparagraph (A) and inserting "weaknesses";

(2) by striking subparagraph (D) and inserting the following:

"(D) on an ongoing basis, assess and test for compliance with access control requirements, report annually findings of the assessments, and assess the effectiveness of penalties in ensuring compliance with security procedures and take any other appropriate enforcement actions when noncompliance is found;";

(3) by striking "program by January 31, 2001;" in subparagraph (F) and inserting "program;"; and

(4) by striking subparagraph (G) and inserting the following:

"(G) work with airport operators to strengthen access control points in secured areas (including air traffic control operations areas, maintenance areas, crew lounges, baggage handling areas, concessions, and catering delivery areas) to ensure the security of passengers and aircraft and consider the deployment of biometric or similar technologies that identify individuals based on unique personal characteristics.".

(e) EMPLOYMENT INVESTIGATIONS AND RESTRICTIONS.—Section 44903(c) of title 49, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(3) The Administrator ~~shall~~ may establish pilot programs in no fewer than 20 airports to test and evaluate new and emerging technology for providing access control and other security protections for closed or secure areas of the airports. Such technology may include biometric or other technology that ensures only authorized access to secure areas.".

(f) AIRPORT SECURITY AWARENESS PROGRAMS.—The Secretary of Transportation shall require air carriers and airports involved in air transportation or intrastate air transportation to develop security awareness programs for airport employees, ground crews, and other individuals employed at such airports.

SEC. 8. ENHANCED ANTI-HIJACKING TRAINING FOR FLIGHT CREWS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Transportation shall develop a ~~mandatory air carrier~~ program of training for flight and cabin crews of aircraft providing air transportation or intrastate air transportation in dealing with attempts to commit aircraft piracy (as defined in section 46502(a)(1)(A) of title 49, United States Code).

(b) NOTIFICATION PROCEDURES.—The Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration shall review the procedures by which cabin crews of aircraft can notify flight deck crews of security breaches and other emergencies.

SEC. 9. PASSENGER SCREENING.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 44901 of title 49, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 44901. Screening passengers and property

"(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Transportation ~~, in consultation with the Attorney General,~~ shall provide for the screening of all passengers and property, including United States mail, that will be carried aboard an aircraft in air transportation or intrastate air transportation. The screening shall take place before boarding and, except as provided in subsection (c), shall be carried out by Federal government personnel. In carrying out this subsection, the Secretary shall maximize the use of available nonintrusive and other inspection and detection technology that is approved by the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration for the purpose of screening passengers, baggage, or cargo.

"(b) DEPLOYMENT OF ARMED PERSONNEL.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Transportation, ~~in consultation with the Attorney General,~~ shall ~~order the deployment of~~ ensure that law enforcement personnel authorized to carry firearms are stationed at each airport security screening location to ensure passenger safety and national security.

"(2) MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS.—Except at airports required to enter into agreements under subsection (c), the Secretary shall order the deployment of at least 1 law enforcement officer at each airport security screening location. At the 100 largest airports in the United States, in terms of annual passenger enplanements for the most recent calendar year for which data are available, the Secretary shall order the deployment of additional law enforcement personnel at airport security screening locations if the Secretary determines that the additional deployment is necessary to ensure passenger safety and national security.".

"(c) SECURITY AT SMALL COMMUNITY AIRPORTS.—

"(1) PASSENGER SCREENING.—In carrying out subsection (a) and subsection (b)(1), the Secretary of Transportation, ~~with the approval of the Attorney General,~~ may require any nonhub airport (as defined in section 41731(a)(4)) or smaller airport with scheduled passenger operations to enter into an agreement under which screening of passengers and property will be carried out by qualified, trained State or local law enforcement personnel if—

"(A) the screening services are equivalent to the screening services that would be carried out by Federal personnel under subsection (a);

"(B) the training and evaluation of individuals conducting the screening or providing security services meets the standards set forth in section 44935 for training and evaluation of Federal personnel conducting screening or providing security services under subsection (a); and

"(C) the airport is reimbursed by the United States for the costs incurred in providing the required screening, training, and evaluation.

"(2) DETERMINATION OF LIMITED REQUIREMENTS.—The Secretary ~~, in consultation with the Attorney General,~~ may prescribe modified aviation security measures for a nonhub airport if the Secretary determines that specific security measures are not required at a nonhub airport at all hours of airport operation because of—

"(A) the types of aircraft that use the airport;

"(B) seasonal variations in air traffic and types of aircraft that use the airport; or

"(C) other factors that warrant modification of otherwise applicable security requirements.

"(3) ADDITIONAL FEDERAL SECURITY MEASURES.—At any airport required to enter into a reimbursement agreement under paragraph (1), the Secretary and the Attorney General—

"(A) may provide or require additional security measures;

"(B) may conduct random security inspections; and

"(C) may provide assistance to enhance airport security at that airport.

"(d) MANUAL PROCESS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator ~~shall~~ may require a manual process, at explosive detection system screening locations in airports where explosive detection equipment is underutilized, which will augment the Computer Assisted Passenger Prescreening

System by randomly selecting additional checked bags for screening so that a minimum number of bags, as prescribed by the Administrator, are examined.

"(2) LIMITATION ON STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Paragraph (1) shall not be construed to limit the ability of the Administrator to impose additional security measures when a specific threat warrants such additional measures.

"(3) MAXIMUM USE OF EXPLOSIVE DETECTION EQUIPMENT.—In prescribing the minimum number of bags to be examined under paragraph (1), the Administrator shall seek to maximize the use of the explosive detection equipment.

"(e) FLEXIBILITY OF ARRANGEMENTS.—In carrying out subsections (a), (b), and (c), the Secretary of Transportation may use memoranda of understanding or other agreements with the Attorney General or the heads of appropriate Federal law enforcement agencies covering the utilization and deployment of personnel of the Department of Justice or such other agencies.".

(b) DEPUTIZING OF STATE AND LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS.—Section 512 of the Wendell H. Ford Aviation Investment and Reform Act for the 21st Century is amended—

(1) by striking "purpose of" in subsection (b)(1)(A) and inserting "purposes of (i)"; and

(2) by striking "transportation;" in subsection (b)(1)(A) and inserting "transportation, and (ii) providing security screening services under section 44901(c) of title 49, United States Code;".

(c) TRANSITION.—The Secretary of Transportation shall complete the full implementation of section 44901 of title 49, United States Code, as amended by subsection (a), as soon as is practicable but in no event later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act. The Secretary may make or continue such arrangements, including arrangements under the authority of sections 40110 and 40111 of that title, for the screening of passengers and property under that section as the Secretary determines necessary pending full implementation of that section as so amended.

SEC. 10. TRAINING AND EMPLOYMENT OF SECURITY SCREENING PERSONNEL.

NOTE: The screener provisions fm p 22-30 are probably not implementable in the limited transition period.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 44935 of title 49, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsection (f) as subsection (i); and

(2) by striking subsection (e) and inserting the following:

"(1) TRAINING PROGRAM.—The Secretary of Transportation ~~, in consultation with the Attorney General,~~ shall establish a program for the hiring and training of security screening personnel.

"(2) HIRING.—

"(A) QUALIFICATIONS.—The Secretary shall establish, within 30 days after the date of enactment of the Aviation Security Act, qualification standards for individuals to be hired by the United States as security screening personnel. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, Those standards shall, at a minimum, require an individual—

"(i) to have a satisfactory or better score on a Federal security screening personnel selection examination;

"(ii) to have been a national of the United States, as defined in section 101(a)(22) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(22)), for a minimum of 5 consecutive years;

"(iii) to have passed an examination for recent consumption of a controlled substance;

"(iv) to meet, at a minimum, the requirements set forth in subsection (f); and

"(v) to meet such other qualifications as the Secretary may establish.

"(B) BACKGROUND CHECKS.—The Secretary shall require that an individual to be hired as a security screener undergo an employment investigation (including a criminal history record check) under section 44936(a)(1). To the extent practicable, the background check shall be conducted before training.

"(C) DISQUALIFICATION OF INDIVIDUALS WHO PRESENT NATIONAL SECURITY RISKS.—The Secretary, in consultation with the heads of other appropriate Federal agencies, shall establish procedures, in addition to any background check conducted under section 44936, to ensure that no individual who presents a threat to national security is employed as a security screener.

"(D) The Secretary may impose additional requirements in the interests of security, as the Secretary deems appropriate.

"(3) EXAMINATION; REVIEW OF EXISTING RULES.—The Secretary shall develop a security screening personnel examination for use in determining the qualification of individuals seeking employment as security screening personnel. The Secretary shall also review, and revise as necessary, any standard, rule, or regulation governing the employment of individuals as security screening personnel.

"(f) EMPLOYMENT STANDARDS FOR SCREENING PERSONNEL.—

"(1) SCREENER REQUIREMENTS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, an individual may not be employed as a security screener unless that individual meets the following requirements:

"(A) The individual shall possess a high school diploma, a General Equivalency Diploma, or experience that the Secretary has determined to have equipped the individual to perform the duties of the position.

"(B) The individual shall possess basic aptitudes and physical abilities including color perception, visual and aural acuity, physical coordination, and motor skills to the following standards:

"(i) Screeners operating screening equipment shall be able to distinguish on the screening equipment monitor the appropriate imaging standard specified by the Secretary. Wherever the screening equipment system displays colors, the operator shall be able to perceive each color.

"(ii) Screeners operating any screening equipment shall be able to distinguish each color displayed on every type of screening equipment and explain what each color signifies.

"(iii) Screeners shall be able to hear and respond to the spoken voice and to audible alarms generated by screening equipment in an active checkpoint environment.

"(iv) Screeners performing physical searches or other related operations shall be able to efficiently and thoroughly manipulate and handle such baggage, containers, and other objects subject to security processing.

"(v) Screeners who perform pat-downs or hand-held metal detector searches of individuals shall have sufficient dexterity and capability to thoroughly conduct those procedures over a individual's entire body.

"(C) The individual shall be able to read, speak, and write English well enough to—

"(D) The individual shall have satisfactorily completed all initial, recurrent, and appropriate specialized training required by the security program, except as provided in paragraph (2).

"(2) EXCEPTIONS.—An individual who has not completed the training required by ~~paragraph~~ subsection (1) may be employed during the on-the-job portion of training to perform security functions if that individual—

"(A) is closely supervised; and

"(B) does not make independent judgments as to whether individuals or property may enter a sterile area or aircraft without further inspection.

"(3) REMEDIAL TRAINING.—No individual employed as a security screener may perform a screening function after that individual has failed an operational test related to that function until that individual has successfully completed the remedial training specified in the security program.

"(4) ANNUAL PROFICIENCY REVIEW.—The Secretary shall provide that an annual evaluation of each individual assigned screening duties is conducted and documented. An individual employed as a security screener may not continue to be employed in that capacity unless the evaluation demonstrates that the individual—

"(A) continues to meet all qualifications and standards required to perform a screening function;

"(B) has a satisfactory record of performance and attention to duty based on the standards and requirements in the security program; and

"(C) demonstrates the current knowledge and skills necessary to courteously, vigilantly, and effectively perform screening functions.

"(5) OPERATIONAL TESTING.—In addition to the annual proficiency review conducted under paragraph (4), the Secretary shall provide for the operational testing of such personnel.

"(g) TRAINING.—

"(1) USE OF OTHER AGENCIES.—The Secretary of Transportation shall enter into a memorandum of understanding or other arrangement with the Attorney General, or any other Federal agency or department with appropriate law enforcement responsibilities, to provide personnel, resources, or other forms of assistance in the training of security screening personnel.

"(2) TRAINING PLAN.—The Secretary shall, within 60 days after the date of enactment of the Aviation Security Act, develop a plan for the training of security screening personnel. The plan shall, at a minimum, require that before being employed as a security screener, an individual—

"(A) has completed 40 hours of classroom instruction or successfully completed a program that the Secretary determines will train individuals to a level of proficiency equivalent to the level that would be achieved by such classroom instruction;

"(B) has completed 60 hours of on-the-job instruction; and

"(C) has successfully completed an on-the-job training examination prescribed by the Secretary.

"(3) EQUIPMENT-SPECIFIC TRAINING.—An individual employed as a security screener may not use any security screening device or equipment in the scope of that individual's employment unless the individual has been trained on that device or equipment and has successfully completed a test on the use of the device or equipment.

"(h) TECHNOLOGICAL TRAINING.—The Secretary of Transportation shall require training to ensure that screeners are proficient in using the most up-to-date new technology and to ensure their proficiency in recognizing new threats and weapons. The Secretary shall make periodic assessments to determine if there are dual use items and inform security screening personnel of the existence of such items. Current lists of dual use items shall be part of the ongoing training for screeners. For purposes of this subsection, the term 'dual use' item means an item that may seem harmless but that may be used as a weapon.".

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Section 44936(a)(1)(A) is amended by inserting "as a security screener under section 44935(e) or a position" after "a position".

(2)Section 44936(b) of title 49, United States Code, is amended—

(A) by inserting "the Secretary," after "subsection," in paragraph (1); and

(B) by striking "An" in paragraph (3) and inserting "The Secretary, an".

(c) TRANSITION.—The Secretary of Transportation shall complete the full implementation of section 44935(e), (f), (g), and (h) of title 49, United States Code, as amended by subsection (a), as soon as is practicable. The Secretary may make or continue such arrangements for the training of security screeners under that section as the Secretary determines necessary pending full implementation of that section as so amended.

(d) EXPEDITED PERSONNEL PROCESS.—

(1) AUTHORIZATION OF EMPLOYMENT.—The Secretary of Transportation may appoint and fix the compensation of such a number of individuals as may be necessary to carry out section 44901 and 44903 of title 49, United States Code, in accordance with the provisions of part III of title 5, United States Code, without regard to any limitation on

(2) STRIKES PROHIBITED.—Section 7311(3) and section 7116(b)(7) of title 5, United States Code, apply to individuals employed as security screeners.

SEC. 11. SUSPENSION AND REMOVAL.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding other provision of law (specifically including section 7532 of title 5, United States Code), the Secretary of Transportation may suspend without pay an individual employed as a security screener under title 49, United States Code, when the Secretary considers that action necessary in the interests of national security or because the screener has failed to perform screening duties adequately. To the extent that the Secretary determines that the interests of national security permit, the suspended employee shall be notified of the reasons for the suspension. Within 30 days after the notification, the suspended employee is entitled to submit to the official designated by the Secretary statements or affidavits to show why he should be restored to duty.

(b) Subject to subsection (c) of this section, the Secretary may remove an employee suspended under subsection (a) of this section when, after such investigation and review as he considers necessary, the Secretary determines that removal is necessary or advisable in the interests of national security or because the screener has failed to perform screening duties adequately. The determination of the Secretary is final.

(c) An employee suspended under subsection (a) of this section who--

(1) had a permanent or indefinite appointment for at least 3 years;

(2) has completed his probationary or trial period; and

(3) is a citizen of the United States; is entitled, after suspension and before removal, to—

(A) a written statement of the charges against him, within 30 days after suspension, which may be amended within 30 days thereafter and which shall be stated as specifically as security considerations permit;

(B) an opportunity within 30 days thereafter, plus an additional 30 days if the charges are amended, to answer the charges and submit affidavits;

(C) a hearing, at the request of the employee, by a Department of Transportation authority duly constituted for this purpose;

REV_00132811

(D) a review of his case by the Secretary or his designee, before a decision adverse to the employee is made final; and

(E) a written statement of the decision of the Secretary.

SEC. 12. RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT.

Section 44912(b)(1) of title 49, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking "complete an intensive review of" and inserting "periodically review";

(a) PROHIBITION.—Chapter 449 of title 49, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"§ 44939. Training to operate certain aircraft

"(a) PROHIBITION.—No person subject to regulation under this part may provide training in the operation of any aircraft rated over 12,500 pounds to any alien (or other individual specified by the Secretary of Transportation under this section) within the United States unless the Secretary of Transportation issues to that person a certification of the completion of a background investigation of the alien under subsection (b).

"(b) INVESTIGATION.—

"(1) REQUEST.—Upon the joint request of a person subject to regulation under this part and an alien (or individual specified by the Secretary) for the purposes of this section, the Secretary shall—

"(A) carry out a background investigation of the alien or individual; and

"(B) upon completing the investigation, issue a certification of the completion of the investigation to the person.

"(2) SCOPE.—A background investigation of an alien or individual under this subsection shall consist of the following:

"(A) A determination of whether there is a record of a criminal history for the alien or individual and, if so, a review of the record.

"(B) A determination of the status of the alien under the immigration laws of the United States.

"(C) A determination of whether the alien or individual presents a national security risk to the United States.

"(c) SANCTIONS.—A person who violates subsection (a) shall be subject to administrative sanctions that the Secretary of Transportation shall prescribe in regulations. The sanctions may include suspension and revocation of licenses and certificates issued under this part.

"(d) COVERED TRAINING.—For the purposes of subsection (a), training includes in-flight training, training in a simulator, and any other form or aspect of training.

"(e) REPORTING REQUIREMENT.—Each person subject to regulation under this part that provides training in the operation of any ~~jet propelled~~ rated over 12,500 pounds aircraft shall report to the Secretary of Transportation, at such time and in such manner as the Secretary may prescribe, the name, address, and such other information as the Secretary may require concerning—

"(1) each alien to whom such training is provided; and

"(2) every other individual to whom such training is provided as the Secretary may require.

"(f) ALIEN DEFINED.—In this section, the term 'alien' has the meaning given the term in section 101(a)(3) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(3)).".

"44939. Training of aliens to operate jet-propelled aircraft.".

(c) INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION.—The Secretary of Transportation, in consultation with the Secretary of State, shall work with the International Civil Aviation Organization and the civil aviation authorities of other countries to improve international aviation security through screening programs for flight instruction candidates.

SEC. 14. REPORT TO CONGRESS ON SECURITY.

Within 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, ~~the Attorney General and~~ the Secretary of Transportation shall transmit a report to the Congress containing ~~their joint~~ recommendations on additional measures for the Federal government to address transportation security functions.

SEC. 15. GENERAL AVIATION AND AIR CHARTERS.

The Secretary of Transportation shall submit to the Congress within 3 months after the date of enactment of this Act a report on how to improve security with respect to general aviation and air charter operations in the United States.

SEC. 16. SECURITY FUNDING.

(a) USER FEE FOR SECURITY SERVICES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 481 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"§ 48114. User fee for security services charge

"(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Transportation shall collect a user fee from air carriers. Amounts collected under this section shall be treated as offsetting collections to offset the costs of providing aviation security services to air carriers. The amounts collected shall be immediately available to the Secretary for obligation and expenditure for its activities, and shall remain available in a revolving fund, to be established by the Secretary, until expended.

"(b) AMOUNT OF FEE.—Air carriers shall pay $2.50 for each passenger enplanement, adjusted annually to reflect changes in the consumer price index.".

(2) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter 481 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"48114. User fee for security services".

(3) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by paragraph (1) shall apply with respect to transportation beginning after the date which is 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

(b) SPECIFIC AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Part C of subtitle VII of title 49, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

Lott's Push for Judges Imperils Partisan Truce

By Paul Kane
Roll Call
Thursday, October 4, 2001

Revisiting a pre-Sept. 11 strategy, Senate Republicans plan to block and delay the appropriations process until they get solid guarantees that the Democratic majority will begin to confirm more judicial nominees.

Senate GOP leaders acknowledge this tactic may slow the appropriations process during a period of otherwise unprecedented bipartisanship, but contend that they have no other means of forcing Democrats to confirm more Bush administration judicial nominees. The move appears to have at least the tacit blessing of the White House.

"If they don't approve a significant number of them, it's going to be hard to get those appropriations bills moving," said Senate Minority Leader Trent Lott (R-Miss.). "I'm going to assume that they are going to move them, so we won't have to resort to any extraordinary measures. If they don't, we will have to." Democrats contend Lott's approach is unreasonable, considering that Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.) has focused almost entirely on anti-terrorism legislation since terrorists crashed airplanes into the World Trade Center and the Pentagon.

REV_00132829

"We're doing the best we can on nominations," said Majority Whip Harry Reid (D-Nev.). "It's not as if Senator Leahy hasn't been busy."

Reid, who has been a key player in negotiating with Republicans on nominations, said Senate Democrats have gone out of their way to quickly approve "scores" of President Bush's nominees to key security-related posts since the attacks.

Noting that Leahy was holding a hearing today on five more judicial nominees, aides to the Judiciary chairman and Senate Majority Leader Thomas Daschle (D-S.D.) said the process is clearly moving forward again.

Any delays in approving the 13 appropriations bills would only hinder Congress' ability to meet the Oct. 16 deadline for the expiration of the current continuing resolution funding the federal government and jeopardize the goal for a late October adjournment, Daschle warned Wednesday. "We have 13 bills to go and 13 days to do them."

Republicans claim that while Democrats have helped move many key agency nominees in the weeks since the attacks, they have been slow to act on individuals nominated to the bench. Moreover, in the wake of the attacks and the new anti-terrorism laws likely to be passed in the coming weeks, Senate Republicans believe they have gained political leverage in forcing Democrats to quickly move more judges.

With 107 vacancies on the federal bench, Lott and Republicans are confident they can make the argument that new investigative powers to intercede against potential terrorists will be weakened because there won't be enough federal judges to approve warrants to execute searches.

"If we don't have the third branch of government staffed, we're all in trouble," said Sen. Orrin Hatch (R-Utah), ranking member of Judiciary.

In the weeks after Democrats assumed the majority in the summer, Republicans employed a similar strategy of blocking Daschle and Reid's attempts to move to appropriations until they allowed votes on agency nominations, a strategy GOP aides believe resulted in the confirmation of dozens of agency appointees.

Shortly after Labor Day, Republicans signaled they were ready to adopt the same tactic in an effort to secure more confirmations of judicial nominees, who they felt were being stonewalled in Judiciary because of their conservative leanings.

However, Sept. 11 ushered in what some consider a remarkable run of comity that has helped pave the way for almost unanimous passage of several bills aimed at dealing with the crisis.

This week, though, Lott decided to return to the confrontational approach to nominees, and a Bush official said the White House "appreciates" the strategy. Bush, however, is not expected to have a high profile on the issue.

REV_00132830

Aides and Senators say the decision to go forward with the strategy rests almost entirely with Lott, who is not expected to rely on deputies such as Sen. Larry Craig (R-Idaho) and Sen. Jon Kyl (R-Ariz.) to make the objections to Daschle's attempts to bring up appropriations.

Asked where the decisions were coming from, Craig said, "From the top - above my pay grade."

Some Republicans have their doubts about the strategy.

Sen. Ted Stevens (R-Alaska), ranking member on Appropriations, said he agreed with GOP leaders that there has been a "severe delay" in getting judicial nominations approved, but questioned the amount of political pressure that could be applied to Judiciary members, whose interests aren't necessarily the same as those of appropriators.

"I don't think there is any leverage. They're not interested in appropriations," Stevens said. "I don't agree with [the strategy], but it's going to happen."

Another GOP leadership aide predicted the new offensive "may not prove as fruitful as they would like" and suggested that the issue would end up being settled through a private, diplomatic set of negotiations between Reid and one of Lott's deputies.

Democrats say a more partisan approach to the issue isn't likely to succeed. The Senate has already confirmed three circuit court judges, as many as then-President Clinton had on the bench in his first year, and Democrats expect to approve a few more circuit-level judges before adjournment. In his first year in office, in 1989, President George H.W. Bush had five circuit court judges approved.

Leahy has taken an almost personal offense to Republicans who have questioned his pace in confirming judges. He wasn't able to hold any judicial nomination hearings until early July, after the GOP had put up a four-week fight over the reorganization of committees when Democrats claimed the majority in early June.

The Vermont Democrat then held hearings and allowed for the confirmation of FBI Director Robert Mueller within weeks of his nomination, and also allowed for speedy confirmations of the new directors of the Immigration and Naturalization Service and the U.S. Marshals Service, as well as 12 U.S. attorneys.

Within days of a personal request from Lott, Leahy held a hearing for a Mississippi nominee to the district court. And in a recent floor speech, Leahy said in the past three weeks, he has given "virtually undivided attention" to the anti-terrorism package.

"It's been anything but a typical year, but despite that, the committee's been handling nominees a lot faster than Republicans ever did with Democratic nominees," said David Carle, Leahy's spokesman.

One senior GOP leadership aide said Republicans would be content if the chairman simply offered a guarantee to start holding more hearings, possibly doubling up on the number of circuit court nominees at each hearing or holding more hearings each week.

Of the 49 pending nominees, GOP aides said 28 have received their ratings from the American Bar Association, with half of those earning what legal experts call the "gold standard" - meaning a majority of the ABA board rated the candidate as "well qualified."

GOP aides say they hope to make Democrats appear to be the ones playing petty politics over judgeships.

"We have some critical needs that have to be filled," said the administration official. "I don't think it's dangerous partisanship to say we want judges to be given fair consideration."

Grassley: Suspect Underscores Need for Confirmation

The Associated Press
Tuesday, October 2, 2001

The arrest of a man in Cedar Rapids in connection with a federal terrorism investigation underscores the need for Senate confirmation of key law enforcement and judicial appointment, U.S. Sen. Charles Grassley said Tuesday.

"As we work to fight terrorism, it is imperative that key federal law enforcement and judicial vacancies are filled so that the U.S. Attorneys offices and federal courts can function at full capacity," Grassley said. Grassley released a letter he sent Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy urging quick action on appointments. He argued that 35 U.S. Attorneys and 51 federal judges await confirmation.

In Iowa, there are four appointments which have been made, with confirmation awaiting. Chuck Larson Sr. was named U.S. Attorney for the Northern District, Steve Colloton was named U.S. Attorney for the Southern District, James Gritzner, of West Des Moines, has been named to a district judge post and District Judge Michael Melloy, of Cedar Rapids, has been appointed to the Eightth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Sen. Ted Stevens (R-Alaska), ranking member on Appropriations, said he agreed with GOP leaders that there has been a "severe delay" in getting judicial nominations approved, but questioned the amount of political pressure that could be applied to Judiciary members, whose interests aren't necessarily the same as those of appropriators.

"I don't think there is any leverage. They're not interested in appropriations," Stevens said. "I don't agree with [the strategy], but it's going to happen."

Another GOP leadership aide predicted the new offensive "may not prove as fruitful as they would like" and suggested that the issue would end up being settled through a private, diplomatic set of negotiations between Reid and one of Lott's deputies.

Democrats say a more partisan approach to the issue isn't likely to succeed. The Senate has already confirmed three circuit court judges, as many as then-President Clinton had on the bench in his first year, and Democrats expect to approve a few more circuit-level judges before adjournment. In his first year in office, in 1989, President George H.W. Bush had five circuit court judges approved.

Leahy has taken an almost personal offense to Republicans who have questioned his pace in confirming judges. He wasn't able to hold any judicial nomination hearings until early July, after the GOP had put up a four-week fight over the reorganization of committees when Democrats claimed the majority in early June.

The Vermont Democrat then held hearings and allowed for the confirmation of FBI Director Robert Mueller within weeks of his nomination, and also allowed for speedy confirmations of the new directors of the Immigration and Naturalization Service and the U.S. Marshals Service, as well as 12 U.S. attorneys.

Within days of a personal request from Lott, Leahy held a hearing for a Mississippi nominee to the district court. And in a recent floor speech, Leahy said in the past three weeks, he has given "virtually undivided attention" to the anti-terrorism package.

"It's been anything but a typical year, but despite that, the committee's been handling nominees a lot faster than Republicans ever did with Democratic nominees," said David Carle, Leahy's spokesman.

One senior GOP leadership aide said Republicans would be content if the chairman simply offered a guarantee to start holding more hearings, possibly doubling up on the number of circuit court nominees at each hearing or holding more hearings each week.

Of the 49 pending nominees, GOP aides said 28 have received their ratings from the American Bar Association, with half of those earning what legal experts call the "gold standard" - meaning a majority of the ABA board rated the candidate as "well qualified."

GOP aides say they hope to make Democrats appear to be the ones playing petty politics over judgeships.

"We have some critical needs that have to be filled," said the administration official. "I don't think it's dangerous partisanship to say we want judges to be given fair consideration."

Grassley: Suspect Underscores Need for Confirmation

The Associated Press
Tuesday, October 2, 2001

The arrest of a man in Cedar Rapids in connection with a federal terrorism investigation underscores the need for Senate confirmation of key law enforcement and judicial appointment, U.S. Sen. Charles Grassley said Tuesday.

"As we work to fight terrorism, it is imperative that key federal law enforcement and judicial vacancies are filled so that the U.S. Attorneys offices and federal courts can function at full capacity," Grassley said. Grassley released a letter he sent Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy urging quick action on appointments. He argued that 35 U.S. Attorneys and 51 federal judges await confirmation.

In Iowa, there are four appointments which have been made, with confirmation awaiting. Chuck Larson Sr. was named U.S. Attorney for the Northern District, Steve Colloton was named U.S. Attorney for the Southern District, James Gritzner, of West Des Moines, has been named to a district judge post and District Judge Michael Melloy, of Cedar Rapids, has been appointed to the Eightth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Administration's Anti-Terrorism Proposals

The Administration's proposed legislation represents a measured, careful, responsible, and constitutional approach to the threat of terrorist activities conducted in the United States and directed against United States citizens. The proposed legislation seeks to enhance the government's ability both (i) to detect and prevent terrorist acts; and (ii) for those terrorists who are brought to justice through a criminal process rather than a military process, to severely punish terrorists and those who support and harbor them.

- The Administration's primary legislative proposals seek to achieve four main goals:

  - First, the legislation would ensure that information that is important to both intelligence and criminal investigations can be easily shared so that vital information is available to all relevant federal agencies. The legislation will begin to break down the walls between law enforcement and intelligence agencies and thereby help both to prevent terrorist acts before they happen and to severely punish terrorists and those who harbor and support terrorists.

  - Second, the legislation would update laws authorizing government surveillance. These laws were enacted decades ago by Congress in an era of rotary telephones. These laws must be updated to account for e-mail, Internet usage, cellular phones, and other forms of modern communication.

    - The government is currently fighting a modern war -- a war that threatens our people and our way of life -- with antique weapons. Terrorists are taking advantage by using the Internet, e-mail, and multiple cellular telephones to escape and evade detection by United States agents.

    - The proposed legislation does not purport to change the legal standards that govern when and under what circumstances the government can seek such information. Rather, the proposed legislation merely seeks to ensure that the same legal standards that govern wiretaps on telephones, for example, also apply to modern forms of communication such as e-mail.

    - Consistent with the Constitution, the Administration believes that the law of search and surveillance should be technology neutral. The government's ability to detect and prevent crime should not depend on the technology used by the suspect. To do otherwise is a prescription for failure.

  - Third, the legislation would ensure that certain categories of federal search warrants and surveillance orders are valid throughout the United States so that federal prosecutors and federal agents need not pointlessly seek re-authorization in multiple districts throughout the country. Eliminating these kinds of administrative burdens, which serve no discernible purpose, will allow federal agents to respond rapidly in fast-moving intelligence and criminal investigations so that agents can track and follow potential terrorists.

- Fourth, the legislation would establish tough new penalties and sanctions on terrorists and those who harbor and support terrorists. In many instances, these changes would simply ensure that terrorism offenses are subject to the same kinds of penalties as other serious criminal offenses, such as drug trafficking.

    - For example, the proposed legislation would:
        - impose new penalties for possession of biological weapons;
        - enhance the government's ability to seize assets of terrorists;
        - assist the government's ability to exclude and remove from the United States both terrorists and those who support and harbor terrorists;
        - extend the statute of limitations on terrorist crimes; and
        - ensure lengthy sentences for terrorist crimes, including on those who harbor and support terrorists.

PARTISAN SPARRING OVER JUDICIAL NOMINEES RESUMES

By Emily Pierce and Jennifer A. Dlouhy, CQ Staff Writer

Oct. 4, 2001 - Amid fraying tempers, Senate leaders were working Thursday to resolve an impasse between Democrats and Republicans over judicial nominations and the floor schedule for the next few weeks.

A truce was called on nominations shortly after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, but now Senate Republicans have resumed their tactic of blocking appropriations bills in an effort to win floor consideration of President Bush's judicial nominees.

When Majority Whip Harry Reid, Nev., tried to call up the foreign operations (HR 2506) and agriculture (HR 2330) spending bills Thursday morning, Republicans objected and argued that not enough progress has been made on 49 judicial nominations sent up by Bush.

Majority Leader Tom Daschle, S.D., chided Republicans for what he called "a pattern developing" of "obstructionism." He cited the delay in passage of the defense authorization bill (S 1438) that arose when James M. Inhofe, R-Okla., tried to force Daschle to schedule an energy policy debate, as well as GOP objections to proceeding to the aviation security bill (S 1447) on Wednesday and to the foreign operations spending measure Thursday.

"Three filibusters, three critical bills, (is) obstruction in, I believe, the most harmful way as we try to address this emergency agenda," Daschle said.

Republicans responded angrily. "I'm saying to Tom at this time, shame on you, Tom Daschle," said GOP Policy Committee Chairman Larry E. Craig, R-Idaho.

Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., said the backlog of judges is significant nationwide, and has thrown some districts into "emergency" status. "It's been painfully slow," he said.

Reid and Minority Whip Don Nickles, Okla., were working to devise a schedule for committee consideration of several judicial nominees, but no deal was reached on scope or timing.

Judiciary Committee ranking Republican Orrin G. Hatch, Utah, said only six judges have been confirmed since Democrats took over the Senate in June. "I know there's a lot of irritation. ... If we don't do something about judges, we're really putting this country at jeopardy."

The committee approved two judges Thursday morning in a hearing off the Senate floor -- Barrington Parker Jr. to be U.S. Circuit Court Judge for the Second Circuit, and Michael P. Mills to be District Court Judge for the Northern District of Mississippi. The panel also held a sparsely attended hearing on five other judicial nominees Thursday afternoon.

At the hearing, Chairman Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., observed that a Republican objection held up action on Edith Brown Clement from Louisiana, nominated to be Circuit Judge for the Fifth Circuit. She was one of the first nominees sent to the committee.

"We have already confirmed since July as many Court of Appeals nominees as were reported during the first year of the Clinton Administration, and we have reported as many such nominees as were reported by this committee all last year," Leahy said in a statement.

By the end of his first year in office, Clinton had won confirmation of 27 judges. Bush's father, President George Bush, had won 15 (out of the 19 nominated). Former GOP President Ronald Reagan had won 41.

But Senate Democrats note that they have had control of the chamber for only four months and are acting as rapidly as possible to confirm judges and other nominees.

"I think it's unfortunate any bill is held up," Leahy said. "I'm not going to go any faster or any slower on judges" because of such actions.

Leahy also suggested that Republicans weren't as concerned about judgeships as they appeared. "I suspect that judges don't have anything to do with it. I suspect they just don't want to go to appropriations bills," he said.

Indeed, some Republican staffers acknowledged that their party was not quite ready to go forward on spending bills. "Nobody's really in an appropriations state of mind," said one GOP aide.

CEA has a different view on pricing than is inherent in the Treasury memo just sent. We attach the following for your consideration at today's meeting.

Pricing the Federal Excess Loss Coverage

The federal government should charge the insurance industry a "fair market price" for excess loss coverage. The price would be determined by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Rationale:

1. The purpose of pricing insurance is to provide proper incentives for loss mitigation activity. The magnitude of losses from terrorist activity is not fixed, but depend on the level of ex ante mitigation activity. Because individual economic actors can affect the loss distribution, it is important that they internalize the cost of their decisions. Charging them a fair price provides the right incentives. In the case of terrorism, mitigation activities could include such decisions as:
    - Investing in new security procedures
    - Investing in better data back-up systems to reduce business interruption
    - Reducing the spatial concentration of firm business activity
    - Locating future firm operations in areas that are less prone to terrorist attack
    - Focusing new construction on buildings that are less likely to be terrorist targets (e.g., smaller buildings)

2. These prices should be set ex ante rather than ex post for two reasons:
    - This is there is a credibility problem with ex post pricing. Actors will rationally expect that the government may not actually levy the charges after an incident. In other words, ex post pricing will is highly likely to reduce to "free coverage."
    - Even if the government could credibly commit to ex post pricing, it still would not get the incentives exactly right. The reason is that due to entry and exit from affected industries, the actors that would be levied ex post will not necessarily be the same actors who took the risks ex ante. For example, some firms could take a high level of risk, and then simply declare bankruptcy and default ex post.

How would the Treasury determine prices?

From the perspective of providing proper incentives, charging even an arbitrary cost-based price would be an improvement over a zero price, but using market signals would be even better. Obtaining market prices is a challenge because the reason for government intervention in the first place is that the private market does not have the capacity to absorb extremely large losses.

There are many potential mechanisms for determining the right price to charge, including:

1. Hiring a private sector actuarial firm to determine the actuarial fair price, and then adjusting this price to reflect standard underwriting costs for catastrophe insurance. (There is much data in the private market for catastrophe insurance with which to determine the adjustment factor.)
2. The government could offer to sell a small "slice" (e.g., 1-2%) of the excess loss to the private market. Example: The government then offers to the private market a securitized package along the lines of "1% of losses between $50 billion and $100 billion." Thus, the maximum exposure to the purchaser of this contract is $0.5 billion, and in expectation is much less. Such a package could be sold directly to a private actor (e.g., Berkshire Hathaway) and use that price as a basis for setting premiums.

3. The government could directly securitize a portion of the excess loss coverage through the use of Treasury-issued "cat bonds" or "cat call options." For example, the government could sell catastrophic option contracts that pay out when aggregate insured losses exceeding a certain amount. One type of contract is the Catastrophic Options contract that trades on the Chicago Board of Trade. The model for these types of contracts is already in place and could be quickly implemented.

A group is contemplating putting together (and seeking Government endorsement) of a foundation establishing a bounty on terrorists:

the purpose of this Foundation will be to accept contributions from individuals and entities worldwide to assist governments and law enforcement agencies to fight terrorism by developing financial resources capable of providing effective reward incentives for the capture of terrorists worldwide or for providing information leading directly to their capture.

This idea seems like a real loser to me. It may be that it could be done, but from a policy/legal policy standpoint, I would recommend keeping the administration away from it . Any thoughts?

Subject: World Against Terrorism Foundation

Chris:

Below is an email sent to me by Steve Leeds, an Atlanta attorney and close advisor to Senator Max Cleland. He is requesting a meeting to discuss with appropriate Administration officials.

Eric

We represent a group of Georgia businessmen in the formation of a tax-free foundation named The WAT Foundation. WAT stands for World Against Terrorism and the purpose of this Foundation will be to accept contributions from individuals and entities worldwide to assist governments and law enforcement agencies to fight terrorism by developing financial resources capable of providing effective reward incentives for the capture of terrorists worldwide or for providing information leading directly to their capture.

It is anticipated that the Foundation will raise hundreds of millions of dollars and that a significant portion of this "reward" money will come from average citizens who feel helpless in this "new type of war" but who otherwise want to "bear arms" in this fight.

While the local group will manage the day to day affairs of the Foundation, Bank of America will handle the banking and lockbox arrangement for the deposit and distribution of funds and Deloitte Touche will handle the accounting for the Foundation.

The organizers seek the approval and support of the Administration in this effort for 2 primary reasons. First, such is required for obtaining a 501(c)(3) designation as assisting the government in its efforts to eradicate terrorism. Secondly, given the efforts of the Administration, no action should be taken in conflict with the foreign policy of the United States in these efforts.

Once Administration support is received, an internationally recognized Board of Directors of approximately 8-10 will be solicited to set the parameters of the reward amounts and criteria in consultation with the Administration and Justice Department and such Board will have final say, again in consultation with the Executive branch, in approval of disbursement of the rewards. While no people have been approached, it is anticipated individuals of the stature of Presidents Carter and Bush and former Senators like Sam Nunn would be ideal.

We would appreciate and welcome an opportunity to meet with representatives of the Administration in Washington as soon as possible to initiate this endeavor and assist in expediting eradication of terrorism and achieving justice for the horrific acts of September 11.

Thank you
Steve Leeds

All,

For your viewing pleasure, enclosed are current versions of the House and Senate Bills, a revised draft side-by-side analysis of the bills by DoJ, and a side-by-side analysis of the immigration provisions by George Fishman of House Judiciary. Please note that we have structured the DoJ chart based on the numeration in the Senate version of the bill for convenience only; the structure reflects no prejudice or preference of the Administration for either bill. Have a good evening, and happy Columbus Day.

Senate and House Bill Comparison

Senate Bill Provision No.	Senate Bill Description	Corresponding House Bill No.	Differences from Senate Bill	Notes
2	Construction and severability clause	2	Same.
101	Establishes a fund to reimburse DOJ components for costs incurred to rebuild facilities, investigate and prosecute terrorism, and to reimburse other Federal agencies for detaining individuals in foreign countries accused of terrorist acts.	None
102	Sense of Congress condemning discrimination against Arab and Muslim Americans	None
103	Authorizes $200M for FY 2002, 2003 and 2004 for the FBI Technical Support Center (established by AEDPA)	None
104	Broadens Attorney General's authority to request the Secretary of Defense to support DOJ activities in emergency situations involving weapons of mass destruction	None
105	Directs the Secret Service to develop a national network of electronic crime task forces modeled on the New York task force	None
201	Plain Language Description Adds terrorism statutes as Title III predicate offenses, includes chemical weapons offenses under 18 U.S.C. 229. Technical Language Description Amends 18 U.S.C. 2516(1), which lists predicate offenses for electronic	N/A	No corresponding provision.

	surveillance orders under Title III, by adding 18 U.S.C. 229 (relating to chemical weapons) and 18 U.S.C. 2332, 2332a, 2332b, 2332d (relating to the use of weapons of mass destruction, acts of terrorism transcending national boundaries, and engaging in financial transactions with countries supporting international terrorism) and 18 U.S.C. 2339A or 2339B (providing material support or resources to terrorists or designated terrorist organizations).
202	Plain Language Description Allows voice wiretaps in computer hacking investigations. Technical Language Description Adds Section 1030 to list of offenses in 18 USC 2516(1).	None.
203(a)	Permits (without court order) sharing of grand jury information regarding foreign intelligence, counterintelligence, and foreign intelligence information with federal law-enforcement, intelligence, protective, immigration, national defense and national security personnel	353	Requires court order. Subject to sunset.
203(b)	Sharing of wiretap information regarding foreign intelligence and counterintelligence (Under NSA) and foreign intelligence information (as defined) with federal law-enforcement, intelligence, protective, immigration, national defense and national security personnel	103	limited to "foreign intelligence information" under FISA
203(c)	Requires AG to establish procedure for information sharing in 203(a) and (b)	N/A	No comparable provision

203(d)	Permits sharing of information regarding foreign intelligence, counterintelligence, and foreign intelligence information with federal law-enforcement, intelligence, protective, immigration, national defense and national security personnel notwithstanding other law	154	Essentially the same coverage; subject to sunset provision
204	Plain Language Description Assures that foreign intelligence gathering authorities are not disrupted by changes to pen/trap statute Technical: amends 2511(2)(f) to exempt out chapter 121 (the pen/trap statute)	104	Same. House subject to sunset provision.
205	Employment of translators by the FBI	None
206	Allows court to authorize roving surveillance where court finds that the actions of the target may have effect of thwarting the identification of a target.	152	Same. Subject to sunset.
207	Initial authorization for surveillance and search of officers/employees of foreign powers changed to 120 days; can be extended for one year period. All other searches authorized for 90 day period.	151	Surveillance and search of officers/ employees of foreign powers can be authorized for one year. All other searches authorized for 90 day period/ authorization. Subject to sunset.
208	Increases the number of judges on the FISA Court to 11, no less than 3 of whom must live within 20 miles of Washington, D.C.	N/A	N/A
209	Plain Language Description Allows acquisition of voice mail stored with a third party provider to be obtained with a search warrant, rather than a wiretap order. Technical: strikes stored voice from	102	Same. Subject to sunset definition of "wire communications" and expands provisions for stored electronic communications to include stored voice.

210	Plain Language Description *S*peeds investigations by allowing investigators to obtain via subpoena a slightly broader class of records to identify computer criminals. Technical: broadens categories of information related to electronic communications obtainable under 2703(c)(1)(C).	107	Same, except for the way in which the subdivisions are labeled.

211	Plain Language Description Clarifies that statutes governing telephone and Internet communications (and not the burdensome provisions of the cable act) apply where cable companies are providing Internet or telephone service. Technical: creates an exception to 47 USC 551 (the "Cable Act") for voluntary or obligatory disclosure of communications and records of communications under the wiretap statute, the pen/trap statute, and ECPA.	109	Plain Language Description House bill attempts to achieve the same goal as Senate bill, but fails to clarify the law by introducing an ambiguous term. Technical: House bill (1) uses the undefined term "cable viewing activity," which could include viewing of web pages or viewing "streaming video" over the Internet; and (2) references "Section 631(a)" when correct citation is "Section 631".
212	Plain Language Description (1) allows providers to disclose communications and records of communications to protect life and limb; and (2) clarifies that victims of computer hacking can disclose non-content records to protect their rights and property. Technical: (1) adds amendment to 2702(b)(6) for emergency disclosure; and (2) makes a structural changes to 2702 and 2703 to broaden providers' ability to disclose records to the government.	110	Plain Language Description Identical, except that it includes a change to 2703 to confirm that providers have civil immunity for such disclosures to the government. Technical:
213	Amends 18 USC 3103a to permit delayed notice of search warrants; may seize property where is "reasonably necessary"	[No equivalent; corresponds to stricken section

		352 of Administration bill.]
214	To get pen-trap must certify that information likely to be obtained is relevant to an ongoing investigation to protect against IT or clandestine intelligence activities, provided that such investigation of a US Person is not conducted upon the basis of constitutionally protected activities.	155	To get pen-trap must certify that the information likely to be obtained from the telephone line to which the pen-trap is attached is relevant to ongoing FI or IT investigation being conducted by FBI under AG Guidelines.
215	Business records provision allows any designee of FBI director no lower than ASAC to apply to FISA court or a magistrate designated by Chief Justice for an ex parte order requiring production of any tangible things for an investigation to protect against IT or clandestine intel activities so long as the investigation is conducted under AG Guidelines under EO 12333 and for a US person that the investigation is not based on constitutionally protected behavior. Also requires semiannual reporting to Congress.	156	Same except that there is no reference to investigation based on constitutionally protected behavior or reporting requirement.
216	Plain Language Description Amends the pen/trap statute to (1) clearly apply to the Internet; and (2) allow for a single order valid across the country. Technical Language Description Changes words like "device" to "device or process" and includes all "dialing, routing, addressing, and signaling information"; and (2) allows federal courts to issue orders valid throughout the country	101	Plain: The two provisions are almost the same, except with the phrasing of the content exclusion. Technical: The Senate bill makes even more explicit that pen/trap orders cannot collect content. The house bill has amends 3124, the provider assistance requirement.
217	Plain: allows law enforcement to assist victims of crime in monitoring hackers	105	House bill contains an explicit immunity provision for providers.

	trespassing on their computers. Technical: amends the wiretap statute to allow persons acting under color of law to intercept "computer trespassers" with the consent of the computer owner.		Senate bill excludes from the definition of "computer trespasser" individuals who have "an existing contractual relationship" for access to all or part of the protected computer.
218	AG must certify that "a significant purpose" of the surveillance or search is foreign intelligence.	153	Same. Subject to sunset.
219	Allows search warrants in terrorism investigations to be obtained in any district "in which activities related to the terrorism may have occurred" and executable nationwide.	351	Same, except that search warrant has to be obtained in any district having "jurisdiction over the offense being investigated."
220	Plain: allows investigators to get order in local court for communications stored by providers anywhere in the country (court must have jurisdiction over the offense). Technical: amends 2703(a) to give nation-wide effect to search warrants for stored electronic communications.	108	Same.
222	Plain: Attempts to protect providers from having to develop or deploy new technology as a result of the Bill, and assure that they will be reasonably compensated. Technical: Adds free-standing provision to effectuate above intent. Compensation applies only to pen/trap amendments	160	House bill provision would apply to services. The Senate bill has a second sentence (redundant with current law) that assures providers reasonable compensation. Technical: The Senate bill does not include "services" in the first sentence, and the second sentence is not present in the House bill.

803, 809	(1) Amends list of terrorism crimes in 18 USC 2332b(g)(5)(B) – adds some but deletes or restricts others. (2) Makes conforming amendment to 2332b(f) to avoid reduction of A.G.'s primary investigative jurisdiction. (3) Adds definition of "domestic terrorism" to 18 USC 2331 and makes conforming change in existing definition of "international terrorism."	309	(1) Creates new 18 USC 25 defining "Federal terrorism offense," including terrorist motivation requirement in 25(1), and offense list in 25(2)-(5). (2) Substitutes "Federal terrorism offense" as defined in the new section 25 for the existing offense list in 18 USC 2332b(g)(5). (This affects the A.G.'s primary investigative jurisdiction under 2332b(f).) (3) Terrorism definitions differ – House definition of "domestic terrorism" includes apparent effect (not just intent).
804	Creates new harboring offense where perpetrator knows or has reasonable grounds to believe that the person harbored has committed or is about to commit an offense in a short list of highly serious terrorism crimes. Includes venue provision.	307	Creates harboring offense where perpetrator knows that the person harbored has committed or is about to commit an offense in the 25(2) list of terrorism crimes. (The provisions says "section 25(2) or this title," which would cover all title 18 offenses; presumably this is a drafting error and the intended reference is just the 25(2) offenses.) Includes explicit extraterritoriality and venue provisions.

	separate extraterritorial provision for persons accompanying the armed forces).
806	In material support of terrorists offense: (1) deletes "within the U.S." restriction, (2) adds some additional predicate offenses, (3) adds venue for prosecution in district of underlying offense, (4) adds "monetary instruments" and "expert advice or assistance" as types of prohibited support. Also, adds material support of foreign terrorist organizations as money laundering predicate.	306, 402	Does not delete "within the U. S." restriction. Amends material support predicates to be "any Federal terrorism offense" (as defined in section 309(a)) and all terrorism crimes in 25(2) list. Same as Senate bill on venue, "monetary instruments," "expert advice or assistance," and money laundering predicates.
806(a)(1)(A)	Strikes restriction of scope of the material support of terrorists offense to acts within the United States	354	General provision providing extraterritorial jurisdiction over any "Federal terrorism offense" (as defined in section 309(a)) or offense under the terrorism chapter of title 18.
806(b) (and also sections 809 and 814)	Makes 18 U.S.C. § 2339B a specified unlawful activity for money laundering offenses. Section 806(b) does this the same way as section 401 of the House bill; however, section 806(b) is redundant in the Senate bill because 809 accomplishes the same result by adding 18 U.S.C. § 2339B to 18 U.S.C. §2332b(g)(5)(B) which section 814 incorporates into 18 U.S.C. § 1961(1), all	401	House bill specifically adds 18 U.S.C.§2339B (material support to foreign terrorist organizations) as a new specified unlawful activity (SUA) for money laundering offenses at 18 U.S.C. § 1956(c)(7)(D)

808	Technical clarification avoiding conflict of Trade Sanctions Reform and Export Enhancement Act of 2000 with 18 U.S.C. §§ 2339A and 2339B.	404	Same
810	No limitation period for prosecution of terrorism crimes involving occurrence or foreseeable risk of death or serious injury.	301	No limitation period for prosecution of any "Federal terrorism offense" (as defined in section 309(a)) or for any offense in a list of major terrorism crimes. 15 year limitation period for prosecution of offenses in a list of lesser terrorism crimes.
811	Amends statutes defining various terrorism crimes to provide base maximum prison terms of at least 15 or 20 years, and up to life imprisonment were death results.	302	Authorizes imprisonment up to life for person convicted of any "Federal terrorism offense" (as defined in section 309(a)).
812	Amends statutes defining various terrorism crimes to add conspiracy language and provide increased conspiracy penalties.	303	Enacts general attempt and conspiracy provisions applicable to "Federal terrorism offense[s]" and to offenses listed in new 18 USC 25(2). (See section 309(a) of bill.) For the covered offenses, this consistently equalizes attempt and conspiracy penalties to the penalties for the object offense.

814	Adds terrorism crimes as RICO predicates (through cross-reference to 2332b(g)(5)(B) list as amended by section 809).	304	Adds as RICO predicates any "Federal terrorism offense" (as defined in section 309(a)) and all terrorism crimes in an extensive list.

Any provision of this Act held to be invalid or unenforceable by its terms, or as applied to any person or circumstance, shall be construed so as to give it the maximum effect permitted by law, unless such holding shall be one of utter invalidity or unenforceability, in which event such provision shall be deemed severable from this

Act and shall not affect the remainder thereof or the application of such provision to other persons not similarly situated or to other, dissimilar circumstances.

TITLE I—ENHANCING DOMESTIC SECURITY AGAINST TERRORISM

SEC. 101. COUNTERTERRORISM FUND.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT; AVAILABILITY.—There is hereby established in the Treasury of the United States a separate fund to be known as the "Counterterrorism Fund", amounts in which shall remain available without fiscal year limitation—

(1) to reimburse any Department of Justice component for any costs incurred in connection with—

(A) reestablishing the operational capability of an office or facility that has been damaged or destroyed as the result of any domestic or international terrorism incident;

(B) providing support to counter, investigate, or prosecute domestic or international terrorism, including, without limitation, paying rewards in connection with these activities; and

(C) conducting terrorism threat assessments of Federal agencies and their facilities; and

(2) to reimburse any department or agency of the Federal Government for any costs incurred in connection with detaining in foreign countries individuals accused of acts of terrorism that violate the laws of the United States.

(b) NO EFFECT ON PRIOR APPROPRIATIONS.—Subsection (a) shall not be construed to affect the amount or availability of any appropriation to the Counterterrorism Fund made before the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 102. SENSE OF CONGRESS CONDEMNING DISCRIMINATION AGAINST ARAB AND MUSLIM AMERICANS.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Arab Americans, Muslim Americans, and Americans from South Asia play a vital role in our Nation and are entitled to nothing less than the full rights of every American.

(2) The acts of violence that have been taken against Arab and Muslim Americans since the September 11, 2001, attacks against the United States should be and are condemned by all Americans who value freedom.

(3) The concept of individual responsibility for wrongdoing is sacrosanct in American society, and applies equally to all religious, racial, and ethnic groups.

(4) When American citizens commit acts of violence against those who are, or are perceived to be, of Arab or Muslim descent, they should be punished to the full extent of the law.

(5) Muslim Americans have become so fearful of harassment that many Muslim women are changing the way they dress to avoid becoming targets.

(6) Many Arab Americans and Muslim Americans have acted heroically during the attacks on the United States, including Mohammed Salman Hamdani, a 23-year-old New Yorker of Pakistani descent, who is believed to have gone to the World Trade Center to offer rescue assistance and is now missing.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the civil rights and civil liberties of all Americans, including Arab Americans, Muslim Americans, and Americans from South Asia, must be protected, and that every effort must be taken to preserve their safety;

(2) any acts of violence or discrimination against any Americans be condemned; and

(3) the Nation is called upon to recognize the patriotism of fellow citizens from all ethnic, racial, and religious backgrounds.

SEC. 103. INCREASED FUNDING FOR THE TECHNICAL SUPPORT CENTER AT THE FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION.

There are authorized to be appropriated for the Technical Support Center established in section 811 of the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 (Public Law 104–132) to help meet the demands for activities to combat terrorism and support and enhance the technical support and tactical operations of the FBI, $200,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2002, 2003, and 2004.

SEC. 104. REQUESTS FOR MILITARY ASSISTANCE TO ENFORCE PROHIBITION IN CERTAIN EMERGENCIES.

Section 2332e of title 18, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking ''2332c'' and inserting ''2332a''; and

(2) by striking ''chemical''.

SEC. 105. EXPANSION OF NATIONAL ELECTRONIC CRIME TASK FORCE INITIATIVE.

The Director of the United States Secret Service shall take appropriate actions to develop a national network of electronic crime task forces, based on the New York Electronic Crimes Task Force model, throughout the United States, for the purpose of preventing, detecting, and investigating various forms of electronic crimes, including potential terrorist attacks against critical infrastructure and financial payment systems.

SEC. 106. PRESIDENTIAL AUTHORITY.

Section 203 of the International Emergency Powers Act (50 U.S.C. 1702) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)(1)—

(A) at the end of subparagraph (A) (flush to that subparagraph), by striking "; and" and inserting a comma and the following:

"by any person, or with respect to any property, subject to the jurisdiction of the United States;";

(B) in subparagraph (B)—

(i) by inserting ", block during the pendency of an investigation" after "investigate"; and

(ii) by striking "interest;" and inserting "interest by any person, or with respect to any property, subject to the jurisdiction of the United States; and''; and

(C) by inserting at the end the following:

''(C) when the United States is engaged in armed hostilities or has been attacked by a foreign country or foreign nationals, confiscate any property, subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, of any foreign person, foreign organization, or foreign country that he determines has planned, authorized, aided, or engaged in such hostilities or attacks against the United States; and all right, title, and interest in any property so confiscated shall vest, when, as, and upon the terms directed by the President, in such agency or person as the President may designate from time to time, and upon such terms and conditions as the President may prescribe, such interest or property shall be held, used, administered, liquidated, sold, or otherwise dealt with in the interest of and for the benefit of the United States, and such designated agency or person may perform any and all acts incident to the accomplishment or furtherance of these purposes.''; and

(2) by inserting at the end the following:

"(c) CLASSIFIED INFORMATION.—In any judicial review of a determination made under this section, if the determination was based on classified information (as defined in section 1(a) of the Classified Information Procedures Act) such information may be submitted to the reviewing court ex parte and in camera. This subsection does not confer or imply any right to judicial review.".

TITLE II—ENHANCED SURVEILLANCE PROCEDURES

SEC. 201. AUTHORITY TO INTERCEPT WIRE, ORAL, AND ELECTRONIC COMMUNICATIONS RELATING TO TERRORISM.

Section 2516(1) of title 18, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by redesignating paragraph (p), as so redesignated by section 434(2) of the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 (Public Law 104–132; 110 Stat. 1274), as paragraph (r); and

(2) by inserting after paragraph (p), as so redesignated by section 201(3) of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (division C of Public Law 104–208; 110 Stat. 3009–565), the following new paragraph:

"(q) any criminal violation of section 229 (relating to chemical weapons); or sections 2332, 2332a, 2332b,

"(3) the term 'court of competent jurisdiction' has the meaning assigned by section 3127, and includes any Federal court within that definition, without geographic limitation.".

SEC. 221. TRADE SANCTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Trade Sanctions Reform and Export Enhancement Act of 2000 (Public Law 106–387; 114 Stat. 1549A–67) is amended—

(1) by amending section 904(2)(C) to read as follows:

"(C) used to facilitate the design, development, or production of chemical or biological weapons, missiles, or weapons of mass destruction.";

(2) in section 906(a)(1)—

(A) by inserting ", the Taliban or the territory of Afghanistan controlled by the Taliban," after "Cuba"; and

(B) by inserting ", or in the territory of Afghanistan controlled by the Taliban," after "within such country"; and

(3) in section 906(a)(2), by inserting ", or to any other entity in Syria or North Korea" after "Korea".

(b) APPLICATION OF THE TRADE SANCTIONS REFORM AND EXPORT ENHANCEMENT ACT.—Nothing in the Trade Sanctions Reform and Export Enhancement Act of 2000 shall limit the application or scope of any law establishing criminal or civil penalties, including any executive order or regulation promulgated pursuant to such laws (or similar or successor laws), for the unlawful export of any agricultural commodity, medicine, or medical device to—

(1) a foreign organization, group, or person designated pursuant to Executive Order 12947 of June 25, 1995;

(2) a Foreign Terrorist Organization pursuant to the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 (Public Law 104–132);

(3) a foreign organization, group, or person designated pursuant to Executive Order 13224 (September 23, 2001);

(4) any narcotics trafficking entity designated pursuant to Executive Order 12978 (October 21, 1995) or the Foreign Narcotics Kingpin Designation Act (Public Law 106–120); or

(5) any foreign organization, group, or persons subject to any restriction for its involvement in weapons of mass destruction or missile proliferation.

SEC. 222. ASSISTANCE TO LAW ENFORCEMENT AGENCIES.

Nothing in this Act shall impose any additional technical obligation or requirement on a provider of wire or electronic communication service or other person to furnish facilities or technical assistance. A provider of a wire or electronic communication service, landlord, custodian, or other person who furnishes facilities or technical assistance pursuant to section 216 shall be reasonably compensated for such reasonable expenditures incurred in providing such facilities or assistance.

TITLE III—INTERNATIONAL MONEY LAUNDERING ABATEMENT AND ANTI-TERRORIST FINANCING ACT OF 2001.

SEC. 301. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the "International Money Laundering Abatement and Anti-Terrorist Financing Act of 2001".

SEC. 302. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) money laundering, estimated by the International Monetary Fund to amount to between 2 and 5 percent of global gross domestic product, which is at least $600,000,000,000 annually, provides the financial fuel that permits transnational criminal enterprises to conduct and expand their operations to the detriment of the safety and security of American citizens;

(2) money laundering, and the defects in financial transparency on which money launderers rely, are critical to the financing of global terrorism and the provision of funds for terrorist attacks;

(3) money launderers subvert legitimate financial mechanisms and banking relationships by using them as protective covering for the movement of criminal proceeds and the financing of crime and terrorism, and, by so doing, can threaten the safety of United States citizens and undermine the integrity of United States financial institutions and of the global financial and trading systems upon which prosperity and growth depend;

(4) certain jurisdictions outside of the United States that offer ''offshore'' banking and related facilities designed to provide anonymity, coupled with special tax advantages and weak financial supervisory and enforcement regimes, provide essential tools to disguise ownership and movement of criminal funds, derived from, or used to commit, offenses ranging from narcotics trafficking, terrorism, arms smuggling, and trafficking in human beings, to financial frauds that prey on law-abiding citizens;

(5) transactions involving such offshore jurisdictions make it difficult for law enforcement officials and regulators to follow the trail of money earned by criminals, organized international criminal enterprises, and global terrorist organizations;

(6) correspondent banking facilities are one of the banking mechanisms susceptible in some circumstances to manipulation by foreign banks to permit the laundering of funds by hiding the identity of real parties in interest to financial transactions;

(7) private banking services can be susceptible to manipulation by money launderers, for example corrupt foreign government officials, particularly if those services include the creation of offshore accounts and facilities for large personal funds transfers to channel funds into accounts around the globe;

(8) United States anti-money laundering efforts are impeded by outmoded and inadequate statutory provisions that make investigations, prosecutions, and forfeitures more difficult, particularly in cases in which money laundering involves foreign persons, foreign banks, or foreign countries;

(9) the ability to mount effective counter-measures to international money launderers requires national, as well as bilateral and multilateral action, using tools specially designed for that effort; and

(10) the Basle Committee on Banking Regulation and Supervisory Practices and the Financial Action Task Force on Money Laundering, of both of which the United States is a member, have each adopted international anti-money laundering principles and recommendations.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this title are—

(1) to increase the strength of United States measures to prevent, detect, and prosecute international money laundering and the financing of terrorism;

(2) to ensure that—

(A) banking transactions and financial relationships and the conduct of such transactions and relationships, do not contravene the purposes of subchapter II of chapter 53 of title 31, United States Code, section 21 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, or chapter 2 of title I of Public Law 91–508 (84 Stat. 1116), or facilitate the evasion of any such provision; and

(B) the purposes of such provisions of law continue to be fulfilled, and that such provisions of law are effectively and efficiently administered;

(3) to strengthen the provisions put into place by the Money Laundering Control Act of 1986 (18 U.S.C. 981 note), especially with respect to crimes by non-United States nationals and foreign financial institutions;

(4) to provide a clear national mandate for subjecting to special scrutiny those foreign jurisdictions, financial institutions operating outside of the United States, and classes of international transactions that pose particular, identifiable opportunities for criminal abuse;

(5) to provide the Secretary of the Treasury (in this title referred to as the "Secretary") with broad discretion, subject to the safeguards provided by the Administrative Procedures Act under title 5, United States Code, to take measures tailored to the particular money laundering problems presented by specific foreign jurisdictions, financial institutions operating outside of the United States, and classes of international transactions;

(6) to ensure that the employment of such measures by the Secretary permits appropriate opportunity for comment by affected financial institutions;

(7) to provide guidance to domestic financial institutions on particular foreign jurisdictions, financial institutions operating outside of the United States, and classes of international transactions that are of primary money laundering concern to the United States Government;

(8) to ensure that the forfeiture of any assets in connection with the anti-terrorist efforts of the United States permits for adequate challenge consistent with providing due process rights;

(9) to clarify the terms of the safe harbor from civil liability for filing suspicious activity reports;

(10) to strengthen the authority of the Secretary to issue and administer geographic targeting orders, and to clarify that violations of such orders or any other requirement imposed under the authority contained in chapter 2 of title I of Public Law 91–508 and subchapters II and III of chapter 53 of title 31, United States Code, may result in criminal and civil penalties;

(11) to ensure that all appropriate elements of the financial services industry are subject to appropriate requirements to report potential money laundering transactions to proper authorities, and that jurisdictional disputes do not hinder examination of compliance by financial institutions with relevant reporting requirements;

(12) to fix responsibility for high level coordination of the anti-money laundering efforts of the Department of the Treasury;

(13) to strengthen the ability of financial institutions to maintain the integrity of their employee population; and

(14) to strengthen measures to prevent the use of the United States financial system for personal gain by corrupt foreign officials and to facilitate the repatriation of any stolen assets to the citizens of countries to whom such assets belong.

SEC. 303. 4-YEAR CONGRESSIONAL REVIEW-EXPEDITED CONSIDERATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Effective on and after the first day of fiscal year 2005, the provisions of this title and the amendments made by this title shall terminate if the Congress enacts a joint resolution, the text after the resolving clause of which is as follows: "That provisions of the International Money Laundering Abatement and Anti-Terrorist Financing Act of 2001, and the amendments made thereby, shall no longer have the force of law.".

(b) EXPEDITED CONSIDERATION.—Any joint resolution submitted pursuant to this section shall be considered in the Senate in accordance with the provisions of section 601(b) of the International Security Assistance and Arms Control Act of 1976. For the purpose of expediting the consideration and enactment of a joint resolution under this section, a motion to proceed to the consideration of any such joint resolution after it has been reported by the appropriate committee, shall be treated as highly privileged in the House of Representatives.

Subtitle A—International Counter Money Laundering and Related Measures

SEC. 311. SPECIAL MEASURES FOR JURISDICTIONS, FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, OR INTERNATIONAL TRANSACTIONS OF PRIMARY MONEY LAUNDERING CONCERN.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter II of chapter 53 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 5318 the following new section:

"SEC. 5318A. SPECIAL MEASURES FOR JURISDICTIONS, FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, OR INTERNATIONAL TRANSACTIONS OF PRIMARY MONEY LAUNDERING CONCERN.

"(a) INTERNATIONAL COUNTER-MONEY LAUNDERING REQUIREMENTS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may require domestic financial institutions and domestic financial agencies to take 1 or more of the special measures described in subsection (b) if the Secretary finds that reasonable grounds exist for concluding that a jurisdiction outside of the United States, 1 or more financial institutions operating outside of the United States, 1 or more classes of transactions within, or involving, a jurisdiction outside of the United States, or 1 or more types of accounts is of primary money laundering concern, in accordance with subsection (c).

"(2) FORM OF REQUIREMENT.—The special measures described in—

"(A) subsection (b) may be imposed in such sequence or combination as the Secretary shall determine;

"(B) paragraphs (1) through (4) of subsection (b) may be imposed by regulation, order, or otherwise as permitted by law; and

"(C) subsection (b)(5) may be imposed only by regulation.

"(3) DURATION OF ORDERS; RULEMAKING.—Any order by which a special measure described in paragraphs (1) through (4) of subsection (b) is imposed (other than an order described in section 5326)—

"(A) shall be issued together with a notice of proposed rulemaking relating to the imposition of such special measure; and

"(B) may not remain in effect for more than 120 days, except pursuant to a rule promulgated on or before the end of the 120-day period beginning on the date of issuance of such order.

"(4) PROCESS FOR SELECTING SPECIAL MEASURES.—In selecting which special measure or measures to take under this subsection, the Secretary—

"(A) shall consult with the Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, any other appropriate Federal banking agency, as defined in section 3 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the National Credit Union Administration Board, and in the sole discretion of the Secretary such other agencies and interested parties as the Secretary may find to be appropriate; and

"(B) shall consider—

"(i) whether similar action has been or is being taken by other nations or multilateral groups;

"(ii) whether the imposition of any particular special measure would create a significant competitive disadvantage, including any undue cost or burden associated with compliance, for financial institutions organized or licensed in the United States; and

"(iii) the extent to which the action or the timing of the action would have a significant adverse systemic impact on the international payment, clearance, and settlement system, or on legitimate business activities involving the particular jurisdiction, institution, or class of transactions.

"(5) NO LIMITATION ON OTHER AUTHORITY.—This section shall not be construed as superseding or otherwise restricting any other authority granted to the Secretary, or to any other agency, by this subchapter or otherwise.

"(b) SPECIAL MEASURES.—The special measures referred to in subsection (a), with respect to a jurisdiction outside of the United States, financial institution operating outside of the United States, class of transaction within, or involving, a jurisdiction outside of the United States, or 1 or more types of accounts are as follows:

"(1) RECORDKEEPING AND REPORTING OF CERTAIN FINANCIAL TRANSACTIONS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may require any domestic financial institution or domestic financial agency to maintain records, file reports, or both, concerning the aggregate amount of transactions, or concerning each transaction, with respect to a jurisdiction outside of the United States, 1 or more financial institutions operating outside of the United States, 1 or more classes of transactions within, or involving, a jurisdiction outside of the United States, or 1 or more types of accounts if the Secretary finds any such jurisdiction, institution, or class of transactions to be of primary money laundering concern.

"(B) FORM OF RECORDS AND REPORTS.—Such records and reports shall be made and retained at such time, in such manner, and for such period of time, as the Secretary shall determine, and shall include such information as the Secretary may determine, including—

"(i) the identity and address of the participants in a transaction or relationship, including the identity of the originator of any funds transfer;

"(ii) the legal capacity in which a participant in any transaction is acting;

"(iii) the identity of the beneficial owner of the funds involved in any transaction, in accordance with such procedures as the Secretary determines to be reasonable and practicable to obtain and retain the information; and

"(iv) a description of any transaction.

"(2) INFORMATION RELATING TO BENEFICIAL OWNERSHIP.—In addition to any other requirement under any other provision of law, the Secretary may require any domestic financial institution or domestic financial agency to take such steps as the Secretary may determine to be reasonable and practicable to obtain and retain information concerning the beneficial ownership of any account opened or maintained in the United States by a foreign person (other than a foreign entity whose shares are subject to public reporting requirements or are listed and traded on a regulated exchange or trading market), or a representative of such a foreign person, that involves a jurisdiction outside of the United States, 1 or more financial institutions operating outside of the United States, 1 or more classes of transactions within, or involving, a jurisdiction outside of the United States, or 1 or more types of accounts if the Secretary finds any such jurisdiction, institution, or transaction to be of primary money laundering concern.

"(3) INFORMATION RELATING TO CERTAIN PAYABLE-THROUGH ACCOUNTS.—If the Secretary finds a jurisdiction outside of the United States, 1 or more financial institutions operating outside of the United States, or 1 or more classes of transactions within, or involving, a jurisdiction outside of the United States to be of primary money laundering concern, the Secretary may require any domestic financial institution or domestic financial agency that opens or maintains a payable-through account in the United States for a foreign financial institution involving any such jurisdiction or any such financial institution operating outside of the United States, or a payable through account through which any such transaction may be conducted, as a condition of opening or maintaining such account—

"(A) to identify each customer (and representative of such customer) of such financial institution who is permitted to use, or whose transactions are routed through, such payable-through account; and

"(B) to obtain, with respect to each such customer (and each such representative), information that is substantially comparable to that which the depository institution obtains in the ordinary course of business with respect to its customers residing in the United States.

"(4) INFORMATION RELATING TO CERTAIN CORRESPONDENT ACCOUNTS.—If the Secretary finds a jurisdiction outside of the United States, 1 or more financial institutions operating outside of the United States, or 1 or more classes of transactions within, or involving, a jurisdiction outside of the United States to be of primary money laundering concern, the Secretary may require any domestic financial institution or domestic financial agency that opens or maintains a correspondent account in the United States for a foreign financial institution involving any such jurisdiction or any such financial institution operating outside of the United States, or a correspondent account through which any such transaction may be conducted, as a condition of opening or maintaining such account—

"(A) to identify each customer (and representative of such customer) of any such financial institution who is permitted to use, or whose transactions are routed through, such correspondent account; and

"(B) to obtain, with respect to each such customer (and each such representative), information that is substantially comparable to that which the depository institution obtains in the ordinary course of business with respect to its customers residing in the United States.

"(5) PROHIBITIONS OR CONDITIONS ON OPENING OR MAINTAINING CERTAIN CORRESPONDENT OR PAYABLE-THROUGH ACCOUNTS.—If the Secretary finds a jurisdiction outside of the United States, 1 or more financial institutions operating outside of the United States, or 1 or more classes of transactions within, or involving, a jurisdiction outside of the United States to be of primary money laundering concern, the Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of State, the Attorney General, and the Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, may prohibit, or impose conditions upon, the opening or maintaining in the United States of a correspondent account or payable-through account by any domestic financial institution or domestic financial agency for or on behalf of a foreign banking institution, if such correspondent account or payable-through account involves any such jurisdiction or institution, or if any such transaction may be conducted through such correspondent account or payable-through account.

"(c) CONSULTATIONS AND INFORMATION TO BE CONSIDERED IN FINDING JURISDICTIONS, INSTITUTIONS, TYPES OF ACCOUNTS, OR TRANSACTIONS TO BE OF PRIMARY MONEY LAUNDERING CONCERN.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—In making a finding that reasonable grounds exist for concluding that a jurisdiction outside of the United States, 1 or more financial institutions operating outside of the United States, 1 or more classes of transactions within, or involving, a jurisdiction outside of the United States, or 1 or more types of accounts is of primary money laundering concern so as to authorize the Secretary to take 1 or more of the special measures described in subsection (b), the Secretary shall consult with the Secretary of State, and the Attorney General.

"(2) ADDITIONAL CONSIDERATIONS.—In making a finding described in paragraph (1), the Secretary shall consider in addition such information as the Secretary determines to be relevant, including the following potentially relevant factors:

"(A) JURISDICTIONAL FACTORS.—In the case of a particular jurisdiction—

"(i) evidence that organized criminal groups, international terrorists, or both, have transacted business in that jurisdiction;

(ii) the extent to which that jurisdiction or financial institutions operating in that jurisdiction offer bank secrecy or special tax or regulatory advantages to nonresidents or nondomiciliaries of that jurisdiction;

"(iii) the substance and quality of administration of the bank supervisory and counter-money laundering laws of that jurisdiction;

"(iv) the relationship between the volume of financial transactions occurring in that jurisdiction and the size of the economy of the jurisdiction;

"(v) the extent to which that jurisdiction is characterized as a tax haven or offshore banking or secrecy haven by credible international organizations or multilateral expert groups;

"(vi) whether the United States has a mutual legal assistance treaty with that jurisdiction, and the experience of United States law enforcement officials, regulatory officials, and tax administrators in obtaining information about transactions originating in or routed through or to such jurisdiction; and

"(vii) the extent to which that jurisdiction is characterized by high levels of official or institutional corruption.

"(B) INSTITUTIONAL FACTORS.—In the case of a decision to apply 1 or more of the special measures described in subsection (b) only to a financial institution or institutions, or to a transaction or class of transactions, or to a type of account, or to all 3, within or involving a particular jurisdiction—

"(i) the extent to which such financial institutions, transactions, or types of accounts are used to facilitate or promote money laundering in or through the jurisdiction;

"(ii) the extent to which such institutions, transactions, or types of accounts are used for legitimate business purposes in the jurisdiction; and

"(iii) the extent to which such action is sufficient to ensure, with respect to transactions involving the jurisdiction and institutions operating in the jurisdiction, that the purposes of this subchapter continue to be fulfilled, and to guard against international money laundering and other financial crimes.

"(d) NOTIFICATION OF SPECIAL MEASURES INVOKED BY THE SECRETARY.—Not later than 10 days after the date of any action taken by the Secretary under subsection (a)(1), the Secretary shall notify, in writing, the Committee on Financial Services of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate of any such action.

"(e) STUDY AND REPORT ON FOREIGN NATIONALS.—

"(1) STUDY.—The Secretary, in consultation with the appropriate Federal agencies, including the Federal banking agencies (as defined in section 3 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act), shall conduct a study to—

"(A) determine the most timely and effective way to require foreign nationals to provide domestic financial institutions and agencies with appropriate and accurate information, comparable to that which is required of United States nationals, concerning their identity, address, and other related information necessary to enable such institutions and agencies to comply with the reporting, information gathering, and other requirements of this section; and

"(B) consider the need for requiring foreign nationals to apply for and obtain an identification number, similar to what is required for United States citizens through a social security number or tax identification number, prior to opening an account with a domestic financial institution.

"(2) REPORT.—The Secretary shall report to Congress not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this section with recommendations for implementing such action referred to in paragraph (1) in a timely and effective manner.

"(f) DEFINITIONS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this subchapter, for purposes of this section, the following definitions shall apply:

"(1) BANK DEFINITIONS.—The following definitions shall apply with respect to a bank:

"(A) ACCOUNT.—The term 'account'—

"(i) means a formal banking or business relationship established to provide regular services, dealings, and other financial transactions; and

"(ii) includes a demand deposit, savings deposit, or other transaction or asset account and a credit account or other extension of credit.

"(B) CORRESPONDENT ACCOUNT.—The term 'correspondent account' means an account established to receive deposits from, make payments on behalf of a foreign financial institution, or handle other financial transactions related to such institution.

"(C) PAYABLE-THROUGH ACCOUNT.—The term 'payable-through account' means an account, including a transaction account (as defined in section 19(b)(1)(C) of the Federal Reserve Act), opened at a depository institution by a foreign financial institution by means of which the foreign financial institution permits its customers to engage, either directly or through a subaccount, in banking activities usual in connection with the business of banking in the United States.

"(2) DEFINITIONS APPLICABLE TO INSTITUTIONS OTHER THAN BANKS.—With respect to any financial institution other than a bank, the Secretary shall, after consultation with the Securities and Exchange Commission, define by regulation the term 'account', and shall include within the meaning of that term, to the extent, if any, that the Secretary deems appropriate, arrangements similar to payable-through and correspondent accounts.

"(3) REGULATORY DEFINITION.—The Secretary shall promulgate regulations defining beneficial ownership of an account for purposes of this section. Such regulations shall address issues related to an individual's authority to fund, direct, or manage the account (including, without limitation, the power to direct payments into or out of the account), and an individual's material interest in the income or corpus of the account, and shall ensure that the identification of individuals under this section does not extend to any individual whose beneficial interest in the income or corpus of the account is immaterial.".

"(4) OTHER TERMS.—The Secretary may, by regulation, further define the terms in paragraphs (1) and (2) and define other terms for the purposes of this section, as the Secretary deems appropriate.".

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for subchapter II of chapter 53 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 5318 the following new item:

"5318A. Special measures for jurisdictions, financial institutions, or international transactions of primary money laundering concern.".

SEC. 312. SPECIAL DUE DILIGENCE FOR CORRESPONDENT ACCOUNTS AND PRIVATE BANKING ACCOUNTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 5318 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(i) DUE DILIGENCE FOR UNITED STATES PRIVATE BANKING AND CORRESPONDENT BANK ACCOUNTS INVOLVING FOREIGN PERSONS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Each financial institution that establishes, maintains, administers, or manages a private banking account or a correspondent account in the United States for a non-United States person, including a foreign individual visiting the United States, or a representative of a non-United States person shall establish appropriate, specific, and, where necessary, enhanced, due diligence policies, procedures, and controls to detect and report instances of money laundering through those accounts.

"(2) MINIMUM STANDARDS FOR CORRESPONDENT ACCOUNTS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Subparagraph (B) shall apply if a correspondent account is requested or maintained by, or on behalf of, a foreign bank operating—

"(i) under an offshore banking license; or

"(ii) under a banking license issued by a foreign country that has been designated—

"(I) as noncooperative with international anti-money laundering principles or procedures by an intergovernmental group or organization of which the United States is a member; or

"(II) by the Secretary as warranting special measures due to money laundering concerns.

"(B) POLICIES, PROCEDURES, AND CONTROLS.—The enhanced due diligence policies, procedures, and controls required under paragraph (1) shall, at a minimum, ensure that the financial institution in the United States takes reasonable steps—

"(i) to ascertain for any such foreign bank, the shares of which are not publicly traded, the identity of each of the owners of the foreign bank, and the nature and extent of the ownership interest of each such owner;

"(ii) to conduct enhanced scrutiny of such account to guard against money laundering and report any suspicious transactions under section 5318(g); and

"(iii) to ascertain whether such foreign bank provides correspondent accounts to other foreign banks and, if so, the identity of those foreign banks and related due diligence information, as appropriate under paragraph (1).

"(3) MINIMUM STANDARDS FOR PRIVATE BANKING ACCOUNTS.—If a private banking account is requested or maintained by, or on behalf of, a non-United States person, then the due diligence policies, procedures, and controls required under paragraph (1) shall, at a minimum, ensure that the financial institution takes reasonable steps—

"(A) to ascertain the identity of the nominal and beneficial owners of, and the source of funds deposited into, such account as needed to guard against money laundering and report any suspicious transactions under section 5318(g); and

"(B) to conduct enhanced scrutiny of any such account that is requested or maintained by, or on behalf of, a senior foreign political figure, or any immediate family member or close associate of a senior foreign political figure, to prevent, detect, and report transactions that may involve the proceeds of foreign corruption.

"(4) DEFINITIONS AND REGULATORY AUTHORITY.—

"(A) OFFSHORE BANKING LICENSE.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'offshore banking license' means a license to conduct banking activities which, as a condition of the license, prohibits the licensed entity from conducting banking activities with the citizens of, or with the local currency of, the country which issued the license.

"(B) REGULATORY AUTHORITY.—The Secretary, in consultation with the appropriate functional regulators of the affected financial institutions, may further delineate, by regulation the due diligence policies, procedures, and controls required under paragraph (1).".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall take effect beginning 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act with respect to accounts covered by section 5318(i) of title 31, United States Code, as added by this section, that are opened before, on, or after the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 313. PROHIBITION ON UNITED STATES CORRESPONDENT ACCOUNTS WITH FOREIGN SHELL BANKS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 5318 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 5318(i), as added by section 312 of this title, the following:

"(j) PROHIBITION ON UNITED STATES CORRESPONDENT ACCOUNTS WITH FOREIGN SHELL BANKS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—A financial institution described in subparagraphs (A) through (F) of section 5312(a)(2) (in this subsection referred to as a 'covered financial institution') shall not establish, maintain, administer, or manage a correspondent account in the United States for, or on behalf of, a foreign bank that does not have a physical presence in any country.

"(2) PREVENTION OF INDIRECT SERVICE TO FOREIGN SHELL BANKS.—A covered financial institution shall take reasonable steps to ensure that any correspondent account established, maintained, administered, or managed by that covered financial institution in the United States for a foreign bank is not being used by that foreign bank to indirectly provide banking services to another foreign bank that does not have a physical presence in any country. The Secretary shall, by regulation, delineate the reasonable steps necessary to comply with this paragraph.

"(3) EXCEPTION.—Paragraphs (1) and (2) do not prohibit a covered financial institution from providing a correspondent account to a foreign bank, if the foreign bank—

"(A) is an affiliate of a depository institution, credit union, or foreign bank that maintains a physical presence in the United States or a foreign country, as applicable; and

"(B) is subject to supervision by a banking authority in the country regulating the affiliated depository institution, credit union, or foreign bank described in subparagraph (A), as applicable.

"(4) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this subsection—

"(A) the term 'affiliate' means a foreign bank that is controlled by or is under common control with a depository institution, credit union, or foreign bank; and

"(B) the term 'physical presence' means a place of business that—"(i) is maintained by a foreign bank;

"(ii) is located at a fixed address (other than solely an electronic address) in a country in which the foreign bank is authorized to conduct banking activities, at which location the foreign bank—

"(I) employs 1 or more individuals on a full-time basis; and

"(II) maintains operating records related to its banking activities; and

"(iii) is subject to inspection by the banking authority which licensed the foreign bank to conduct banking activities.".

SEC. 314. COOPERATIVE EFFORTS TO DETER MONEY LAUNDERING.

(a) COOPERATION AMONG FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, REGULATORY AUTHORITIES, AND LAW ENFORCEMENT AUTHORITIES.—

(1) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall, within 120 days after the date of enactment of this Act, adopt regulations to encourage further cooperation among financial institutions, their regulatory authorities, and law enforcement authorities, with the specific purpose of encouraging regulatory authorities and law enforcement authorities to share with financial institutions information regarding individuals, entities, and organizations engaged in or reasonably suspected based on credible evidence of engaging in terrorist acts or money laundering activities.

(2) CONTENTS.—The regulations promulgated pursuant to paragraph (1) may—

(A) require that each financial institution designate 1 or more persons to receive information concerning, and to monitor accounts of individuals, entities, and organizations identified, pursuant to paragraph (1); and

(B) further establish procedures for the protection of the shared information, consistent with the capacity, size, and nature of the institution to which the particular procedures apply.

(3) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—The receipt of information by a financial institution pursuant to this section shall not relieve or otherwise modify the obligations of the financial institution with respect to any other person or account.

(4) USE OF INFORMATION.—Information received by a financial institution pursuant to this section shall not be used for any purpose other than identifying and reporting on activities that may involve terrorist acts or money laundering activities.

(b) COOPERATION AMONG FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS.—Upon notice provided to the Secretary, 2 or more financial institutions and any association of financial institutions may share information with one another regarding individuals, entities, organizations, and countries suspected of possible terrorist or money laundering activities. A financial institution or association that transmits, receives, or shares such information for the purposes of identifying and reporting activities that may involve terrorist acts or money laundering activities shall not be liable to any person under any law or regulation of the United States, any constitution, law, or regulation of any State or political subdivision thereof, or under any contract or other legally enforceable agreement (including any arbitration agreement), for such disclosure or for any failure to provide notice of such disclosure to the person who is the subject of such disclosure, or any other person identified in the disclosure, except where such transmission, receipt, or sharing violates this section or regulations promulgated pursuant to this section.

(c) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Compliance with the provisions of this title requiring or allowing financial institutions and any association of financial institutions to disclose or share information regarding individuals, entities, and organizations engaged in or suspected of engaging in terrorist acts or money laundering activities shall not constitute a violation of the provisions of title V of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (Public Law 106–102).

SEC. 315. INCLUSION OF FOREIGN CORRUPTION OFFENSES AS MONEY LAUNDERING CRIMES.

Section 1956(c)(7)(B) of title 18, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in clause (ii), by striking "or destruction of property by means of explosive or fire" and inserting "destruction of property by means of explosive or fire, or a crime of violence (as defined in section 16)";

(2) in clause (iii), by striking "1978" and inserting "1978)"; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

"(iv) bribery of a public official, or the misappropriation, theft, or embezzlement of public funds by or for the benefit of a public official;

"(v) smuggling or export control violations involving—

"(I) an item controlled on the United States Munitions List established under section 38 of the Arms Export Control Act (22 U.S.C. 2778); or

"(II) an item controlled under regulations under the Export Administration Act of 1977 (15 C.F.R. Parts 730–774);

"(vi) an offense with respect to which the United States would be obligated by a multilateral treaty, either to extradite the alleged offender or to submit the case for prosecution, if the offender were found within the territory of the United States; or

"(vii) the misuse of funds of, or provided by, the International Monetary Fund in contravention of the Articles of Agreement of the Fund or the misuse of funds of, or provided by, any other international financial institution (as defined in section 1701(c)(2) of the International Financial Institutions Act (22 U.S.C. 262r(c)(2)) in contravention of any treaty or other international agreement to which the United States is a party, including any articles of agreement of the members of the international financial institution;''.

SEC. 316. ANTI-TERRORIST FORFEITURE PROTECTION.

(a) RIGHT TO CONTEST.—An owner of property that is confiscated under any provision of law relating to the confiscation of assets of suspected international terrorists, may contest that confiscation by filing a claim in the manner set forth in the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (Supplemental Rules for Certain Admiralty and Maritime Claims), and asserting as an affirmative defense that—

(1) the property is not subject to confiscation under such provision of law; or

(2) the innocent owner provisions of section 983(d) of title 18, United States Code, apply to the case.

(b) EVIDENCE.—In considering a claim filed under this section, the Government may rely on evidence that is otherwise inadmissible under the Federal Rules of Evidence, if a court determines that such reliance is necessary to protect the national security interests of the United States.

(c) OTHER REMEDIES.—Nothing in this section shall limit or otherwise affect any other remedies that may be available to an owner of property under section 983 of title 18, United States Code, or any other provision of law.

SEC. 317. LONG-ARM JURISDICTION OVER FOREIGN MONEY LAUNDERERS.

Section 1956(b) of title 18, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by redesignating paragraphs (1) and (2) as subparagraphs (A) and (B), respectively, and moving the margins 2 ems to the right;

(2) by inserting after "(b)" the following: "PENALTIES.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—";

(3) by inserting ", or section 1957" after "or (a)(3)"; and

(4) by adding at the end the following:

"(2) JURISDICTION OVER FOREIGN PERSONS.—For purposes of adjudicating an action filed or enforcing a penalty ordered under this section, the district courts shall have jurisdiction over any foreign person, including any financial institution authorized under the laws of a foreign country, against whom the action is brought, if service of process upon the foreign person is made under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure or the laws of the country in which the foreign person is found, and—

"(A) the foreign person commits an offense under subsection (a) involving a financial transaction that occurs in whole or in part in the United States;

"(B) the foreign person converts, to his or her own use, property in which the United States has an ownership interest by virtue of the entry of an order of forfeiture by a court of the United States; or

"(C) the foreign person is a financial institution that maintains a bank account at a financial institution in the United States.

"(3) COURT AUTHORITY OVER ASSETS.—A court described in paragraph (2) may issue a pretrial restraining order or take any other action necessary to ensure that any bank account or other property held by the defendant in the United States is available to satisfy a judgment under this section.

"(4) FEDERAL RECEIVER.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—A court described in paragraph (2) may appoint a Federal Receiver, in accordance with subparagraph (B) of this paragraph, to collect, marshal, and take custody, control, and possession of all assets of the defendant, wherever located, to satisfy a judgment under this section or section 981, 982, or 1957, including an order of restitution to any victim of a specified unlawful activity.

"(B) APPOINTMENT AND AUTHORITY.—A Federal Receiver described in subparagraph (A)—

"(i) may be appointed upon application of a Federal prosecutor or a Federal or State regulator, by the court having jurisdiction over the defendant in the case;

"(ii) shall be an officer of the court, and the powers of the Federal Receiver shall include the powers set out in section 754 of title 28, United States Code; and

"(iii) shall have standing equivalent to that of a Federal prosecutor for the purpose of submitting requests to obtain information regarding the assets of the defendant—

"(I) from the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network of the Department of the Treasury; or

"(II) from a foreign country pursuant to a mutual legal assistance treaty, multilateral agreement, or other arrangement for international law enforcement assistance, provided that such requests are in accordance with the policies and procedures of the Attorney General.".

SEC. 318. LAUNDERING MONEY THROUGH A FOREIGN BANK.

Section 1956(c) of title 18, United States Code, is amended by striking paragraph (6) and inserting the following:

"(6) the term 'financial institution' includes—

"(A) any financial institution, as defined in section 5312(a)(2) of title 31, United States Code, or the regulations promulgated thereunder; and

"(B) any foreign bank, as defined in section 1 of the International Banking Act of 1978 (12 U.S.C. 3101).".

SEC. 319. FORFEITURE OF FUNDS IN UNITED STATES INTERBANK ACCOUNTS.

(a) FORFEITURE FROM UNITED STATES INTERBANK ACCOUNT.—Section 981 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(k) INTERBANK ACCOUNTS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—For the purpose of a forfeiture under this section or under the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. 801 et seq.), if funds are deposited into an account at a foreign bank, and that foreign bank has an interbank account in the United States with a covered financial institution (as defined in section 5318A of title 31), the funds shall be deemed to have been deposited into the interbank account in the United States, and any restraining order, seizure warrant, or arrest warrant in rem regarding the funds may be served on the covered financial institution, and funds in the interbank account, up to the value of the funds deposited into the account at the foreign bank, may be restrained, seized, or arrested.

"(B) AUTHORITY TO SUSPEND.—The Attorney General, in consultation with the Secretary, may suspend or terminate a forfeiture under this section if the Attorney General determines that a conflict of law exists between the laws of the jurisdiction in which the foreign bank is located and the laws of the United States with respect to liabilities arising from the restraint, seizure, or arrest of such funds, and that such suspension or termination would be in the interest of justice and would not harm the national interests of the United States.

"(2) NO REQUIREMENT FOR GOVERNMENT TO TRACE FUNDS.—If a forfeiture action is brought against funds that are restrained, seized, or arrested under paragraph (1), it shall not be necessary for the Government to establish that the funds are directly traceable to the funds that were deposited into the foreign bank, nor shall it be necessary for the Government to rely on the application of section 984.

"(3) CLAIMS BROUGHT BY OWNER OF THE FUNDS.—If a forfeiture action is instituted against funds restrained, seized, or arrested under paragraph (1), the owner of the funds deposited into the account at the foreign bank may contest the forfeiture by filing a claim under section 983.

REV_00132986

"(4) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this subsection, the following definitions shall apply:

"(A) INTERBANK ACCOUNT.—The term 'interbank account' has the same meaning as in section 984(c)(2)(B).

"(B) OWNER.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in clause (ii), the term 'owner'—

"(I) means the person who was the owner, as that term is defined in section 983(d)(6), of the funds that were deposited into the foreign bank at the time such funds were deposited; and

"(II) does not include either the foreign bank or any financial institution acting as an intermediary in the transfer of the funds into the interbank account.

"(ii) EXCEPTION.—The foreign bank may be considered the 'owner' of the funds (and no other person shall qualify as the owner of such funds) only if—

"(I) the basis for the forfeiture action is wrongdoing committed by the foreign bank; or

"(II) the foreign bank establishes, by a preponderance of the evidence, that prior to the restraint, seizure, or arrest of the funds, the foreign bank had discharged all or part of its obligation to the prior owner of the funds, in which case the foreign bank shall be deemed the owner of the funds to the extent of such discharged obligation.".

(b) BANK RECORDS.—Section 5318 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(k) BANK RECORDS RELATED TO ANTI-MONEY LAUNDERING PROGRAMS.—

"(1) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this subsection, the following definitions shall apply:

"(A) APPROPRIATE FEDERAL BANKING AGENCY.—The term 'appropriate Federal banking agency' has the same meaning as in section 3 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1813).

"(B) INCORPORATED TERMS.—The terms 'correspondent account', 'covered financial institution', and 'foreign bank' have the same meanings as in section 5318A.

"(2) 120-HOUR RULE.—Not later than 120 hours after receiving a request by an appropriate Federal banking agency for information related to anti-money laundering compliance by a covered financial institution or a customer of such institution, a covered financial institution shall provide to the appropriate Federal banking agency, or make available at a location specified by the representative of the appropriate Federal banking agency, information and account documentation for any account opened, maintained, administered or managed in the United States by the covered financial institution.

"(3) FOREIGN BANK RECORDS.—

"(A) SUMMONS OR SUBPOENA OF RECORDS.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary or the Attorney General may issue a summons or subpoena to any foreign bank that maintains a correspondent account in the United States and request records related to such correspondent account, including records maintained outside of the United States relating to the deposit of funds into the foreign bank.

"(ii) SERVICE OF SUMMONS OR SUBPOENA.—A summons or subpoena referred to in clause (i) may be served on the foreign bank in the United States if the foreign bank has a representative in the United States, or in a foreign country pursuant to any mutual legal assistance treaty, multilateral agreement, or other request for international law enforcement assistance.

"(B) ACCEPTANCE OF SERVICE.—

"(i) MAINTAINING RECORDS IN THE UNITED STATES.—Any covered financial institution which maintains a correspondent account in the United States for a foreign bank shall maintain records in the United States identifying the owners of such foreign bank and the name and address of a person who resides in the United States and is authorized to accept service of legal process for records regarding the correspondent account.

"(ii) LAW ENFORCEMENT REQUEST.—Upon receipt of a written request from a Federal law enforcement officer for information required to be maintained under this paragraph, the covered financial institution shall provide the information to the requesting officer not later than 7 days after receipt of the request.

"(C) TERMINATION OF CORRESPONDENT RELATIONSHIP.—

"(i) TERMINATION UPON RECEIPT OF NOTICE.—A covered financial institution shall terminate any correspondent relationship with a foreign bank not later than 10 business days after receipt of written notice from the Secretary or the Attorney General that the foreign bank has failed—

"(I) to comply with a summons or subpoena issued under subparagraph (A); or

"(II) to initiate proceedings in a United States court contesting such summons or subpoena.

"(ii) LIMITATION ON LIABILITY.—A covered financial institution shall not be liable to any person in any court or arbitration proceeding for terminating a correspondent relationship in accordance with this subsection.

"(iii) FAILURE TO TERMINATE RELATIONSHIP.—Failure to terminate a correspondent relationship in accordance with this subsection shall render the covered financial institution liable for a civil penalty of up to $10,000 per day until the correspondent relationship is so terminated.".

(c) GRACE PERIOD.—Financial institutions affected by section 5333 of title 31 United States Code, as amended by this title, shall have 60 days from the date of enactment of this Act to comply with the provisions of that section.

(d) REQUESTS FOR RECORDS.—Section 3486(a)(1) of title 18, United States Code, is amended by striking ", or (II) a Federal offense involving the sexual exploitation or abuse of children" and inserting ", (II) a Federal offense involving the sexual exploitation or abuse of children, or (III) money laundering, in violation of section 1956, 1957, or 1960 of this title".

(e) AUTHORITY TO ORDER CONVICTED CRIMINAL TO RETURN PROPERTY LOCATED ABROAD.—

(1) FORFEITURE OF SUBSTITUTE PROPERTY.—Section 413(p) of the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. 853) is amended to read as follows:

"(p) FORFEITURE OF SUBSTITUTE PROPERTY.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Paragraph (2) of this subsection shall apply, if any property described in subsection (a), as a result of any act or omission of the defendant—

"(A) cannot be located upon the exercise of due diligence;

"(B) has been transferred or sold to, or deposited with, a third party;

"(C) has been placed beyond the jurisdiction of the court;

"(D) has been substantially diminished in value; or

"(E) has been commingled with other property which cannot be divided without difficulty.

"(2) SUBSTITUTE PROPERTY.—In any case described in any of subparagraphs (A) through (E) of paragraph (1), the court shall order the forfeiture of any other property of the defendant, up to the value of any property described in subparagraphs (A) through (E) of paragraph (1), as applicable.

"(3) RETURN OF PROPERTY TO JURISDICTION.—In the case of property described in paragraph (1)(C), the court may, in addition to any other action authorized by this subsection, order the defendant to return the property to the jurisdiction of the court so that the property may be seized and forfeited.".

(2) PROTECTIVE ORDERS.—Section 413(e) of the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. 853(e)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(4) ORDER TO REPATRIATE AND DEPOSIT.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Pursuant to its authority to enter a pretrial restraining order under this section, including its authority to restrain any property forfeitable as substitute assets, the court may order a defendant to repatriate any property that may be seized and forfeited, and to deposit that property pending trial in the registry of the court, or with the United States Marshals Service or the Secretary of the Treasury, in an interest-bearing account, if appropriate.

"(B) FAILURE TO COMPLY.—Failure to comply with an order under this subsection, or an order to repatriate property under subsection (p), shall be punishable as a civil or criminal contempt of court, and may also result in an enhancement of the sentence of the defendant under the obstruction of justice provision of the Federal Sentencing Guidelines.''.

SEC. 320. PROCEEDS OF FOREIGN CRIMES.

Section 981(a)(1)(B) of title 18, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

''(B) Any property, real or personal, within the jurisdiction of the United States, constituting, derived from, or traceable to, any proceeds obtained directly or indirectly from an offense against a foreign nation, or any property used to facilitate such an offense, if the offense—

''(i) involves the manufacture, importation, sale, or distribution of a controlled substance (as that term is defined for purposes of the Controlled Substances Act), or any other conduct described in section 1956(c)(7)(B);

''(ii) would be punishable within the jurisdiction of the foreign nation by death or imprisonment for a term exceeding 1 year; and

''(iii) would be punishable under the laws of the United States by imprisonment for a term exceeding 1 year, if the act or activity constituting the offense had occurred within the jurisdiction of the United States.''.

SEC. 321. EXCLUSION OF ALIENS INVOLVED IN MONEY LAUNDERING.

Section 212(a)(2) of the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(2)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(I) MONEY LAUNDERING ACTIVITIES.—Any alien who the consular officer or the Attorney General knows or has reason to believe is or has been engaged in activities which, if engaged in within the United States would constitute a violation of section 1956 or 1957 of title 18, United States Code, or has been a knowing assister, abettor, conspirator, or colluder with others in any such illicit activity is inadmissible.''.

SEC. 322. CORPORATION REPRESENTED BY A FUGITIVE.

Section 2466 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by designating the present matter as subsection (a), and adding at the end the following:

SEC. 323. ENFORCEMENT OF FOREIGN JUDGMENTS.

Section 2467 of title 28, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in subsection (d), by adding the following after paragraph (2):

"(3) PRESERVATION OF PROPERTY.—To preserve the availability of property subject to a foreign forfeiture or confiscation judgment, the Government may apply for, and the court may issue, a restraining order pursuant to section 983(j) of title 18, United States Code, at any time before or after an application is filed pursuant to subsection (c)(1). The court, in issuing the restraining order—

"(A) may rely on information set forth in an affidavit describing the nature of the proceeding investigation underway in the foreign country, and setting forth a reasonable basis to believe that the property to be restrained will be named in a judgment of forfeiture at the conclusion of such proceeding; or

"(B) may register and enforce a restraining order has been issued by a court of competent jurisdiction in the foreign country and certified by the Attorney General pursuant to subsection (b)(2).

No person may object to the restraining order on any ground that is the subject to parallel litigation involving the same property that is pending in a foreign court.";

(2) in subsection (b)(1)(C), by striking "establishing that the defendant received notice of the proceedings in sufficient time to enable the defendant" and inserting "establishing that the foreign nation took steps, in accordance with the principles of due process, to give notice of the proceedings to all persons with an interest in the property in sufficient time to enable such persons";

(3) in subsection (d)(1)(D), by striking "the defendant in the proceedings in the foreign court did not receive notice" and inserting "the foreign nation did not take steps, in accordance with the principles of due process, to give notice of the proceedings to a person with an interest in the property"; and

(4) in subsection (a)(2)(A), by inserting ", any violation of foreign law that would constitute a violation of an offense for which property could be forfeited under Federal law if the offense were committed in the United States" after "United Nations Convention".

SEC. 324. INCREASE IN CIVIL AND CRIMINAL PENALTIES FOR MONEY LAUNDERING.

(a) CIVIL PENALTIES.—Section 5321(a) of title 31, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(7) PENALTIES FOR INTERNATIONAL COUNTER MONEY LAUNDERING VIOLATIONS.—The Secretary may impose a civil money penalty in an amount equal to not less than 2 times the amount of the transaction, but not more than $1,000,000, on any financial institution or agency that violates any provision of subsection (i) or (j) of section 5318 or any special measures imposed under section 5318A.".

(b) CRIMINAL PENALTIES.—Section 5322 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(d) A financial institution or agency that violates any provision of subsection (i) or (j) of section 5318, or any special measures imposed under section 5318A, or any regulation prescribed under subsection (i) or (j) of section 5318 or section 5318A, shall be fined in an amount equal to not less than 2 times the amount of the transaction, but not more than $1,000,000.".

SEC. 325. REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION.

Not later than 30 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary, in consultation with the Attorney General, the Federal banking agencies (as defined at section 3 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act), the Securities and Exchange Commission, and such other agencies as the Secretary may determine, at the discretion of the Secretary, shall evaluate the operations of the provisions of this subtitle and make recommendations to Congress as to any legislative action with respect to this subtitle as the Secretary may determine to be necessary or advisable.

SEC. 326. REPORT ON EFFECTIVENESS.

Section 5318(h) of title 31, United States Code, as amended by section 202 of this title, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(3) CONCENTRATION ACCOUNTS.—The Secretary may issue regulations under this subsection that govern maintenance of concentration accounts by financial institutions, in order to ensure that such accounts are not used to prevent association of the identity of an individual customer with the movement of funds of which the customer is the direct or beneficial owner, which regulations shall, at a minimum—

"(A) prohibit financial institutions from allowing clients to direct transactions that move their funds into, out of, or through the concentration accounts of the financial institution;

"(B) prohibit financial institutions and their employees from informing customers of the existence of, or the means of identifying, the concentration accounts of the institution; and

"(C) require each financial institution to establish written procedures governing the documentation of all transactions involving a concentration account, which procedures shall ensure that, any time a transaction involving a concentration account commingles funds belonging to 1 or more customers, the identity of, and specific amount belonging to, each customer is documented.".

Subtitle B—Currency Transaction Reporting Amendments and Related Improvements

SEC. 331. AMENDMENTS RELATING TO REPORTING OF SUSPICIOUS ACTIVITIES.

(a) AMENDMENT RELATING TO CIVIL LIABILITY IMMUNITY FOR DISCLOSURES.—Section 5318(g)(3) of title 31, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(3) LIABILITY FOR DISCLOSURES.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Any financial institution that makes a voluntary disclosure of any possible violation of law or regulation to a government agency or makes a disclosure pursuant to this subsection or any other authority, and any director, officer, employee, or agent of such institution who makes, or requires another to make any such disclosure, shall not be liable to any person under any law or regulation of the United States, any constitution, law, or regulation of any State or political subdivision of any State, or under any contract or other legally enforceable agreement (including any arbitration agreement), for such disclosure or for any failure to provide notice of such disclosure to the person who is the subject of such disclosure or any other person identified in the disclosure.

"(B) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Subparagraph (A) shall not be construed as creating—

"(i) any inference that the term 'person', as used in such subparagraph, may be construed more broadly than its ordinary usage so as to include any government or agency of government; or

"(ii) any immunity against, or otherwise affecting, any civil or criminal action brought by any government or agency of government to enforce any constitution, law, or regulation of such government or agency.".

(b) PROHIBITION ON NOTIFICATION OF DISCLOSURES.—Section 5318(g)(2) of title 31, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(2) NOTIFICATION PROHIBITED.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—If a financial institution or any director, officer, employee, or agent of any financial institution, voluntarily or pursuant to this section or any other authority, reports a suspicious transaction to a government agency—

"(i) the financial institution, director, officer, employee, or agent may not notify any person involved in the transaction that the transaction has been reported; and

"(ii) no officer or employee of the Federal Government or of any State, local, tribal, or territorial government within the United States, who has any knowledge that such report was made may disclose to any person involved in the transaction that the transaction has been reported, other than as necessary to fulfill the official duties of such officer or employee.

"(B) DISCLOSURES IN CERTAIN EMPLOYMENT REFERENCES.—

"(i) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Notwithstanding the application of subparagraph (A) in any other context, subparagraph (A) shall not be construed as prohibiting any financial institution, or any director, officer, employee, or agent of such institution, from including information that was included in a report to which subparagraph (A) applies—

"(I) in a written employment reference that is provided in accordance with section 18(v) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act in response to a request from another financial institution, except that such written reference may not disclose that such information was also included in any such report or that such report was made; or

"(II) in a written termination notice or employment reference that is provided in accordance with the rules of the self-regulatory organizations registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission, except that such written notice or reference may not disclose that such information was also included in any such report or that such report was made.

"(ii) INFORMATION NOT REQUIRED.—Clause (i) shall not be construed, by itself, to create any affirmative duty to include any information described in clause (i) in any employment reference or termination notice referred to in clause (i).''.

SEC. 332. ANTI-MONEY LAUNDERING PROGRAMS.

Section 5318(h) of title 31, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

''(h) ANTI-MONEY LAUNDERING PROGRAMS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—In order to guard against money laundering through financial institutions, each financial institution shall establish anti-money laundering programs, including, at a minimum—

''(A) the development of internal policies, procedures, and controls;

''(B) the designation of a compliance officer;

''(C) an ongoing employee training program; and

''(D) an independent audit function to test programs.

''(2) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary may prescribe minimum standards for programs established under paragraph (1), and may exempt from the application of those standards any financial institution that is not subject to the provisions of the rules contained in part 103 of title 31, of the Code of Federal Regulations, or any successor rule thereto, for so long as such financial institution is not subject to the provisions of such rules.''.

regulations requiring registered brokers and dealers to file reports of suspicious financial transactions, consistent with the requirements applicable to financial institutions, and directors, officers, employees, and agents of financial institutions under section 5318(g) of title 31, United States Code.

(b) REPORT ON INVESTMENT COMPANIES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, Secretary of the Treasury, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, and the Securities and Exchange Commission shall jointly submit a report to Congress on recommendations for effective regulations to apply the requirements of subchapter II of chapter 53 of title 31, United States Code, to investment companies, pursuant to section 5312(a)(2)(I) of title 31, United States Code.

(2) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this section, the term ''investment company''—

(A) has the same meaning as in section 3 of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a–3); and

(B) any person that, but for the exceptions provided for in paragraph (1) or (7) of section 3(c) of the Investment Company Act of 1940

(15 U.S.C. 80a–3(c)), would be an investment company.

(3) ADDITIONAL RECOMMENDATIONS.—In its report, the Securities and Exchange Commission may make different recommendations for different types of entities covered by this section.

(4) BENEFICIAL OWNERSHIP OF PERSONAL HOLDING COMPANIES.—The report described in paragraph (1) shall also include recommendations as to whether the Secretary should promulgate regulations to treat any corporation or business or other grantor trust whose assets are predominantly securities, bank certificates of deposit, or other securities or investment instruments (other than such as relate to operating subsidiaries of such corporation or trust) and that has 5 or fewer common shareholders or holders of beneficial or other equity interest, as a financial institution within the meaning of that phrase in section 5312(a)(2)(I) and whether to require such corporations or trusts to disclose their beneficial owners when opening accounts or initiating funds transfers at any domestic financial institution.

SEC. 339. SPECIAL REPORT ON ADMINISTRATION OF BANK SECRECY PROVISIONS.

(a) REPORT REQUIRED.—Not later than 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit a report to the Congress relating to the role of the Internal Revenue Service in the administration of subchapter II of chapter 53 of title 31, United States Code (commonly known as the "Bank Secrecy Act").

(b) CONTENTS.—The report required by subsection (a)—

(1) shall specifically address, and contain recommendations concerning—

(A) whether it is advisable to shift the processing of information reporting to the Department of the Treasury under the Bank Secrecy Act provisions to facilities other than those managed by the Internal Revenue Service; and

(B) whether it remains reasonable and efficient, in light of the objective of both anti-money-laundering programs and Federal tax administration, for the Internal Revenue Service to retain authority and responsibility for audit and examination of the compliance of money services businesses and gaming institutions with those Bank Secrecy Act provisions; and

(2) shall, if the Secretary determines that the information processing responsibility or the audit and examination responsibility of the Internal Revenue Service, or both, with respect to those Bank Secrecy Act provisions should be transferred to other agencies, include the specific recommendations of the Secretary regarding the agency or agencies to which any such function should be transferred, complete with a budgetary and resources plan for expeditiously accomplishing the transfer.

SEC. 340. BANK SECRECY PROVISIONS AND ANTI-TERRORIST ACTIVITIES OF UNITED STATES INTELLIGENCE AGENCIES.

(a) AMENDMENT RELATING TO THE PURPOSES OF THE BANK SECRECY ACT.—Section 5311 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by inserting before the period at the end the following: ", or in the conduct of intelligence or counterintelligence activities, including analysis, to protect against international terrorism".

(b) AMENDMENT RELATING TO REPORTING OF SUSPICIOUS ACTIVITIES.—Section 5318(g)(4)(B) of title 31, United States Code, is amended by striking "or supervisory agency" and inserting ", supervisory agency, or

United States intelligence agency for use in the conduct of intelligence or counterintelligence activities, including analysis, to protect against international terrorism''.

(c) AMENDMENT RELATING TO AVAILABILITY OF REPORTS.—Section 5319 of title 31, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

''§ 5319. Availability of reports

''The Secretary of the Treasury shall make information in a report filed under this subchapter available to an agency, including any State financial institutions supervisory agency or United States intelligence agency, upon request of the head of the agency. The report shall be available for a purpose that is consistent with this subchapter. The Secretary may only require reports on the use of such information by any State financial institutions supervisory agency for other than supervisory purposes or by United States intelligence agencies. However, a report and records of reports are exempt from disclosure under section 552 of title 5.''.

(d) AMENDMENT RELATING TO THE PURPOSES OF THE BANK SECRECY ACT PROVISIONS.—Section 21(a) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1829b(a)) is amended to read as follows:

''(a) CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE.—

"(1) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

"(A) adequate records maintained by insured depository institutions have a high degree of usefulness in criminal, tax, and regulatory investigations or proceedings, and that, given the threat posed to the security of the Nation on and after the terrorist attacks against the United States on September 11, 2001, such records may also have a high degree of usefulness in the conduct of intelligence or counterintelligence activities, including analysis, to protect against domestic and international terrorism; and

"(B) microfilm or other reproductions and other records made by insured depository institutions of checks, as well as records kept by such institutions, of the identity of persons maintaining or authorized to act with respect to accounts therein, have been of particular value in proceedings described in subparagraph (A).

"(2) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this section to require the maintenance of appropriate types of records by insured depository institutions in the United States where such records have a high degree of usefulness in criminal, tax, or regulatory investigations or proceedings, recognizes that, given the threat posed to the security of the Nation on and after the terrorist attacks against the United States on September 11, 2001, such records may also have a high degree of usefulness in the conduct of intelligence or counterintelligence activities, including analysis, to protect against international terrorism.''.

(e) AMENDMENT RELATING TO THE PURPOSES OF THE BANK SECRECY ACT.—Section 123(a) of Public Law 91–508 (12 U.S.C. 1953(a)) is amended to read as follows:

''(a) REGULATIONS.—If the Secretary determines that the maintenance of appropriate records and procedures by any uninsured bank or uninsured institution, or any person engaging in the business of carrying on in the United States any of the functions referred to in subsection (b), has a high degree of usefulness in criminal, tax, or regulatory investigations or proceedings, and that, given the threat posed to the security of the Nation on and after the terrorist attacks against the United States on September 11, 2001, such records may also have a high degree of usefulness in the conduct of intelligence or counterintelligence activities, including analysis, to protect against international terrorism, he may by regulation require such bank, institution, or person.''.

(f) AMENDMENTS TO THE RIGHT TO FINANCIAL PRIVACY ACT.—The Right to Financial Privacy Act of 1978 is amended—

(1) in section 1112(a) (12 U.S.C. 3412(a)), by inserting ", or intelligence or counterintelligence activity, investigation or analysis related to international terrorism" after "legitimate law enforcement inquiry"; and

(2) in section 1114(a)(1) (12 U.S.C. 3414(a)(1))—

(A) in subparagraph (A), by striking "or" at the end;

(B) in subparagraph (B), by striking the period at the end and inserting "; or"; and

(C) by adding at the end the following:

"(C) a Government authority authorized to conduct investigations of, or intelligence or counterintelligence analyses related to, international terrorism for the purpose of conducting such investigations or analyses.".

(g) AMENDMENT TO THE FAIR CREDIT REPORTING ACT.—The Fair Credit Reporting Act (15 U.S.C. 1681 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 626. DISCLOSURES TO GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES FOR COUNTERTERRORISM PURPOSES.

"(a) DISCLOSURE.—Notwithstanding section 604 or any other provision of this title, a consumer reporting agency shall furnish a consumer report of a consumer and all other information in a consumer's file to a government agency authorized to conduct investigations of, or intelligence or counterintelligence activities or analysis related to, international terrorism when presented with a written certification by such government agency that such information is necessary for the agency's conduct or such investigation, activity or analysis.

"(b) FORM OF CERTIFICATION.—The certification described in subsection (a) shall be signed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

"(c) CONFIDENTIALITY.—No consumer reporting agency, or officer, employee, or agent of such consumer reporting agency, shall disclose to any person, or specify in any consumer report, that a government agency has sought or obtained access to information under subsection (a).

"(d) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in section 625 shall be construed to limit the authority of the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation under this section.

"(e) SAFE HARBOR.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this subchapter, any consumer reporting agency or agent or employee thereof making disclosure of consumer reports or other information pursuant to this section in good-faith reliance upon a certification of a governmental agency pursuant to the provisions of this section shall not be liable to any person for such disclosure under this subchapter, the constitution of any State, or any law or regulation of any State or any political subdivision of any State.".

SEC. 341. REPORTING OF SUSPICIOUS ACTIVITIES BY HAWALA AND OTHER UNDERGROUND BANKING SYSTEMS.

(a) DEFINITION FOR SUBCHAPTER.—Section 5312(a)(2)(R) of title 31, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(R) a licensed sender of money or any other person who engages as a business in the transmission of funds, including through an informal value transfer banking system or network of people facilitating the transfer of value domestically or internationally outside of the conventional financial institutions system;".

(b) MONEY TRANSMITTING BUSINESS.—Section 5330(d)(1)(A) of title 31, United States Code, is amended by inserting before the semicolon the following: ''or any other person who engages as a business in the transmission of funds, including through an informal value transfer banking system or network of people facilitating the transfer of value domestically or internationally outside of the conventional financial institutions system;''.

(d) APPLICABILITY OF RULES.—Section 5318 of title 31, United States Code, as amended by this title, is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(l) APPLICABILITY OF RULES.—Any rules promulgated pursuant to the authority contained in section 21 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1829b) shall apply, in addition to any other financial institution to which such rules apply, to any person that engages as a business in the transmission of funds, including through an informal value transfer banking system or network of people facilitating the transfer of value domestically or internationally outside of the conventional financial institutions system.''.

(e) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Treasury shall report to Congress on the need for any additional legislation relating to informal value transfer banking systems or networks of people facilitating the transfer of value domestically or internationally outside of the conventional financial institutions system, counter money laundering and regulatory controls relating to underground money movement and banking systems, such as the system referred to as 'hawala', including whether the threshold for the filing of suspicious activity reports under section 5318(g) of title 31, United States Code should be lowered in the case of such systems.

SEC. 342. USE OF AUTHORITY OF UNITED STATES EXECUTIVE DIRECTORS.

(a) ACTION BY THE PRESIDENT.—If the President determines that a particular foreign country has taken or has committed to take actions that contribute to efforts of the United States to respond to, deter, or prevent acts of international terrorism, the Secretary of the Treasury may, consistent with other applicable provisions of law, instruct the United States Executive Director of each international financial institution to use the voice and vote of the Executive Director to support any loan or other utilization of the funds of respective institutions for such country, or any public or private entity within such country.

(b) USE OF VOICE AND VOTE.—The Secretary of the Treasury may instruct the United States Executive Director of each international financial institution to aggressively use the voice and vote of the Executive Director to require an auditing of disbursements at such institutions to ensure that no funds are paid to persons who commit, threaten to commit, or support terrorism.

(c) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this section, the term "international financial institution" means an institution described in section 1701(c)(2) of the International Financial Institutions Act (22 U.S.C. 262r(c)(2)).

Subtitle C—Currency Crimes

SEC. 351. BULK CASH SMUGGLING.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) effective enforcement of the currency reporting requirements of chapter 53 of title 31, United States Code (commonly referred to as the Bank Secrecy Act), and the regulations promulgated thereunder, has forced drug dealers and other criminals engaged in cash-based businesses to avoid using traditional financial institutions;

(2) in their effort to avoid using traditional financial institutions, drug dealers, and other criminals are forced to move large quantities of currency in bulk form to and through the airports, border crossings, and other ports of entry where it can be smuggled out of the United States and placed in a foreign financial institution or sold on the black market;

(3) the transportation and smuggling of cash in bulk form may, at the time of enactment of this Act, be the most common form of money laundering, and the movement of large sums of cash is one of the most reliable warning signs of drug trafficking, terrorism, money laundering, racketeering, tax evasion, and similar crimes;

(4) the intentional transportation into or out of the United States of large amounts of currency or monetary instruments, in a manner designed to circumvent the mandatory reporting provisions of chapter 53 of title 31, United States Code, is the equivalent of, and creates the same harm as, the smuggling of goods;

(5) the arrest and prosecution of bulk cash smugglers is an important part of law enforcement's effort to stop the laundering of criminal proceeds, but the couriers who attempt to smuggle the cash out of the United States are typically low-level employees of large criminal organizations, and are easily replaced, and therefore only the confiscation of the smuggled bulk cash can effectively break the cycle of criminal activity of which the laundering of bulk cash is a critical part;

(6) the penalties for violations of the currency reporting requirements of the chapter 53 of title 31, United States Code, are insufficient to provide a deterrent to the laundering of criminal proceeds;

(7) because the only criminal violation under Federal law before the date of enactment of this Act was a reporting offense, the law does not adequately provide for the confiscation of smuggled currency; and

(8) if the smuggling of bulk cash were itself an offense, the cash could be confiscated as the corpus delicti of the smuggling offense.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are—

(1) to make the act of smuggling bulk cash itself a criminal offense;

(2) to authorize forfeiture of any cash or instruments of the smuggling offense;

(3) to emphasize the seriousness of the act of bulk cash smuggling; and

(4) to prescribe guidelines for determining the amount of property subject to such forfeiture in various situations.

(c) BULK CASH SMUGGLING OFFENSE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter II of chapter 53 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"§ 5331. Bulk cash smuggling

"(a) CRIMINAL OFFENSE.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Whoever, with the intent to evade a currency reporting requirement under section 5316, knowingly conceals more than $10,000 in currency or other monetary instruments on his or her person or in any conveyance, article of luggage, merchandise, or other container, and transports or transfers or attempts to transport or transfer the currency or monetary instruments from a place within the United States to a place outside of the United States, or from a place outside of the United States to a place within the United States, shall be guilty of a currency smuggling offense and subject to punishment under subsection (b).

"(b) PENALTIES.—

"(1) PRISON TERM.—A person convicted of a currency smuggling offense under subsection (a), or a conspiracy to commit such an offense, shall be imprisoned for not more than 5 years.

"(2) FORFEITURE.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—In addition to a prison term under paragraph (1), the court, in imposing sentence, shall order that the defendant forfeit to the United States any property, real or personal, involved in the offense, and any property traceable to such property, subject to subsection (d).

"(B) APPLICABILITY OF OTHER LAWS.—The seizure, restraint, and forfeiture of property under this section shall be governed by section 413 of the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. 853). If the property subject to forfeiture is unavailable, and the defendant has no substitute property that may be forfeited pursuant to section 413(p) of that Act, the court shall enter a personal money judgment against the defendant in an amount equal to the value of the unavailable property.

"(c) SEIZURE OF SMUGGLING CASH.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Any property involved in a violation of subsection (a), or a conspiracy to commit such violation, and any property traceable thereto, may be seized and, subject to subsection (d), forfeited to the United States.

"(2) APPLICABLE PROCEDURES.—A seizure and forfeiture under this subsection shall be governed by the procedures governing civil forfeitures under section 981(a)(1)(A) of title 18, United States Code.

"(d) PROPORTIONALITY OF FORFEITURE.—

"(1) MITIGATION.—Upon a showing by the property owner by a preponderance of the evidence that the currency or monetary instruments involved in the offense giving rise to the forfeiture were derived from a legitimate source and were intended for a lawful purpose, the court shall reduce the forfeiture to the maximum amount that is not grossly disproportional to the gravity of the offense.

"(2) CONSIDERATIONS.—In determining the amount of the forfeiture under paragraph (1), the court shall consider all aggravating and mitigating facts and circumstances that have a bearing on the gravity of the offense, including—

"(A) the value of the currency or other monetary instruments involved in the offense;

"(B) efforts by the person committing the offense to structure currency transactions, conceal property, or otherwise obstruct justice; and

"(C) whether the offense is part of a pattern of repeated violations of Federal law.

"(e) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—For purposes of subsections (b) and (c), any currency or other monetary instrument that is concealed or intended to be concealed in violation of subsection (a) or a conspiracy to commit such violation, any article, container, or conveyance used or intended to be used to conceal or transport the currency or other monetary instrument, and any other property used or intended to be used to facilitate the offense, shall be considered property involved in the offense.".

(2) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter 53 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 5330 the following new item:

"5331. Bulk cash smuggling.".

(d) CURRENCY REPORTING VIOLATIONS.—Section 5317(c) of title 31, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(c) FORFEITURE OF PROPERTY.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—

"(A) CRIMINAL FORFEITURE.—The court, in imposing sentence for any violation of section 5313, 5316, or 5324, or any conspiracy to commit such violation, shall order the defendant to forfeit all property, real or personal, involved in the offense and any property traceable thereto.

"(B) APPLICABLE PROCEDURES.—Forfeitures under this paragraph shall be governed by the procedures set forth in section 413 of the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. 853), and the guidelines set forth in paragraph (3) of this subsection.

"(2) CIVIL FORFEITURE.—Any property involved in a violation of section 5313, 5316, or 5324, or any conspiracy to commit such violation, and any property traceable thereto, may be seized and, subject to paragraph (3), forfeited to the United States in accordance with the procedures governing civil forfeitures in money laundering cases pursuant to section 981(a)(1)(A) of title 18, United States Code.

"(3) MITIGATION.—In a forfeiture case under this subsection, upon a showing by the property owner by a preponderance of the evidence that any currency or monetary instruments involved in the offense giving rise to the forfeiture were derived from a legitimate source, and were intended for a lawful purpose, the court shall reduce the forfeiture to the maximum amount that is not grossly disproportional to the gravity of the offense. In determining the amount of the forfeiture, the court shall consider all aggravating and mitigating facts and circumstances that have a bearing on the gravity of the offense. Such circumstances include, but are not limited to, the following: the value of the currency or other monetary instruments involved in the offense; efforts by the person committing the offense to structure currency transactions, conceal property, or otherwise obstruct justice; and whether the offense is part of a pattern of repeated violations.

(e) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Title 18, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in section 981(a)(1)(A) by striking "of section 5313(a) or 5324(a) of title 31, or"; and

(2) in section 982(a)(1), striking "of section 5313(a), 5316, or 5324 of title 31, or".

Subtitle E—Anticorruption Measures

SEC. 361. CORRUPTION OF FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS AND RULING ELITES.

It is the sense of Congress that, in deliberations between the United States Government and any other country on money laundering and corruption issues, the United States Government should—

(1) emphasize an approach that addresses not only the laundering of the proceeds of traditional criminal activity but also the increasingly endemic problem of governmental corruption and the corruption of ruling elites;

(2) encourage the enactment and enforcement of laws in such country to prevent money laundering and systemic corruption;

(3) make clear that the United States will take all steps necessary to identify the proceeds of foreign government corruption which have been deposited in United States financial institutions and return such proceeds to the citizens of the country to whom such assets belong; and

(4) advance policies and measures to promote good government and to prevent and reduce corruption and money laundering, including through instructions to the United States Executive Director of each international financial institution (as defined in section 1701(c) of the International Financial Institutions Act) to advocate such policies as a systematic element of economic reform programs and advice to member governments.

SEC. 362. SUPPORT FOR THE FINANCIAL ACTION TASK FORCE ON MONEY LAUNDERING.

It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the United States should continue to actively and publicly support the objectives of the Financial Action Task Force on Money Laundering (hereafter in this section referred to as the "FATF") with regard to combating international money laundering;

(2) the FATF should identify noncooperative jurisdictions in as expeditious a manner as possible and publicly release a list directly naming those jurisdictions identified;

(3) the United States should support the public release of the list naming noncooperative jurisdictions identified by the FATF;

(4) the United States should encourage the adoption of the necessary international action to encourage compliance by the identified noncooperative jurisdictions; and

(5) the United States should take the necessary countermeasures to protect the United States economy against money of unlawful origin and encourage other nations to do the same.

SEC. 363. TERRORIST FUNDING THROUGH MONEY LAUNDERING.

It is the sense of the Congress that, in deliberations and negotiations between the United States Government and any other country regarding financial, economic, assistance, or defense issues, the United States should encourage such other country—

(1) to take actions which would identify and prevent the transmittal of funds to and from terrorists and terrorist organizations; and

(2) to engage in bilateral and multilateral cooperation with the United States and other countries to identify suspected terrorists, terrorist organizations, and persons supplying funds to and receiving funds from terrorists and terrorist organizations.

TITLE IV—PROTECTING THE BORDER

Subtitle A—Protecting the Northern Border

SEC. 401. ENSURING ADEQUATE PERSONNEL ON THE NORTHERN BORDER.

The Attorney General is authorized to waive any FTE cap on personnel assigned to the Immigration and Naturalization Service to address the national security needs of the United States on the Northern border.

SEC. 402. NORTHERN BORDER PERSONNEL.

There are authorized to be appropriated—

(1) such sums as may be necessary to triple the number of Border Patrol personnel (from the number authorized under current law), and the necessary

personnel and facilities to support such personnel, in each State along the Northern Border;

(2) such sums as may be necessary to triple the number of Customs Service personnel (from the number authorized under current law), and the necessary personnel and facilities to support such personnel, at ports of entry in each State along the Northern Border;

(3) such sums as may be necessary to triple the number of INS inspectors (from the number authorized on the date of enactment of this Act), and the necessary personnel and facilities to support such personnel, at ports of entry in each State along the Northern Border; and

(4) an additional $50,000,000 each to the Immigration and Naturalization Service and the United States Customs Service for purposes of making improvements in technology for monitoring the Northern Border and acquiring additional equipment at the Northern Border.

REV_00133037

SEC. 403. ACCESS BY THE DEPARTMENT OF STATE AND THE INS TO CERTAIN IDENTIFYING INFORMATION IN THE CRIMINAL HISTORY RECORDS OF VISA APPLICANTS AND APPLICANTS FOR ADMISSION TO THE UNITED STATES.

(a) AMENDMENT OF THE IMMIGRATION AND NATIONALITY ACT.—Section 105 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1105) is amended—

(1) in the section heading, by inserting "; DATA EXCHANGE" after "SECURITY OFFICERS";

(2) by inserting "(a)" after "SEC. 105.";

(3) in subsection (a), by inserting "and border" after "internal" the second place it appears; and

(4) by adding at the end the following:

"(b)(1) The Attorney General and the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation shall provide the Department of State and the Service access to the criminal history record information contained in the National Crime Information Center's Interstate Identification Index (NCIC-III), Wanted Persons File, and to any other files maintained by the National Crime Information Center that may be mutually agreed upon by the Attorney General and the agency receiving the access, for the purpose of determining whether or not a visa applicant or applicant for admission has a criminal history record indexed in any such file.

"(2) Such access shall be provided by means of extracts of the records for placement in the automated visa lookout or other appropriate database, and shall be provided without any fee or charge.

"(3) The Federal Bureau of Investigation shall provide periodic updates of the extracts at intervals mutually agreed upon with the agency receiving the access. Upon receipt of such updated extracts, the receiving agency shall make corresponding updates to its database and destroy previously provided extracts.

"(4) Access to an extract does not entitle the Department of State to obtain the full content of the corresponding automated criminal history record. To obtain the full content of a criminal history record, the Department of State shall submit the applicant's fingerprints and any appropriate fingerprint processing fee authorized by law to the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"(c) The provision of the extracts described in subsection (b) may be reconsidered by the Attorney General and the receiving agency upon the development and deployment of a more cost-effective and efficient means of sharing the information.

"(d) For purposes of administering this section, the Department of State shall, prior to receiving access to

NCIC data but not later than 4 months after the date of enactment of this subsection, promulgate final regulations—

"(1) to implement procedures for the taking of fingerprints; and

"(2) to establish the conditions for the use of the information received from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in order—

"(A) to limit the redissemination of such information;

"(B) to ensure that such information is used solely to determine whether or not to issue a visa to an alien or to admit an alien to the United States;

"(C) to ensure the security, confidentiality, and destruction of such information; and

"(D) to protect any privacy rights of individuals who are subjects of such information.".

(b) REPORTING REQUIREMENT.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Attorney General and the Secretary of State jointly shall report to Congress on the implementation of the amendments made by this section.

(c) TECHNOLOGY STANDARD TO CONFIRM IDENTITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Attorney General and the Secretary of State jointly, through the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST), and in consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury and other Federal law enforcement and intelligence agencies the Attorney General or Secretary of State deems appropriate, shall within 2 years after the date of enactment of this section, develop and certify a technology standard that can confirm the identity of a person applying for a United States visa or such person seeking to enter the United States pursuant to a visa.

(2) INTEGRATED.—The technology standard developed pursuant to paragraph (1), shall be the technological basis for a cross-agency, cross-platform electronic system that is a cost-effective, efficient, fully integrated means to share law enforcement and intelligence information necessary to confirm the identity of such persons applying for a United States visa or such person seeking to enter the United States pursuant to a visa.

(3) ACCESSIBLE.—The electronic system described in paragraph (2), once implemented, shall be readily and easily accessible to—

(A) all consular officers responsible for the issuance of visas;

(B) all Federal inspection agents at all United States border inspection points; and

(C) all law enforcement and intelligence officers as determined by regulation to be responsible for investigation or identification of aliens admitted to the United States pursuant to a visa.

(4) REPORT.—Not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act, and every 2 years thereafter, the Attorney General and the Secretary of State shall jointly, in consultation with the Secretary of Treasury, report to Congress describing the development, implementation and efficacy of the technology standard and electronic database system described in this subsection.

(d) STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section, or in any other law, shall be construed to limit the authority of the Attorney General or the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to provide access to the criminal history record information contained in the National Crime Information Center's (NCIC) Interstate Identification Index (NCIC-III), or to any other information maintained by the NCIC, to any Federal agency or officer authorized to enforce or administer the immigration laws of the United States, for the purpose of such enforcement or administration, upon terms that are consistent with the National Crime Prevention and Privacy Compact Act of 1998 (subtitle A of title II of Public Law 105–251; 42 U.S.C. 14611–16) and section 552a of title 5, United States Code.

SEC. 404. LIMITED AUTHORITY TO PAY OVERTIME.

The matter under the headings ''Immigration And Naturalization Service: Salaries and Expenses, Enforcement And Border Affairs'' and ''Immigration And Naturalization Service: Salaries and Expenses, Citizenship And Benefits, Immigration And Program Direction'' in the Department of Justice Appropriations Act, 2001 (as enacted into law by Appendix B (H.R. 5548) of Public Law 106–553 (114 Stat. 2762A–58 to 2762A–59)) is amended by striking the following each place it occurs: ''Provided, That none of the funds available to the Immigration and Naturalization Service shall be available to pay any employee overtime pay in an amount in excess of $30,000 during the calendar year beginning January 1, 2001:''.

SEC. 405. REPORT ON THE INTEGRATED AUTOMATED FINGERPRINT IDENTIFICATION SYSTEM FOR POINTS OF ENTRY AND OVERSEAS CONSULAR POSTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Attorney General, in consultation with the appropriate heads of other Federal agencies, including the Secretary of State, Secretary of the Treasury, and the Secretary of Transportation, shall report to Congress on the feasibility of enhancing the Integrated Automated Fingerprint Identification System (IAFIS) of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and other identification systems in order to better identify a person who holds a foreign passport or a visa and may be wanted in connection with a criminal investigation in the United States or abroad, before the issuance of a visa to that person or the entry or exit by that person from the United States.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated not less than $2,000,000 to carry out this section.

Subtitle B—Enhanced Immigration Provisions

SEC. 411. DEFINITIONS RELATING TO TERRORISM.

(a) GROUNDS OF INADMISSIBILITY.—Section 212(a)(3) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(3)) is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (B)—

(A) in clause (i)—

(i) by amending subclause (IV) to read as follows:

"(IV) is a representative (as defined in clause (v)) of—

"(aa) a foreign terrorist organization, as designated by the Secretary of State under section 219, or

"(bb) a political, social or other similar group whose public endorsement of acts of terrorist activity the Secretary of State has determined undermines United States efforts to reduce or eliminate terrorist activities,";

(ii) in subclause (V), by inserting "or" after "section 219,"; and

(iii) by adding at the end the following new subclauses:

"(VI) has used the alien's position of prominence within any country to endorse or espouse terrorist activity, or to persuade others to support terrorist activity or a terrorist organization, in a way that the Secretary of State has determined undermines United States efforts to reduce or eliminate terrorist activities, or

"(VII) is the spouse or child of an alien who is inadmissible under this section, if the activity causing the alien to be found inadmissible occurred within the last 5 years,";

(B) by redesignating clauses (ii), (iii), and (iv) as clauses (iii), (iv), and (v), respectively;

(C) in clause (i)(II), by striking "clause (iii)" and inserting "clause (iv)";

(D) by inserting after clause (i) the following:

"(ii) EXCEPTION.—Subclause (VII) of clause (i) does not apply to a spouse or child—

"(I) who did not know or should not reasonably have known of the activity causing the alien to be found inadmissible under this section; or

"(II) whom the consular officer or Attorney General has reasonable grounds to believe has renounced the activity causing the alien to be found inadmissible under this section.";

(E) in clause (iii) (as redesignated by subparagraph (B))—

(i) by inserting "it had been" before "committed in the United States"; and

(ii) in subclause (V)(b), by striking "or firearm" and inserting ", firearm, or other weapon or dangerous device";

(F) by amending clause (iv) (as redesignated by subparagraph (B)) to read as follows:

"(iv) ENGAGE IN TERRORIST ACTIVITY DEFINED.—As used in this chapter, the term 'engage in terrorist activity' means, in an individual capacity or as a member of an organization—

"(I) to commit or to incite to commit, under circumstances indicating an intention to cause death or serious bodily injury, a terrorist activity;

"(II) to prepare or plan a terrorist activity;

"(III) to gather information on potential targets for terrorist activity;

"(IV) to solicit funds or other things of value for—

"(aa) a terrorist activity;

"(bb) a terrorist organization described in clauses (vi)(I) or (vi)(II); or

"(cc) a terrorist organization described in clause (vi)(III), unless the solicitor can demonstrate that he did not know, and should not reasonably have known, that the solicitation would further the organization's terrorist activity;

"(V) to solicit any individual—

"(aa) to engage in conduct otherwise described in this clause;

"(bb) for membership in a terrorist organization described in clauses (vi)(I) or (vi)(II); or

"(cc) for membership in a terrorist organization described in clause (vi)(III), unless the solicitor can demonstrate that he did not know, and should not reasonably have known, that the solicitation would further the organization's terrorist activity; or

"(VI) to commit an act that the actor knows, or reasonably should know, affords material support, including a safe house, transportation, communications, funds, transfer of funds or other material financial benefit, false documentation or identification, weapons (including chemical, biological, or radiological weapons), explosives, or training—

"(aa) for the commission of a terrorist activity;

"(bb) to any individual who the actor knows, or reasonably should know, has committed or plans to commit a terrorist activity;

"(cc) to a terrorist organization described in clauses (vi)(I) or (vi)(II); or

"(dd) to a terrorist organization described in clause (vi)(III), unless the actor can demonstrate that he did not know, and should not reasonably have known, that the act would further the organization's terrorist activity.

This clause shall not apply to any material support the alien afforded to an organization or individual that has committed terrorist activity, if the Secretary of State, after consultation with the Attorney General, or the Attorney General, after consultation with the Secretary of State, concludes in his sole unreviewable discretion, that this clause should not apply."; and

(D) by adding at the end the following new clause:

"(vi) TERRORIST ORGANIZATION DEFINED.—As used in clause (i)(VI) and clause (iv), the term 'terrorist organization' means an organization—

"(I) designated under section 219;

"(II) otherwise designated, upon publication in the Federal Register, by the Secretary of State in consultation with or upon the request of the Attorney General, as a terrorist organization, after finding that it engages in the activities described in subclause (I), (II), or (III) of clause (iv), or that it provides material support to further terrorist activity; or

"(III) that is a group of two or more individuals, whether organized or not, which engages in the activities described in subclause (I), (II), or (III) of clause (iv)."; and

(2) by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(F) ASSOCIATION WITH TERRORIST ORGANIZATIONS.—Any alien who the Secretary of State, after consultation with the Attorney General, or the Attorney General, after consultation with the Secretary of State, determines has been associated with a terrorist organization and intends while in the United States to engage solely, principally, or incidentally in activities that could endanger the welfare, safety, or security of the United States is inadmissible.".

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 237(a)(4)(B) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1227(a)(4)(B)) is amended by striking "section 212(a)(3)(B)(iii)" and inserting "section 212(a)(3)(B)(iv)".

(c) RETROACTIVE APPLICATION OF AMENDMENTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, the amendments made by this section shall take effect on the date of enactment of this Act and shall apply to—

(A) actions taken by an alien before, on, or after such date; and

(B) all aliens, without regard to the date of entry or attempted entry into the United States—

(i) in removal proceedings on or after such date (except for proceedings in which there has been a final administrative decision before such date); or

(ii) seeking admission to the United States on or after such date.

(2) SPECIAL RULE FOR ALIENS IN EXCLUSION OR DEPORTATION PROCEEDINGS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the amendments made by this section shall apply to all aliens in exclusion or deportation proceedings on or after the date of enactment of this Act (except for proceedings in which there has been a final administrative decision before such date) as if such proceedings were removal proceedings.

(3) SPECIAL RULE FOR SECTION 219 ORGANIZATIONS AND ORGANIZATIONS DESIGNATED UNDER SECTION 212(a)(3)(B)(vi)(II).—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) and (2), no alien shall be considered inadmissible under section 212(a)(3) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(3)), or deportable under section 237(a)(4)(B) of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1227(a)(4)(B)), by reason of the amendments made by subsection (a), on the ground that the alien engaged in a terrorist activity described in subclause (IV)(bb), (V)(bb), or (VI)(cc) of section 212(a)(3)(B)(iv) of such Act (as so amended) with respect to a group at any time when the group was not a terrorist organization designated by the Secretary of State under section 219 of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1189) or otherwise designated under section 212(a)(3)(B)(vi)(II).

(B) STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Subparagraph (A) shall not be construed to prevent an alien from being considered inadmissible or deportable for having engaged in a terrorist activity—

(i) described in subclause (IV)(bb), (V)(bb), or (VI)(cc) of section 212(a)(3)(B)(iv) of such Act (as so amended) with respect to a terrorist organization at any time when such organization was designated by the Secretary of State under section 219 of such Act or otherwise designated under section 212(a)(3)(B)(vi)(II); or

(ii) described in subclause (IV)(cc), (V)(cc), or (VI)(dd) of section 212(a)(3)(B)(iv) of such Act (as so amended) with respect to a terrorist organization described in section 212(a)(3)(B)(vi)(III).

(4) EXCEPTION.—The Secretary of State, in consultation with the Attorney General, may determine that the amendments made by this section shall not apply with respect to actions by an alien taken outside the United States before the date of enactment of this Act upon the recommendation of a consular officer who has concluded that there is not reasonable ground to believe that the alien knew or reasonably should have known that the actions would further a terrorist activity.

(c) DESIGNATION OF FOREIGN TERRORIST ORGANIZATIONS.—Section 219(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1189(a)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1)(B), by inserting ''or terrorism (as defined in section 140(d)(2) of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1988 and 1989 (22 U.S.C. 2656f(d)(2)) or retains the capability and intent to engage in terrorist activity or terrorism)'' after ''212(a)(3)(B))'';

(2) in paragraph (1)(C), by inserting ''or terrorism'' after ''terrorist activity'';

(3) by amending paragraph (2)(A) to read as follows:

"(A) NOTICE.—

"(i) TO CONGRESSIONAL LEADERS.—Seven days before making a designation under this subsection, the Secretary shall, by classified communication, notify the Speaker and Minority Leader of the House of Representatives, the President pro tempore, Majority Leader, and Minority Leader of the Senate, and the members of the relevant committees, in writing, of the intent to designate an organization under this subsection, together with the findings made under paragraph (1) with respect to that organization, and the factual basis therefor.

"(ii) PUBLICATION IN FEDERAL REGISTER.—The Secretary shall publish the designation in the Federal Register seven days after providing the notification under clause (i).";

(4) in paragraph (2)(B)(i), by striking "subparagraph (A)" and inserting "subparagraph (A)(ii)";

(5) in paragraph (2)(C), by striking "paragraph (2)" and inserting "paragraph (2)(A)(i)";

(6) in paragraph (3)(B), by striking ''subsection (c)'' and inserting ''subsection (b)'';

(7) in paragraph (4)(B), by inserting after the first sentence the following: ''The Secretary also may redesignate such organization at the end of any 2-year redesignation period (but not sooner than 60 days prior to the termination of such period) for an additional 2-year period upon a finding that the relevant circumstances described in paragraph (1) still exist. Any redesignation shall be effective immediately following the end of the prior 2-year designation or redesignation period unless a different effective date is provided in such redesignation.'';

(8) in paragraph (6)(A)—

(A) by inserting ''or a redesignation made under paragraph (4)(B)'' after ''paragraph (1)'';

(B) in clause (i)—

(i) by inserting ''or redesignation'' after ''designation'' the first place it appears; and

(ii) by striking ''of the designation''; and

(C) in clause (ii), by striking ''of the designation'';

(9) in paragraph (6)(B)—

(A) by striking ''through (4)'' and inserting ''and (3)''; and

(B) by inserting at the end the following new sentence: ''Any revocation shall take effect on the date specified in the revocation or upon publication in the Federal Register if no effective date is specified.'';

(10) in paragraph (7), by inserting '', or the revocation of a redesignation under paragraph (6),'' after ''paragraph (5) or (6)''; and

(11) in paragraph (8)—

(A) by striking ''paragraph (1)(B)'' and inserting ''paragraph (2)(B), or if a redesignation under this subsection has become effective under paragraph (4)(B)'';

(B) by inserting ''or an alien in a removal proceeding'' after ''criminal action''; and

(C) by inserting ''or redesignation'' before ''as a defense''.

SEC. 412. MANDATORY DETENTION OF SUSPECTED TERRORISTS; HABEAS CORPUS; JUDICIAL REVIEW.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 236 the following:

"MANDATORY DETENTION OF SUSPECTED TERRORISTS; HABEAS CORPUS; JUDICIAL REVIEW

"SEC. 236A. (a) DETENTION OF TERRORIST ALIENS.—

"(1) CUSTODY.—The Attorney General shall take into custody any alien who is certified under paragraph (3).

"(2) RELEASE.—Except as provided in paragraph (5), the Attorney General shall maintain custody of such an alien until the alien is removed from the United States. Such custody shall be maintained irrespective of any relief from removal for which the alien may be eligible, or any relief from removal granted the alien, until the Attorney General determines that the alien is no longer an alien who may be certified under paragraph (3).

"(3) CERTIFICATION.—The Attorney General may certify an alien under this paragraph if the Attorney General has reasonable grounds to believe that the alien—

"(A) is described in section 212(a)(3)(A)(i), 212(a)(3)(A)(iii), 212(a)(3)(B), 237(a)(4)(A)(i), 237(a)(4)(A)(iii), or 237(a)(4)(B); or

"(B) is engaged in any other activity that endangers the national security of the United States.

"(4) NONDELEGATION.—The Attorney General may delegate the authority provided under paragraph (3) only to the Commissioner. The Commissioner may not delegate such authority.

"(5) COMMENCEMENT OF PROCEEDINGS.—The Attorney General shall place an alien detained under paragraph (1) in removal proceedings, or shall charge the alien with a criminal offense, not later than 7 days after the commencement of such detention. If the requirement of the preceding sentence is not satisfied, the Attorney General shall release the alien.

"(b) HABEAS CORPUS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW.—Judicial review of any action or decision relating to this section (including judicial review of the merits of a determination made under subsection (a)(3)) is available exclusively in habeas corpus proceedings in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, including section 2241 of title 28, United States Code, except as provided in the preceding sentence, no court shall have jurisdiction to review, by habeas corpus petition or otherwise, any such action or decision.

"(c) STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—The provisions of this section shall not be applicable to any other provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act.".

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of contents of the Immigration and Nationality Act is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 236 the following:

"Sec. 236A. Mandatory detention of suspected terrorist; habeas corpus; judicial review.".

(c) REPORTS.—Not later than 6 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, and every 6 months thereafter, the Attorney General shall submit a report to the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives and the Committee on the Judiciary of the Senate, with respect to the reporting period, on—

(1) the number of aliens certified under section 236A(a)(3) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, as added by subsection (a);

(2) the grounds for such certifications;

(3) the nationalities of the aliens so certified;

(4) the length of the detention for each alien so certified; and

(5) the number of aliens so certified who—

(A) were granted any form of relief from removal;

(B) were removed;

(C) the Attorney General has determined are no longer aliens who may be so certified; or

(D) were released from detention.

SEC. 413. MULTILATERAL COOPERATION AGAINST TERRORISTS.

Section 222(f) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1202(f)) is amended—

(1) by striking ''except that in the discretion of'' and inserting the following: ''except that—

''(1) in the discretion of''; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

''(2) the Secretary of State, in the Secretary's discretion and on the basis of reciprocity, may provide to a foreign government information in the Department of State's computerized visa lookout database and, when necessary and appropriate, other records covered by this section related to information in the database—

''(A) with regard to individual aliens, at any time on a case-by-case basis for the purpose of preventing, investigating, or punishing acts that would constitute a crime in the United States, including, but not limited to, terrorism or trafficking in controlled substances, persons, or illicit weapons; or

"(B) with regard to any or all aliens in the database, pursuant to such conditions as the Secretary of State shall establish in an agreement with the foreign government in which that government agrees to use such information and records for the purposes described in subparagraph (A) or to deny visas to persons who would be inadmissible to the United States.".

TITLE V—REMOVING OBSTACLES TO INVESTIGATING TERRORISM

SEC. 501. PROFESSIONAL STANDARDS FOR GOVERNMENT ATTORNEYS ACT OF 2001.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This title may be cited as the "Professional Standards for Government Attorneys Act of 2001".

(b) PROFESSIONAL STANDARDS FOR GOVERNMENT ATTORNEYS.—Section 530B of title 28, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 530B. Professional Standards for Government Attorneys

"(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

"(1) GOVERNMENT ATTORNEY.—The term 'Government attorney'—

"(A) means the Attorney General; the Deputy Attorney General; the Solicitor General; the Associate Attorney General; the head of, and any attorney employed in, any division, office, board, bureau, component, or agency of the Department of Justice; any United States Attorney; any Assistant United States Attorney; any Special Assistant to the Attorney General or Special Attorney appointed under section 515; any Special Assistant United States Attorney appointed under section 543 who is authorized to conduct criminal or civil law enforcement investigations or proceedings on behalf of the United States; any other attorney employed by the Department of Justice who is authorized to conduct criminal or civil law enforcement proceedings on behalf of the United States; any independent counsel, or employee of such counsel, appointed under chapter 40; and any outside special counsel, or employee of such counsel, as may be duly appointed by the Attorney General; and

"(B) does not include any attorney employed as an investigator or other law enforcement agent by the Department of Justice who is not authorized to represent the United States in criminal or civil law enforcement litigation or to supervise such proceedings.

"(2) STATE.—The term 'State' includes a Territory and the District of Columbia.

"(b) CHOICE OF LAW.—Subject to any uniform national rule prescribed by the Supreme Court under chapter 131, the standards of professional responsibility that apply to a Government attorney with respect to the attorney's work for the Government shall be—

"(1) for conduct in connection with a proceeding in or before a court, or conduct reasonably intended to lead to a proceeding in or before a court, the standards of professional responsibility established by the rules and decisions of the court in or before which the proceeding is brought or is intended to be brought;

"(2) for conduct in connection with a grand jury proceeding, or conduct reasonably intended to lead to a grand jury proceeding, the standards of professional responsibility established by the rules and decisions of the court under whose authority the grand jury was or will be impaneled; and

"(3) for all other conduct, the standards of professional responsibility established by the rules and decisions of the Federal district court for the judicial district in which the attorney principally performs his or her official duties.

"(c) LICENSURE.—A Government attorney (except foreign counsel employed in special cases)—

"(1) shall be duly licensed and authorized to practice as an attorney under the laws of a State; and

"(2) shall not be required to be a member of the bar of any particular State.

"(d) UNDERCOVER ACTIVITIES.—Notwithstanding any provision of State law, including disciplinary rules, statutes, regulations, constitutional provisions, or case law, a Government attorney may, for the purpose of enforcing Federal law, provide legal advice, authorization, concurrence, direction, or supervision on conducting undercover activities, and any attorney employed as an investigator or other law enforcement agent by the Department of Justice who is not authorized to represent the United States in criminal or civil law enforcement litigation or to supervise such proceedings may participate in such activities, even though such activities may require the use of deceit or misrepresentation, where such activities are consistent with Federal law.

"(e) ADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE.—No violation of any disciplinary, ethical, or professional conduct rule shall be construed to permit the exclusion of otherwise admissible evidence in any Federal criminal proceedings.

"(f) RULEMAKING AUTHORITY.—The Attorney General shall make and amend rules of the Department of Justice to ensure compliance with this section.".

(c) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The analysis for chapter 31 of title 28, United States Code, is amended, in the item relating to section 530B, by striking "Ethical standards for attorneys for the Government" and inserting "Professional standards for Government attorneys".

(d) REPORTS.—

(1) UNIFORM RULE.—In order to encourage the Supreme Court to prescribe, under chapter 131 of title 28, United States Code, a uniform national rule for Government attorneys with respect to communications with represented persons and parties, not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Judicial Conference of the United States shall submit to the Chief Justice of the United States a report, which shall include recommendations with respect to amending the Federal Rules of Practice and Procedure to provide for such a uniform national rule.

(2) ACTUAL OR POTENTIAL CONFLICTS.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Judicial Conference of the United States shall submit to the Chairmen and Ranking Members of the Committees on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives and the Senate a report, which shall include—

(A) a review of any areas of actual or potential conflict between specific Federal duties related to the investigation and prosecution of violations of Federal law and the regulation of Government attorneys (as that term is defined in section 530B of title 28, United States Code, as amended by this Act) by existing standards of professional responsibility; and

(B) recommendations with respect to amending the Federal Rules of Practice and Procedure to provide for additional rules governing attorney conduct to address any areas of actual or potential conflict identified pursuant to the review under subparagraph (A).

(3) REPORT CONSIDERATIONS.—In carrying out paragraphs (1) and (2), the Judicial Conference of the United States shall take into consideration—

(A) the needs and circumstances of multiforum and multijurisdictional litigation;

(B) the special needs and interests of the United States in investigating and prosecuting violations of Federal criminal and civil law; and

(C) practices that are approved under Federal statutory or case law or that are otherwise consistent with traditional Federal law enforcement techniques.

SEC. 502. ATTORNEY GENERAL'S AUTHORITY TO PAY REWARDS TO COMBAT TERRORISM.

(a) PAYMENT OF REWARDS TO COMBAT TERRORISM.—Funds available to the Attorney General may be used for the payment of rewards pursuant to public advertisements for assistance to the Department of Justice to combat terrorism and defend the Nation against terrorist acts, in accordance with procedures and regulations established or issued by the Attorney General.

(b) CONDITIONS.—In making rewards under this section—

(1) no such reward of $250,000 or more may be made or offered without the personal approval of either the Attorney General or the President;

(2) the Attorney General shall give written notice to the Chairmen and ranking minority members of the Committees on Appropriations and the Judiciary of the Senate and of the House of Representatives not later than 30 days after the approval of a reward under paragraph (1);

(3) any executive agency or military department (as defined, respectively, in sections 105 and 102 of title 5, United States Code) may provide the Attorney General with funds for the payment of rewards;

(4) neither the failure of the Attorney General to authorize a payment nor the amount authorized shall be subject to judicial review; and

(5) no such reward shall be subject to any per- or aggregate reward spending limitation established by law, unless that law expressly refers to this section, and no reward paid pursuant to any such offer shall count toward any such aggregate reward spending limitation.

SEC. 503. SECRETARY OF STATE'S AUTHORITY TO PAY REWARDS.

SEC. 509. DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION FROM NCES SURVEYS.

Section 408 of the National Education Statistics Act of 1994 (20 U.S.C. 9007), is amended by adding after subsection (b) a new subsection (c) to read as follows:

"(c) INVESTIGATION AND PROSECUTION OF TERRORISM.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding subsections (a) and (b), the Attorney General (or any Federal officer or employee, in a position not lower than an Assistant Attorney General, designated by the Attorney General) may submit a written application to a court of competent jurisdiction for an ex parte order requiring the Secretary to permit the Attorney General (or his designee) to—

"(A) collect reports, records, and information (including individually identifiable information) in the possession of the center that are relevant to an authorized investigation or prosecution of an offense listed in section 2332b(g)(5)(B) of title 18, United States Code, or an act of domestic or international terrorism as defined in section 2331 of that title; and

"(B) for official purposes related to the investigation or prosecution of an offense described in paragraph (1)(A), retain, disseminate, and use (including as evidence at trial or in other administrative or judicial proceedings) such information, consistent with such guidelines as the Attorney General, after consultation with the Secretary, shall issue to protect confidentiality.

"(2) APPLICATION AND APPROVAL.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—An application under paragraph (1) shall certify that there are specific and articulable facts giving reason to believe that the information sought is described in paragraph (1)(A).

"(B) The court shall issue an order described in paragraph (1) if the court finds that the application for the order includes the certification described in subparagraph (A).

"(3) PROTECTION.—An officer or employee of the Department who, in good faith, produces information in accordance with an order issued under this subsection does not violate subsection (b)(2) and shall not be liable to any person for that production.".

TITLE VI—PROVIDING FOR VICTIMS OF TERRORISM, PUBLIC SAFETY OFFICERS, AND THEIR FAMILIES

Subtitle A—Aid to Families of Public Safety Officers

SEC. 611. EXPEDITED PAYMENT FOR PUBLIC SAFETY OFFICERS INVOLVED IN THE PREVENTION, INVESTIGATION, RESCUE, OR RECOVERY EFFORTS RELATED TO A TERRORIST ATTACK.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding the limitations of subsection (b) of section 1201 or the provisions of sub-sections (c), (d), and (e) of such section or section 1202 of title I of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 3796, 3796a), upon certification (containing identification of all eligible payees of benefits pursuant to section 1201 of such Act) by a public agency that a public safety officer employed by such agency was killed or suffered a catastrophic injury producing permanent and total disability as a direct and proximate result of a personal injury sustained in the line of duty as described in section 1201 of such Act in connection with prevention, investigation, rescue, or recovery efforts related to a terrorist attack, the Director of the Bureau of Justice Assistance shall authorize payment to qualified beneficiaries, said payment to be made not later than 30 days after receipt of such certification, benefits described under subpart 1 of part L of such Act (42 U.S.C. 3796 et seq.).

(b) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section, the terms "catastrophic injury", "public agency", and "public safety officer" have the same meanings given such terms in section 1204 of title I of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 3796b).

SEC. 612. TECHNICAL CORRECTION WITH RESPECT TO EXPEDITED PAYMENTS FOR HEROIC PUBLIC SAFETY OFFICERS.

Section 1 of Public Law 107-37 (an Act to provide for the expedited payment of certain benefits for a public safety officer who was killed or suffered a catastrophic injury as a direct and proximate result of a personal injury sustained in the line of duty in connection with the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001) is amended by—

(1) inserting before "by a" the following: "(containing identification of all eligible payees of benefits pursuant to section 1201)";

(d) ANTITERRORISM EMERGENCY RESERVE.—Section 1402(d)(5) of the Victims of Crime Act of 1984 (42 U.S.C. 10601(d)(5)) is amended to read as follows:

"(5)(A) In addition to the amounts distributed under paragraphs (2), (3), and (4), the Director may set aside up to $50,000,000 from the amounts transferred to the Fund for use in responding to the airplane hijackings and terrorist acts that occurred on September 11, 2001, as an antiterrorism emergency reserve. The Director may replenish any amounts expended from such reserve in subsequent fiscal years by setting aside up to 5 percent of the amounts remaining in the Fund in any fiscal year after distributing amounts under paragraphs (2), (3) and (4). Such reserve shall not exceed $50,000,000.

"(B) The antiterrorism emergency reserve referred to in subparagraph (A) may be used for supplemental grants under section 1404B and to provide compensation to victims of international terrorism under section 1404C.

"(C) Amounts in the antiterrorism emergency reserve established pursuant to subparagraph (A) may be carried over from fiscal year to fiscal year. Notwithstanding subsection (c) and section 619 of the Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2001 (and any similar limitation on Fund obligations in any future Act, unless the same should expressly refer to this section), any such amounts carried over shall not be subject to any limitation on obligations from amounts deposited to or available in the Fund.".

(e) VICTIMS OF SEPTEMBER 11, 2001.—Amounts transferred to the Crime Victims Fund for use in responding to the airplane hijackings and terrorist acts (including any related search, rescue, relief, assistance, or other similar activities) that occurred on September 11, 2001, shall not be subject to any limitation on obligations from amounts deposited to or available in the Fund, notwithstanding—

(1) section 619 of the Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2001, and any similar limitation on Fund obligations in such Act for Fiscal Year 2002; and

TITLE IX—IMPROVED INTELLIGENCE

SEC. 901. RESPONSIBILITIES OF DIRECTOR OF CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE REGARDING FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE COLLECTED UNDER FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE SURVEILLANCE ACT OF 1978.

Section 103(c) of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 403–3(c)) is amended—

(1) by redesignating paragraphs (6) and (7) as paragraphs (7) and (8), respectively; and

(2) by inserting after paragraph (5) the following new paragraph (6):

"(6) establish requirements and priorities for foreign intelligence information to be collected under the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978 (50 U.S.C. 1801 et seq.), and provide assistance to the Attorney General to ensure that information derived from electronic surveillance or physical searches under that Act is disseminated so it may be used efficiently and effectively for foreign intelligence purposes, except that the Director shall have no authority to direct, manage, or undertake electronic surveillance operations pursuant to that Act unless otherwise authorized by statute or executive order;".

SEC. 902. INCLUSION OF INTERNATIONAL TERRORIST ACTIVITIES WITHIN SCOPE OF FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE UNDER NATIONAL SECURITY ACT OF 1947.

Section 3 of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 401a) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (2), by inserting before the period the following: ", or international terrorist activities"; and

(2) in paragraph (3), by striking "and activities conducted" and inserting ", and activities conducted,".

SEC. 903. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON THE ESTABLISHMENT AND MAINTENANCE OF INTELLIGENCE RELATIONSHIPS TO ACQUIRE INFORMATION ON TERRORISTS AND TERRORIST ORGANIZATIONS.

It is the sense of Congress that officers and employees of the intelligence community of the Federal Government, acting within the course of their official duties, should be encouraged, and should make every effort, to establish and maintain intelligence relationships with any person, entity, or group for the purpose of engaging in lawful intelligence activities, including the acquisition of information on the identity, location, finances, affiliations, capabilities, plans, or intentions of a terrorist or terrorist organization, or information on any other person, entity, or group (including a foreign government) engaged in harboring, comforting, financing, aiding, or assisting a terrorist or terrorist organization.

SEC. 904. TEMPORARY AUTHORITY TO DEFER SUBMITTAL TO CONGRESS OF REPORTS ON INTELLIGENCE AND INTELLIGENCE-RELATED MATTERS.

(a) AUTHORITY TO DEFER.—The Secretary of Defense, Attorney General, and Director of Central Intelligence each may, during the effective period of this section, defer the date of submittal to Congress of any covered intelligence report under the jurisdiction of such official until February 1, 2002.

(b) COVERED INTELLIGENCE REPORT.—Except as provided in subsection (c), for purposes of subsection (a), a covered intelligence report is as follows:

(1) Any report on intelligence or intelligence-related activities of the United States Government that is required to be submitted to Congress by an element of the intelligence community during the effective period of this section.

(2) Any report or other matter that is required to be submitted to the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate and Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives by the Department of Defense or the Department of Justice during the effective period of this section.

(c) EXCEPTION FOR CERTAIN REPORTS.—For purposes of subsection (a), any report required by section 502 or 503 of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 413a, 413b) is not a covered intelligence report.

(d) NOTICE TO CONGRESS.—Upon deferring the date of submittal to Congress of a covered intelligence report under subsection (a), the official deferring the date of submittal of the covered intelligence report shall submit to Congress notice of the deferral. Notice of deferral of a report shall specify the provision of law, if any, under which the report would otherwise be submitted to Congress.

(e) EXTENSION OF DEFERRAL.—(1) Each official specified in subsection (a) may defer the date of submittal to Congress of a covered intelligence report under the jurisdiction of such official to a date after February 1, 2002, if such official submits to the committees of Congress specified in subsection (b)(2) before February 1, 2002, a certification that preparation and submittal of the covered intelligence report on February 1, 2002, will impede the work of officers or employees who are engaged in counterterrorism activities.

(2) A certification under paragraph (1) with respect to a covered intelligence report shall specify the date on which the covered intelligence report will be submitted to Congress.

(f) EFFECTIVE PERIOD.—The effective period of this section is the period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act and ending on February 1, 2002.

(g) ELEMENT OF THE INTELLIGENCE COMMUNITY DEFINED.—In this section, the term "element of the intelligence community" means any element of the intelligence community specified or designated under section 3(4) of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 401a(4)).

SEC. 905. DISCLOSURE TO DIRECTOR OF CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE OF FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE-RELATED INFORMATION WITH RESPECT TO CRIMINAL INVESTIGATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Title I of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 402 et seq.) is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsection 105B as section 105C; and

(2) by inserting after section 105A the following new section 105B:

"DISCLOSURE OF FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE ACQUIRED IN CRIMINAL INVESTIGATIONS; NOTICE OF CRIMINAL INVESTIGATIONS OF FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE SOURCES

"SEC. 105B. (a) DISCLOSURE OF FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.—(1) Except as otherwise provided by law and subject to paragraph (2), the Attorney General, or the head of any other department or agency of the Federal Government with law enforcement responsibilities, shall expeditiously disclose to the Director of Central Intelligence, pursuant to guidelines developed by the Attorney General in consultation with the Director, foreign intelligence acquired by an element of the Department of Justice or an element of such department or agency, as the case may be, in the course of a criminal investigation.

"(2) The Attorney General by regulation and in consultation with the Director of Central Intelligence may provide for exceptions to the applicability of paragraph (1) for one or more classes of foreign intelligence, or foreign intelligence with respect to one or more targets or matters, if the Attorney General determines that disclosure of such foreign intelligence under that paragraph would jeopardize an ongoing law enforcement investigation or impair other significant law enforcement interests.

"(b) PROCEDURES FOR NOTICE OF CRIMINAL INVESTIGATIONS.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this section, the Attorney General, in consultation with the Director of Central Intelligence, shall develop guidelines to ensure that after receipt of a report from an element of the intelligence community of activity of a foreign intelligence source or potential foreign intelligence source that may warrant investigation as criminal activity, the Attorney General provides notice to the Director of Central Intelligence, within a reasonable period of time, of his intention to commence, or decline to commence, a criminal investigation of such activity.

"(c) PROCEDURES.—The Attorney General shall develop procedures for the administration of this section, including the disclosure of foreign intelligence by elements of the Department of Justice, and elements of other departments and agencies of the Federal Government, under subsection (a) and the provision of notice with respect to criminal investigations under subsection (b).".

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of contents in the first section of that Act is amended by striking the item relating to section 105B and inserting the following new items:

"Sec. 105B. Disclosure of foreign intelligence acquired in criminal investigations; notice of criminal investigations of foreign intelligence sources.
"Sec. 105C. Protection of the operational files of the National Imagery and Mapping Agency.".

SEC. 906. FOREIGN TERRORIST ASSET TRACKING CENTER.

(a) REPORT ON RECONFIGURATION.—Not later than February 1, 2002, the Attorney General, the Director of Central Intelligence, and the Secretary of the Treasury shall jointly submit to Congress a report on the feasibility and desirability of reconfiguring the Foreign Terrorist Asset Tracking Center and the Office of Foreign Assets Control of the Department of the Treasury in order to establish a capability to provide for the effective and efficient analysis and dissemination of foreign intelligence relating to the financial capabilities and resources of international terrorist organizations.

(b) REPORT REQUIREMENTS.—(1) In preparing the report under subsection (a), the Attorney General, the Secretary, and the Director shall consider whether, and to what extent, the capacities and resources of the Financial Crimes Enforcement Center of the Department of the Treasury may be integrated into the capability contemplated by the report.

(2) If the Attorney General, Secretary, and the Director determine that it is feasible and desirable to undertake the reconfiguration described in subsection (a) in order to establish the capability described in that subsection, the Attorney General, the Secretary, and the Director shall include with the report under that subsection a detailed proposal for legislation to achieve the reconfiguration.

SEC. 907. NATIONAL VIRTUAL TRANSLATION CENTER.

(a) REPORT ON ESTABLISHMENT.—(1) Not later than February 1, 2002, the Director of Central Intelligence shall, in consultation with the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report on the establishment and maintenance within the intelligence community of an element for purposes of providing timely and accurate translations of foreign intelligence for all other elements of the intelligence community. In the report, the element shall be referred to as the ''National Virtual Translation Center''.

(2) The report on the element described in paragraph (1) shall discuss the use of state-of-the-art communications technology, the integration of existing translation capabilities in the intelligence community, and the utilization of remote-connection capacities so as to minimize the need for a central physical facility for the element.

(b) RESOURCES.—The report on the element required by subsection (a) shall address the following:

(1) The assignment to the element of a staff of individuals possessing a broad range of linguistic and translation skills appropriate for the purposes of the element.

TITLE II—ALIENS ENGAGING IN TERRORIST ACTIVITY

Subtitle A—Detention and Removal of Aliens Engaging in Terrorist Activity

SEC. 201. CHANGES IN CLASSES OF ALIENS WHO ARE INELIGIBLE FOR ADMISSION AND DEPORTABLE DUE TO TERRORIST ACTIVITY.

(a) ALIENS INELIGIBLE FOR ADMISSION DUE TO TERRORIST ACTIVITIES.—Section 212(a)(3)(B) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(3)(B)) is amended—

(1) in clause (i)—

(A) in subclauses (I), (II), and (III), by striking the comma at the end and inserting a semicolon;

(B) by amending subclause (IV) to read as follows:

"(IV) is a representative of—

"(a) a foreign terrorist organization, as designated by the Secretary of State under section 219; or

"(b) a political, social, or other similar group whose public endorsement of terrorist activity the Secretary of State has determined undermines the efforts of the United States to reduce or eliminate terrorist activities;";

(C) in subclause (V), by striking any comma at the end, by striking any "or" at the end, and by adding "; or" at the end; and

(D) by inserting after subclause (V) the following:

"(VI) has used the alien's prominence within a foreign state or the United States to endorse or espouse terrorist activity, or to persuade others to support terrorist activity or a terrorist organization, in a way that the Secretary of State has determined undermines the efforts of the United States to reduce or eliminate terrorist activities;";

(2) in clause (ii)—

(A) in the matter preceding subclause (I), by striking "(or which, if committed in the United States," and inserting "(or which, if it had been or were to be committed in the United States,"; and

(B) in subclause (V)(b), by striking "explosive or firearm" and inserting "explosive, firearm, or other object";

(3) by amending clause (iii) to read as follows:

"(iii) ENGAGE IN TERRORIST ACTIVITY DEFINED.—As used in this Act, the term 'engage in terrorist activity' means, in an individual capacity or as a member of an organization—

"(I) to commit a terrorist activity;

"(II) to plan or prepare to commit a terrorist activity;

"(III) to gather information on potential targets for a terrorist activity;

"(IV) to solicit funds or other things of value for—

"(a) a terrorist activity;

"(b) an organization designated as a foreign terrorist organization under section 219; or

"(c) a terrorist organization described in clause (v)(II), but only if the solicitor knows, or reasonably should know, that the solicitation would further a terrorist activity;

"(V) to solicit any individual—

"(a) to engage in conduct otherwise described in this clause;

"(b) for membership in a terrorist government;

"(c) for membership in an organization designated as a foreign terrorist organization under section 219; or

"(d) for membership in a terrorist organization described in clause (v)(II), but only if the solicitor knows, or reasonably should know, that the solicitation would further a terrorist activity; or

"(VI) to commit an act that the actor knows, or reasonably should know, affords material support, including a safe house, transportation, communications, funds, transfer of funds or other material financial benefit, false documentation or identification, weapons (including chemical, biological, and radiological weapons), explosives, or training—

"(a) for the commission of a terrorist activity;

"(b) to any individual who the actor knows, or reasonably should know, has committed or plans to commit a terrorist activity;

"(c) to an organization designated as a foreign terrorist organization under section 219; or

"(d) to a terrorist organization described in clause (v)(II), but only if the actor knows, or reasonably should know, that the act would further a terrorist activity."; and

(4) by adding at the end the following:

"(v) TERRORIST ORGANIZATION DEFINED.—As used in this subparagraph, the term 'terrorist organization' means—

"(I) an organization designated as a foreign terrorist organization under section 219; or

"(II) with regard to a group that is not an organization described in subclause (I), a group of 2 or more individuals, whether organized or not, which engages in, or which has a significant subgroup which engages in, the activities described in subclause (I), (II), or (III) of clause (iii).

"(vi) SPECIAL RULE FOR MATERIAL SUPPORT.—Clause (iii)(VI)(b) shall not be construed to include the affording of material support to an individual who committed or planned to commit a terrorist activity, if the alien establishes by clear and convincing evidence that such support was afforded only after such individual permanently and publicly renounced, rejected the use of, and had ceased to engage in, terrorist activity.".

(b) ALIENS INELIGIBLE FOR ADMISSION DUE TO ENDANGERMENT.—Section 212(a)(3) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(3)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(F) ENDANGERMENT.—Any alien who the Secretary of State, after consultation with the Attorney General, or the Attorney General, after consultation with the Secretary of State, determines has been associated with a terrorist organization and intends while in the United States to engage solely, principally, or incidentally in activities that could endanger the welfare, safety, or security of the United States is inadmissible.".

(c) ALIENS DEPORTABLE DUE TO TERRORIST ACTIVITIES.—Section 237(a)(4)(B) of the Immigration and Nationality (8 U.S.C. 1227(a)(4)(B)) is amended to read as follows:

"(B) TERRORIST ACTIVITIES.—Any alien is deportable who—

"(i) has engaged, is engaged, or at any time after admission engages in terrorist activity (as defined in section 212(a)(3)(B)(iii));

"(ii) is a representative (as defined in section 212(a)(3)(B)(iv)) of—

"(I) a foreign terrorist organization, as designated by the Secretary of State under section 219; or

"(II) a political, social, or other similar group whose public endorsement of terrorist activity—

"(a) is intended and likely to incite or produce imminent lawless action; and

"(b) has been determined by the Secretary of State to undermine the efforts of the United States to reduce or eliminate terrorist activities; or

"(iii) has used the alien's prominence within a foreign state or the United States—

"(I) to endorse, in a manner that is intended and likely to incite or produce imminent lawless action and that has been determined by the Secretary of State to undermine the efforts of the United States to reduce or eliminate terrorist activities, terrorist activity; or

"(II) to persuade others, in a manner that is intended and likely to incite or produce imminent lawless action and that has been determined by the Secretary of State to undermine the efforts of the United States to reduce or eliminate terrorist activities, to support terrorist activity or a terrorist organization (as defined in section 212(a)(3)(B)(v))."

(d) RETROACTIVE APPLICATION OF AMENDMENTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The amendments made by this section shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act and shall apply to—

(A) actions taken by an alien before such date, as well as actions taken on or after such date; and

(B) all aliens, without regard to the date of entry or attempted entry into the United States—

(i) in removal proceedings on or after such date (except for proceedings in which there has been a final administrative decision before such date); or

(ii) seeking admission to the United States on or after such date.

(2) SPECIAL RULE FOR ALIENS IN EXCLUSION OR DEPORTATION PROCEEDINGS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the amendments made by this section shall apply to all aliens in exclusion or deportation proceedings on or after the date of the enactment of this Act (except for proceedings in which there has been a final administrative decision before such date) as if such proceedings were removal proceedings.

(3) SPECIAL RULE FOR SECTION 219 ORGANIZATIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) and (2), no alien shall be considered inadmissible under section 212(a)(3) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(3)), or deportable under section 237(a)(4)(B) of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1227(a)(4)(B)), by reason of the amendments made by subsection (a), on the ground that the alien engaged in a terrorist activity described in subclause (IV)(b), (V)(c), or (VI)(c) of section

212(a)(3)(B)(iii) of such Act (as so amended) with respect to a group at any time when the group was not a foreign terrorist organization designated by the Secretary of State under section 219 of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1189).

(B) CONSTRUCTION.—Subparagraph (A) shall not be construed to prevent an alien from being considered inadmissible or deportable for having engaged in a terrorist activity—

(i) described in subclause (IV)(b), (V)(c), or (VI)(c) of section 212(a)(3)(B)(iii) of such Act (as so amended) with respect to a foreign terrorist organization at any time when such organization was designated by the Secretary of State under section 219 of such Act; or

(ii) described in subclause (IV)(c), (V)(d), or (VI)(d) of section 212(a)(3)(B)(iii) of such Act (as so amended) with respect to any group described in any of such subclauses.

(A) in paragraph (2), by adding "and" at the end;

(B) in paragraph (3), by striking "; and" at the end and inserting a period; and

(C) by striking paragraph (4); and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

"(d) IMPLEMENTATION OF DUTIES AND AUTHORITIES.—

"(1) BY SECRETARY OR ATTORNEY GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, the duties under this section shall, and authorities under this section may, be exercised by—

"(A) the Secretary of State—

"(i) after consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury and with the concurrence of the Attorney General; or

"(ii) upon instruction by the President pursuant to paragraph (2); or

"(B) the Attorney General—

"(i) after consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury and with the concurrence of the Secretary of State; or

"(ii) upon instruction by the President pursuant to paragraph (2).

"(2) CONCURRENCE.—The Secretary of State and the Attorney General shall each seek the other's concurrence in accordance with paragraph (1). In any case in which such concurrence is denied or withheld, the official seeking the concurrence shall so notify the President and shall request the President to make a determination as to how the issue shall be resolved. Such notification and request of the President may not be made before the earlier of—

"(A) the date on which a denial of concurrence is received; or

"(B) the end of the 60-day period beginning on the date the concurrence was sought.

"(3) EXCEPTION.—It shall be the duty of the Secretary of State to carry out the procedural requirements of paragraphs (2)(A) and (6)(B) of subsection (a) in all cases, including cases in which a designation or revocation is initiated by the Attorney General.".

SEC. 203. MANDATORY DETENTION OF SUSPECTED TERRORISTS; HABEAS CORPUS; JUDICIAL REVIEW.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 236 the following:

"SEC. 236A. (a) DETENTION OF TERRORIST ALIENS.—

"(1) CUSTODY.—The Attorney General shall take into custody any alien who is certified under paragraph (3).

"(2) RELEASE.—Except as provided in paragraphs (5) and (6), the Attorney General shall maintain custody of such an alien until the alien is removed from the United States or found not to be inadmissible or deportable, as the case may be. Except as provided in paragraph (6), such custody shall be maintained irrespective of any relief from removal for which the alien may be eligible, or any relief from removal granted the alien, until the Attorney General determines that the alien is no longer an alien who may be certified under paragraph (3).

"(3) CERTIFICATION.—The Attorney General may certify an alien under this paragraph if the Attorney General has reasonable grounds to believe that the alien—

"(A) is described in section 212(a)(3)(A)(i), 212(a)(3)(A)(iii), 212(a)(3)(B), 237(a)(4)(A)(i), 237(a)(4)(A)(iii), or 237(a)(4)(B); or

"(B) is engaged in any other activity that endangers the national security of the United States.

"(4) NONDELEGATION.—The Attorney General may delegate the authority provided under paragraph (3) only to the Deputy Attorney General. The Deputy Attorney General may not delegate such authority.

"(5) COMMENCEMENT OF PROCEEDINGS.—The Attorney General shall place an alien detained under paragraph (1) in removal proceedings, or shall charge the alien with a criminal offense, not later than 7 days after the commencement of such detention. If the requirement of the preceding sentence is not satisfied, the Attorney General shall release the alien.

"(6) LIMITATION ON INDEFINITE DETENTION.—An alien detained under paragraph (1) who has been ordered removed based on one or more of the grounds of inadmissibility or deportability referred to in paragraph (3)(A), who has not been removed within the removal period specified under section 241(a)(1)(A), and whose removal is unlikely in the reasonably foreseeable future, may be detained for additional periods of up to six months if the Attorney General demonstrates that the release of the alien will not protect the national security of the United States or adequately ensure the safety of the community or any person.

"(b) HABEAS CORPUS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW.—Judicial review of any action or decision relating to this section (including judicial review of the merits of a determination made under subsection (a)(3) or (a)(6)) is available exclusively in habeas corpus proceedings initiated in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, including section 2241 of title 28, United States Code, except as provided in the preceding sentence, no court shall have jurisdiction to review, by habeas corpus petition or otherwise, any such action or decision.".

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of contents of the Immigration and Nationality Act is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 236 the following:

"Sec. 236A. Mandatory detention of suspected terrorists; habeas corpus; judicial review.".

(c) REPORTS.—Not later than 6 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, and every 6 months thereafter, the Attorney General shall submit a report to the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives and the Committee on the Judiciary of the Senate, with respect to the reporting period, on—

(1) the number of aliens certified under section 236A(a)(3) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, as added by subsection (a);

(2) the grounds for such certifications;

(3) the nationalities of the aliens so certified;

(4) the length of the detention for each alien so certified; and

(5) the number of aliens so certified who—

(A) were granted any form of relief from removal;

(B) were removed;

(C) the Attorney General has determined are no longer an alien who may be so certified; or

(D) were released from detention.

SEC. 204. CHANGES IN CONDITIONS FOR GRANTING ASYLUM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 208(b)(2)(A)(v) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1158(b)(2)(A)(v)) is amended—

(1) by striking ''inadmissible under'' each place such term appears and inserting ''described in''; and

(2) by striking ''removable under'' and inserting ''described in''.

(b) RETROACTIVE APPLICATION OF AMENDMENTS.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act and shall apply to—

(1) actions taken by an alien before such date, as well as actions taken on or after such date; and

(2) all aliens, without regard to the date of entry or attempted entry into the United States, whose application for asylum is pending on or after such date (except for applications with respect to which there has been a final administrative decision before such date).

SEC. 205. MULTILATERAL COOPERATION AGAINST TERRORISTS.

Section 222(f) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1202(f)) is amended—

(1) by striking "The records" and inserting "(1) Subject to paragraphs (2) and (3), the records";

(2) by striking "United States," and all that follows through the period at the end and inserting "United States."; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

"(2) In the discretion of the Secretary of State, certified copies of such records may be made available to a court which certifies that the information contained in such records is needed by the court in the interest of the ends of justice in a case pending before the court.

"(3)(A) Subject to the provisions of this paragraph, the Secretary of State may provide copies of records of the Department of State and of diplomatic and consular offices of the United States (including the Department of State's automated visa lookout database) pertaining to the issuance or refusal of visas or permits to enter the United States, or information contained in such records, to foreign governments if the Secretary determines that it is necessary and appropriate.

"(B) Such records and information may be provided on a case-by-case basis for the purpose of preventing, investigating, or punishing acts of terrorism. General access to records and information may be provided under an agreement to limit the use of such records and information to the purposes described in the preceding sentence.

"(C) The Secretary of State shall make any determination under this paragraph in consultation with any Federal agency that compiled or provided such records or information.

"(D) To the extent possible, such records and information shall be made available to foreign governments on a reciprocal basis.".

SEC. 206. REQUIRING SHARING BY THE FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION OF CERTAIN CRIMINAL RECORD EXTRACTS WITH OTHER FEDERAL AGENCIES IN ORDER TO ENHANCE BORDER SECURITY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 105 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1105), is amended—

(1) in the section heading, by adding "AND DATA EXCHANGE" at the end;

(2) by inserting "(a) LIAISON WITH INTERNAL SECURITY OFFICERS.—" after "105.";

(3) by striking "the internal security of" and inserting "the internal and border security of"; and

(4) by adding at the end the following:

"(b) CRIMINAL HISTORY RECORD INFORMATION.—The Attorney General and the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation shall provide the Secretary of State and the Commissioner access to the criminal history record information contained in the National Crime Information Center's Interstate Identification Index, Wanted Persons File, and to any other files maintained by the National Crime Information Center that may be mutually agreed upon by the Attorney General and the official to be provided access, for the purpose of determining whether a visa applicant or applicant for admission has a criminal history record indexed in any such file. Such access shall be provided by means of extracts of the records for placement in the Department of State's automated visa lookout database or other appropriate database, and shall be provided without any fee or charge. The Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation shall provide periodic updates of the extracts at intervals mutually agreed upon by the Attorney General and the official provided access. Upon receipt of such updated extracts, the receiving official shall make corresponding updates to the official's databases and destroy previously provided extracts. Such access to any extract shall not be construed to entitle the Secretary of State to obtain the full content of the corresponding automated criminal history record. To obtain the full content of a criminal history record, the Secretary of State shall submit the applicant's fingerprints and any appropriate fingerprint processing fee authorized by law to the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"(c) RECONSIDERATION.—The provision of the extracts described in subsection (b) may be reconsidered by the Attorney General and the receiving official upon the development and deployment of a more cost-effective and efficient means of sharing the information.

"(d) REGULATIONS.—For purposes of administering this section, the Secretary of State shall, prior to receiving access to National Crime Information Center data, promulgate final regulations—

"(1) to implement procedures for the taking of fingerprints; and

"(2) to establish the conditions for the use of the information received from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in order—

"(A) to limit the redissemination of such information;

"(B) to ensure that such information is used solely to determine whether to issue a visa to an individual;

"(C) to ensure the security, confidentiality, and destruction of such information; and

"(D) to protect any privacy rights of individuals who are subjects of such information.".

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of contents of the Immigration and Nationality Act is amended by amending the item relating to section 105 to read as follows:

"Sec. 105. Liaison with internal security officers and data exchange.".

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE AND IMPLEMENTATION.—The amendments made by this section shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act and shall be fully implemented not later than 18 months after such date.

(d) REPORTING REQUIREMENT.—Not later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Attorney General and the Secretary of State, jointly, shall report to the Congress on the implementation of the amendments made by this section.

(e) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section, or in any other law, shall be construed to limit the authority of the Attorney General or the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to provide access to the criminal history record information contained in the National Crime Information Center's Interstate Identification Index, or to any other information maintained by such center, to any Federal agency or officer authorized to enforce or administer the immigration laws of the United States, for the purpose of such enforcement or administration, upon terms that are consistent with sections 212 through 216 of the National Crime Prevention and Privacy Compact Act of 1998 (42 U.S.C. 14611 et seq.).

SEC. 207. INADMISSIBILITY OF ALIENS ENGAGED IN MONEY LAUNDERING.

(a) AMENDMENT TO IMMIGRATION AND NATIONALITY ACT.—Section 212(a)(2) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(2)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(I) MONEY LAUNDERING.—Any alien—

"(i) who a consular officer or the Attorney General knows, or has reason to believe, has engaged, is engaging, or seeks to enter the United States to engage, in an offense which is described in section 1956 of title 18, United States Code (relating to laundering of monetary instruments); or

"(ii) who a consular officer or the Attorney General knows is, or has been, a knowing aider, abettor, assister, conspirator, or colluder with others in an offense which is described in such section; is inadmissible.".

(b) MONEY LAUNDERING WATCHLIST.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of State shall develop, implement, and certify to the Congress that there has been established a money laundering watchlist, which identifies individuals worldwide who are known or suspected of money laundering, which is readily accessible to, and shall be checked by, a consular or other Federal official prior to the issuance of a visa or admission to the United States. The Secretary of State shall develop and continually update the watchlist in cooperation with the Attorney General, the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Director of Central Intelligence.

SEC. 208. PROGRAM TO COLLECT INFORMATION RELATING TO NONIMMIGRANT FOREIGN STUDENTS AND OTHER EXCHANGE PROGRAM PARTICIPANTS.

(a) CHANGES IN DEADLINES.—Section 641 of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (8 U.S.C. 1372) is amended—

(1) in subsection (f), by striking "Not later than 4 years after the commencement of the program established under subsection (a)," and inserting "Not later than 120 days after the date of the enactment of the PATRIOT Act of 2001,"; and

(2) in subsection (g)(1), by striking "12 months" and inserting "120 days".

(b) INCREASED FEE FOR CERTAIN STUDENTS.—Section 641(e)(4)(A) of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (8 U.S.C. 1372(e)(4)(A)) is amended by adding at the end the following: "In the case of an alien who is a national of a country, the government of which the Secretary of State has determined, for purposes of section 6(j)(1) of the Export Administration Act of 1979 (50 U.S.C. App. 2405(j)(1)), has repeatedly provided support for acts of international terrorism, the Attorney General may impose on, and collect from, the alien a fee that is greater than that imposed on other aliens described in paragraph (3).".

(c) DATA EXCHANGE.—Section 641 of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (8 U.S.C. 1372) is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsection (h) as subsection (i); and

(2) by inserting after subsection (g) the following:

"(h) DATA EXCHANGE.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Attorney General shall provide to the Secretary of State and the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation the information collected under subsection (a)(1).".

SEC. 209. PROTECTION OF NORTHERN BORDER.

There are authorized to be appropriated—

(1) such sums as may be necessary to triple the number of Border Patrol personnel (from the number authorized under current law) in each State along the northern border;

(2) such sums as may be necessary to triple the number of Immigration and Naturalization Service inspectors (from the number authorized under current law) at ports of entry in each State along the northern border; and

(3) an additional $50,000,000 to the Immigration and Naturalization Service for purposes of enhancing technology for security and enforcement at the northern border, such as infrared technology and technology that enhances coordination between the Governments of Canada and the United States generally and specifically between Canadian police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Subtitle B—Preservation of Immigration Benefits for Victims of Terrorism

SEC. 211. SPECIAL IMMIGRANT STATUS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101 et seq.), the Attorney General may provide an alien described in subsection (b) with the status of a special immigrant under section 101(a)(27) of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a(27)), if the alien—

(1) files with the Attorney General a petition under section 204 of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1154) for classification under section 203(b)(4) of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1153(b)(4)); and

(2) is otherwise eligible to receive an immigrant visa and is otherwise admissible to the United States for permanent residence, except in determining such admissibility, the grounds for inadmissibility specified in section 212(a)(4) of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(4)) shall not apply.

(b) ALIENS DESCRIBED.—

(1) PRINCIPAL ALIENS.—An alien is described in this subsection if—

(A) the alien was the beneficiary of—

(i) a petition that was filed with the Attorney General on or before September 11, 2001—

(I) under section 204 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1154) to classify the alien as a family-sponsored immigrant under section 203(a) of such Act (8 U.S.C.

1153(a)) or as an employment-based immigrant under section 203(b) of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1153(b)); or

(II) under section 214(d) (8 U.S.C. 1184(d)) of such Act to authorize the issuance of a non-immigrant visa to the alien under section 101(a)(15)(K) of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(15)(K)); or

(ii) an application for labor certification under section 212(a)(5)(A) of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(5)(A)) that was filed under regulations of the Secretary of Labor on or before such date; and

(B) such petition or application was revoked or terminated (or otherwise rendered null), either before or after its approval, due to a specified terrorist activity that directly resulted in—

(i) the death or disability of the petitioner, applicant, or alien beneficiary; or

(ii) loss of employment due to physical damage to, or destruction of, the business of the petitioner or applicant.

(2) SPOUSES AND CHILDREN.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—An alien is described in this subsection if—

(i) the alien was, on September 10, 2001, the spouse or child of a principal alien described in paragraph (1); and

(ii) the alien—

(I) is accompanying such principal alien; or

(II) is following to join such principal alien not later than September 11, 2003.

(B) CONSTRUCTION.—For purposes of construing the terms "accompanying" and "following to join" in subparagraph (A)(ii), any death of a principal alien that is described in paragraph (1)(B)(i) shall be disregarded.

(3) GRANDPARENTS OF ORPHANS.—An alien is described in this subsection if the alien is a grandparent of a child, both of whose parents died as a direct result of a specified terrorist activity, if either of such deceased parents was, on September 10, 2001, a citizen or national of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence in the United States.

(c) PRIORITY DATE.—Immigrant visas made available under this section shall be issued to aliens in the order in which a petition on behalf of each such alien is filed with the Attorney General under subsection (a)(1), except that if an alien was assigned a priority date with respect to a petition described in subsection (b)(1)(A)(i), the alien may maintain that priority date.

(d) NUMERICAL LIMITATIONS.—For purposes of the application of sections 201 through 203 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1151–1153) in any fiscal year, aliens eligible to be provided status under this section shall be treated as special immigrants described in section 101(a)(27) of such Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(27)) who are not described in subparagraph (A), (B), (C), or (K) of such section.

SEC. 212. EXTENSION OF FILING OR REENTRY DEADLINES.

(a) AUTOMATIC EXTENSION OF NONIMMIGRANT STATUS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding section 214 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1184), in the case of an alien described in paragraph (2) who was lawfully present in the United States as a nonimmigrant on September 10, 2001, the alien may remain lawfully in the United States in the same nonimmigrant status until the later of—

(A) the date such lawful nonimmigrant status otherwise would have terminated if this subsection had not been enacted; or

(B) 1 year after the death or onset of disability described in paragraph (2).

(2) ALIENS DESCRIBED.—

(A) PRINCIPAL ALIENS.—An alien is described in this paragraph if the alien was disabled as a direct result of a specified terrorist activity.

(B) SPOUSES AND CHILDREN.—An alien is described in this paragraph if the alien was, on September 10, 2001, the spouse or child of—

(i) a principal alien described in subparagraph (A); or

(ii) an alien who died as a direct result of a specified terrorist activity.

(3) AUTHORIZED EMPLOYMENT.—During the period in which a principal alien or alien spouse is in lawful nonimmigrant status under paragraph (1), the alien shall be provided an "employment authorized" endorsement or other appropriate document signifying authorization of employment not later than 30 days after the alien requests such authorization.

(b) NEW DEADLINES FOR EXTENSION OR CHANGE OF NONIMMIGRANT STATUS.—

(1) FILING DELAYS.—In the case of an alien who was lawfully present in the United States as a nonimmigrant on September 10, 2001, if the alien was prevented from filing a timely application for an extension or change of nonimmigrant status as a direct result of a specified terrorist activity, the alien's application shall be considered timely filed if it is filed not later than 60 days after it otherwise would have been due.

(2) DEPARTURE DELAYS.—In the case of an alien who was lawfully present in the United States as a nonimmigrant on September 10, 2001, if the alien is unable timely to depart the United States as a direct result of a specified terrorist activity, the alien shall not be considered to have been unlawfully present in the United States during the period beginning on September 11, 2001, and ending on the date of the alien's departure, if such departure occurs on or before November 11, 2001.

(3) SPECIAL RULE FOR ALIENS UNABLE TO RETURN FROM ABROAD.—

(A) PRINCIPAL ALIENS.—In the case of an alien who was in a lawful nonimmigrant status on September 10, 2001, but who was not present in the United States on such date, if the alien was prevented from returning to the United States in order to file a timely application for an extension of nonimmigrant status as a direct result of a specified terrorist activity—

(i) the alien's application shall be considered timely filed if it is filed not later than 60 days after it otherwise would have been due; and

(ii) the alien's lawful nonimmigrant status shall be considered to continue until the later of—

(I) the date such status otherwise would have terminated if this subparagraph had not been enacted; or

(II) the date that is 60 days after the date on which the application described in clause (i) otherwise would have been due.

(B) SPOUSES AND CHILDREN.—In the case of an alien who is the spouse or child of a principal alien described in subparagraph (A), if the spouse or child was in a lawful nonimmigrant status on September 10, 2001, the spouse or child may remain lawfully in the United States in the same nonimmigrant status until the later of—

(i) the date such lawful nonimmigrant status otherwise would have terminated if this subparagraph had not been enacted; or

(ii) the date that is 60 days after the date on which the application described in subparagraph (A) otherwise would have been due.

(c) DIVERSITY IMMIGRANTS.—

(1) WAIVER OF FISCAL YEAR LIMITATION.—Notwithstanding section 203(e)(2) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1153(e)(2)), an immigrant visa number issued to an alien under section 203(c) of such Act for fiscal year 2001 may be used by the alien during the period beginning on October 1, 2001, and ending on April 1, 2002, if the alien establishes that the alien was prevented from using it during fiscal year 2001 as a direct result of a specified terrorist activity.

(2) WORLDWIDE LEVEL.—In the case of an alien entering the United States as a lawful permanent resident, or adjusting to that status, under paragraph (1), the alien shall be counted as a diversity immigrant for fiscal year 2001 for purposes of section 201(e) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1151(e)), unless the worldwide level under such section for such year has been exceeded, in which case the alien shall be counted as a diversity immigrant for fiscal year 2002.

(3) TREATMENT OF FAMILY MEMBERS OF CERTAIN ALIENS.—In the case of a principal alien issued an immigrant visa number under section 203(c) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1153(c)) for fiscal year 2001, if such principal alien died as a direct result of a specified terrorist activity, the aliens who were, on September 10, 2001, the spouse and children of such principal alien shall, if not otherwise entitled to an immigrant status and the immediate issuance of a visa under subsection (a), (b), or (c) of section 203 of such Act, be entitled to the same status, and the same order of consideration, that would have been provided to such alien spouse or child under section 203(d) of such Act if the principal alien were not deceased.

(d) EXTENSION OF EXPIRATION OF IMMIGRANT VISAS.—Notwithstanding the limitations under section 221(c) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C.

1201(c)), in the case of any immigrant visa issued to an alien that expires or expired before December 31, 2001, if the alien was unable to effect entry to the United States as a direct result of a specified terrorist activity, then the period of validity of the visa is extended until December 31, 2001, unless a longer period of validity is otherwise provided under this subtitle.

(e) GRANTS OF PAROLE EXTENDED.—In the case of any parole granted by the Attorney General under section 212(d)(5) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(d)(5)) that expires on a date on or after September 11, 2001, if the alien beneficiary of the parole was unable to return to the United States prior to the expiration date as a direct result of a specified terrorist activity, the parole is deemed extended for an additional 90 days.

(f) VOLUNTARY DEPARTURE.—Notwithstanding section 240B of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1229c), if a period for voluntary departure under such section expired during the period beginning on September 11, 2001, and ending on October 11, 2001, such voluntary departure period is deemed extended for an additional 30 days.

SEC. 213. HUMANITARIAN RELIEF FOR CERTAIN SURVIVING SPOUSES AND CHILDREN.

(a) TREATMENT AS IMMEDIATE RELATIVES.—Notwithstanding the second sentence of section 201(b)(2)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1151(b)(2)(A)(i)), in the case of an alien who was the spouse of a citizen of the United States at the time of the citizen's death and was not legally separated from the citizen at the time of the citizen's death, if the citizen died as a direct result of a specified terrorist activity, the alien (and each child of the alien) shall be considered, for purposes of section 201(b) of such Act, to remain an immediate relative after the date of the citizen's death, but only if the alien files a petition under section 204(a)(1)(A)(ii) of such Act within 2 years after such date and only until the date the alien remarries.

(b) SPOUSES, CHILDREN, UNMARRIED SONS AND DAUGHTERS OF LAWFUL PERMANENT RESIDENT ALIENS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Any spouse, child, or unmarried son or daughter of an alien described in paragraph (3) who is included in a petition for classification as a family-sponsored immigrant under section 203(a)(2) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1153(a)(2)) that was filed by such alien before September 11, 2001, shall be considered (if the spouse, child, son, or daughter has not been admitted or approved for lawful permanent residence by such date) a valid petitioner for preference status under such section with the same priority date as that assigned prior to the death described in paragraph (3)(A). No new petition shall be required to be filed. Such spouse, child, son, or daughter may be eligible for deferred action and work authorization.

(2) SELF-PETITIONS.—Any spouse, child, or unmarried son or daughter of an alien described in paragraph (3) who is not a beneficiary of a petition for classification as a family-sponsored immigrant under section 203(a)(2) of the Immigration and Nationality Act may file a petition for such classification with the Attorney General, if the spouse, child, son, or daughter was present in the United States on September 11, 2001. Such spouse, child, son, or daughter may be eligible for deferred action and work authorization.

(3) ALIENS DESCRIBED.—An alien is described in this paragraph if the alien—

(A) died as a direct result of a specified terrorist activity; and

(B) on the day of such death, was lawfully admitted for permanent residence in the United States.

(c) APPLICATIONS FOR ADJUSTMENT OF STATUS BY SURVIVING SPOUSES AND CHILDREN OF EMPLOYMENT-BASED IMMIGRANTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Any alien who was, on September 10, 2001, the spouse or child of an alien described in paragraph (2), and who applied for adjustment of status prior to the death described in paragraph (2)(A), may have such application adjudicated as if such death had not occurred.

(2) ALIENS DESCRIBED.—An alien is described in this paragraph if the alien—

(A) died as a direct result of a specified terrorist activity; and

(B) on the day before such death, was—

(i) an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence in the United States by reason of having been allotted a visa under section 203(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1153(b)); or

(ii) an applicant for adjustment of status to that of an alien described in clause (i), and admissible to the United States for permanent residence.

(d) WAIVER OF PUBLIC CHARGE GROUNDS.—In determining the admissibility of any alien accorded an immigration benefit under this section, the grounds for inadmissibility specified in section 212(a)(4) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(4)) shall not apply.

SEC. 214. "AGE-OUT" PROTECTION FOR CHILDREN.

For purposes of the administration of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101 et seq.), in the case of an alien—

(1) whose 21st birthday occurs in September 2001, and who is the beneficiary of a petition or application filed under such Act on or before September 11, 2001, the alien shall be considered to be a child for 90 days after the alien's 21st birthday for purposes of adjudicating such petition or application; and

(2) whose 21st birthday occurs after September 2001, and who is the beneficiary of a petition or application filed under such Act on or before September 11, 2001, the alien shall be considered to be a child for 45 days after the alien's 21st birthday for purposes of adjudicating such petition or application.

SEC. 215. TEMPORARY ADMINISTRATIVE RELIEF.

The Attorney General, for humanitarian purposes or to ensure family unity, may provide temporary administrative relief to any alien who—

(1) was lawfully present in the United States on September 10, 2001;

"(ii) DISCLOSURE TO STATE AND LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT AGENCIES.—The head of any Federal law enforcement agency may disclose return information obtained under clause (i) to officers and employees of any State or local law enforcement agency but only if such agency is part of a team with the Federal law enforcement agency in such response or investigation and such information is disclosed only to officers and employees who are personally and directly engaged in such response or investigation.

"(iii) REQUIREMENTS.—A request meets the requirements of this clause if—

"(I) the request is made by the head of any Federal law enforcement agency (or his delegate) involved in the response to or investigation of terrorist incidents, threats, or activities, and

"(II) the request sets forth the specific reason or reasons why such disclosure may be relevant to a terrorist incident, threat, or activity.

"(iv) LIMITATION ON USE OF INFORMATION.—Information disclosed under this subparagraph shall be solely for the use of the officers and employees to whom such information is disclosed in such response or investigation.

"(B) DISCLOSURE TO INTELLIGENCE AGENCIES.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (6), upon receipt by the Secretary of a written request which meets the requirements of clause (ii), the Secretary may disclose return information (other than taxpayer return information) to those officers and employees of the Department of Justice, the Department of the Treasury, and other Federal intelligence agencies who are personally and directly engaged in the collection or analysis of intelligence and counterintelligence information or investigation concerning terrorists and terrorist organizations and activities. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the information disclosed under the preceding sentence shall be solely for the use of such officers and employees in such investigation, collection, or analysis.

"(ii) REQUIREMENTS.—A request meets the requirements of this subparagraph if the request—

"(I) is made by an individual described in clause (iii), and

"(II) sets forth the specific reason or reasons why such disclosure may be relevant to a terrorist incident, threat, or activity.

"(iii) REQUESTING INDIVIDUALS.—An individual described in this subparagraph is an individual—

"(I) who is an officer or employee of the Department of Justice or the Department of the Treasury who is appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate or who is the Director of the United States Secret Service, and

"(II) who is responsible for the collection and analysis of intelligence and counterintelligence information concerning terrorists and terrorist organizations and activities.

"(iv) TAXPAYER IDENTITY.—For purposes of this subparagraph, a taxpayer's identity shall not be treated as taxpayer return information.

"(C) DISCLOSURE UNDER EX PARTE ORDERS.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (6), any return or return information with respect to any specified taxable period or periods shall, pursuant to and upon the grant of an ex parte order by a Federal district court judge or magistrate under clause (ii), be open (but only to the extent necessary as provided in such order) to inspection by, or disclosure to, officers and employees of any Federal law enforcement agency or Federal intelligence agency who are personally and directly engaged in any investigation, response to, or analysis of intelligence and counterintelligence information concerning any terrorist activity or threats. Return or return information opened pursuant to the preceding sentence shall be solely for the use of such officers and employees in the investigation, response, or analysis, and in any judicial, administrative, or grand jury proceedings, pertaining to any such terrorist activity or threat.

"(ii) APPLICATION FOR ORDER.—The Attorney General, the Deputy Attorney General, the Associate Attorney General, any Assistant Attorney General, or any United States attorney may authorize an application to a Federal district court judge or magistrate for the order referred to in clause (i). Upon such application, such judge or magistrate may grant such order if he determines on the basis of the facts submitted by the applicant that—"(I) there is reasonable cause to believe, based upon information believed to be reliable, that the taxpayer whose return or return information is to be disclosed may be connected to a terrorist activity or threat,

"(II) there is reasonable cause to believe that the return or return information may be relevant to a matter relating to such terrorist activity or threat, and

"(III) the return or return information is sought exclusively for use in a Federal investigation, analysis, or proceeding concerning terrorist activity, terrorist threats, or terrorist organizations.

"(D) SPECIAL RULE FOR EX PARTE DISCLOSURE BY THE IRS.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (6), the Secretary may authorize an application to a Federal district court judge or magistrate for the order referred to in subparagraph (C)(i). Upon such application, such judge or magistrate may grant such order if he determines on the basis of the facts submitted by the applicant that the requirements of subclauses (I) and (II) of subparagraph (C)(ii) are met.

"(ii) LIMITATION ON USE OF INFORMATION.—Information disclosed under clause (i)—

"(I) may be disclosed only to the extent necessary to apprise the head of the appropriate Federal law enforcement agency responsible for investigating or responding to a terrorist incident, threat, or activity, and

"(II) shall be solely for use in a Federal investigation, analysis, or proceeding concerning terrorist activity, terrorist threats, or terrorist organizations.

The head of such Federal agency may disclose such information to officers and employees of such agency to the extent necessary to investigate or respond to such terrorist incident, threat, or activity.

"(E) TERMINATION.—No disclosure may be made under this paragraph after December 31, 2003.".

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Section 6103(a)(2) of such Code is amended by inserting "any local law enforcement agency receiving information under subsection (i)(7)(A)," after "State,".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to any death or disability occurring on or after January 1, 2001.

TITLE VI—DAM SECURITY

SEC. 601. SECURITY OF RECLAMATION DAMS, FACILITIES, AND RESOURCES.

Section 2805(a) of the Reclamation Recreation Management Act of 1992 (16 U.S.C. 460l–33(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(3) Any person who violates any such regulation which is issued pursuant to this Act shall be fined under title 18, United States Code, imprisoned not more than 6 months, or both. Any person charged with a violation of such regulation may be tried and sentenced by any United States magistrate judge designated for that purpose by the court by which such judge was appointed, in the same manner and subject to the same conditions and limitations as provided for in section 3401 of title 18, United States Code.

"(4) The Secretary may—

"(A) authorize law enforcement personnel from the Department of the Interior to act as law enforcement officers to maintain law and order and protect persons and property within a Reclamation project or on Reclamation lands;

"(B) authorize law enforcement personnel of any other Federal agency that has law enforcement authority, with the exception of the Department of Defense, or law enforcement personnel of any State or local government, including Indian tribes, when deemed economical and in the public interest, and with the concurrence of that agency or that State or local government, to act as law enforcement officers within a Reclamation project or on Reclamation lands with such enforcement powers as may be so assigned them by the Secretary to carry out the regulations promulgated under paragraph (2);

"(C) cooperate with any State or local government, including Indian tribes, in the enforcement of the laws or ordinances of that State or local government; and

"(D) provide reimbursement to a State or local government, including Indian tribes, for expenditures incurred in connection with activities under subparagraph (B).

"(5) Officers or employees designated or authorized by the Secretary under paragraph (4) are authorized to—

"(A) carry firearms within a Reclamation project or on Reclamation lands and make arrests without warrants for any offense against the United States committed in their presence, or for any felony cognizable under the laws of the United States if they have reasonable grounds to believe that the person to be arrested has committed or is committing such a felony, and if such arrests occur within a Reclamation project or on Reclamation lands or the person to be arrested is fleeing therefrom to avoid arrest;

"(B) execute within a Reclamation project or on Reclamation lands any warrant or other process issued by a court or officer of competent jurisdiction for the enforcement of the provisions of any Federal law or regulation issued pursuant to law for an offense committed within a Reclamation project or on Reclamation lands; and

"(C) conduct investigations within a Reclamation project or on Reclamation lands of offenses against the United States committed within a Reclamation project or on Reclamation lands, if the Federal law enforcement agency having investigative jurisdiction over the offense committed declines to investigate the offense or concurs with such investigation.

"(6)(A) Except as otherwise provided in this paragraph, a law enforcement officer of any State or local government, including Indian tribes, designated to act as a law enforcement officer under paragraph (4) shall not be deemed a Federal employee and shall not be subject to the provisions of law relating to Federal employment, including those relating to hours of work, rates of compensation, employment discrimination, leave, unemployment compensation, and Federal benefits.

"(B) For purposes of chapter 171 of title 28, United States Code, popularly known as the Federal Tort Claims Act, a law enforcement officer of any State or local government, including Indian tribes, shall, when acting as a designated law enforcement officer under paragraph (4) and while under Federal supervision and control, and only when carrying out Federal law enforcement responsibilities, be considered a Federal employee.

"(C) For purposes of subchapter I of chapter 81 of title 5, United States Code, relating to compensation to Federal employees for work injuries, a law enforcement officer of any State or local government, including Indian tribes, shall, when acting as a designated law enforcement officer under paragraph (4) and while under Federal supervision and control, and only when carrying out Federal law enforcement responsibilities, be deemed a civil service employee of the United States within the meaning of the term 'employee' as defined in section 8101 of title 5, and the provisions of that subchapter shall apply. Benefits under this subchapter shall be reduced by the amount of any entitlement to State or local workers' compensation benefits arising out of the same injury or death.

"(7) Nothing in paragraphs (3) through (9) shall be construed or applied to limit or restrict the investigative jurisdiction of any Federal law enforcement agency, or to affect any existing right of a State or local government, including Indian tribes, to exercise civil and criminal jurisdiction within a Reclamation project or on Reclamation lands.

"(8) For the purposes of this subsection, the term 'law enforcement personnel' means employees of a Federal, State, or local government agency, including an Indian tribal agency, who have successfully completed law enforcement training approved by the Secretary and are authorized to carry firearms, make arrests, and execute service of process to enforce criminal laws of their employing jurisdiction.

"(9) The law enforcement authorities provided for in this subsection may be exercised only pursuant to rules and regulations promulgated by the Secretary and approved by the Attorney General.".

TITLE VII—MISCELLANEOUS

SEC. 701. EMPLOYMENT OF TRANSLATORS BY THE FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION.

(a) AUTHORITY.—The Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation is authorized to expedite the employment of personnel as translators to support counterterrorism investigations and operations without regard to applicable Federal personnel requirements and limitations.

(b) SECURITY REQUIREMENTS.—The Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation shall establish such security requirements as are necessary for the personnel employed as translators.

(c) REPORT.—The Attorney General shall report to the Committees on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives and the Senate on—

(1) the number of translators employed by the FBI and other components of the Department of Justice;

(2) any legal or practical impediments to using translators employed by other Federal State, or local agencies, on a full, part-time, or shared basis; and

(3) the needs of the FBI for specific translation services in certain languages, and recommendations for meeting those needs.

SEC. 702. REVIEW OF THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.

(a) APPOINTMENT OF DEPUTY INSPECTOR GENERAL FOR CIVIL RIGHTS, CIVIL LIBERTIES, AND THE FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION.—The Inspector General of the Department of Justice shall appoint a Deputy Inspector General for Civil Rights, Civil Liberties, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation (hereinafter in this section referred to as the ''Deputy'').

(b) CIVIL RIGHTS AND CIVIL LIBERTIES REVIEW.—The Deputy shall—

(1) review information alleging abuses of civil rights, civil liberties, and racial and ethnic profiling by government employees and officials including employees and officials of the Department of Justice;

(2) make public through the Internet, radio, television, and newspaper advertisements information on the responsibilities and functions of, and how to contact, the Deputy; and

(3) submit to the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives and the Committee on the Judiciary of the Senate on a semi-annual basis a report on the implementation of this subsection and detailing any abuses described in paragraph (1), including a description of the use of funds appropriations used to carry out this subsection.

(c) INSPECTOR GENERAL OVERSIGHT PLAN FOR THE FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION.—Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Inspector General of the Department of Justice shall submit to the Congress a plan for oversight of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The Inspector General shall consider the following activities for inclusion in such plan:

(1) FINANCIAL SYSTEMS.—Auditing the financial systems, information technology systems, and computer security systems of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

(2) PROGRAMS AND PROCESSES.—Auditing and evaluating programs and processes of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to identify systemic weaknesses or implementation failures and to recommend corrective action.

SEC. 705. ENFORCEMENT OF CERTAIN ANTI-TERRORISM JUDGMENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the ''Justice for Victims of Terrorism Act''.

(b) DEFINITION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 1603(b) of title 28, United States Code, is amended—

(A) in paragraph (3) by striking the period and inserting ''; and'';

(B) by redesignating paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) as subparagraphs (A), (B), and (C), respectively;

(C) by striking ''(b)'' through ''entity—'' and inserting the following:

"(b) An 'agency or instrumentality of a foreign state' means—

"(1) any entity—"; and

(D) by adding at the end the following:

"(2) for purposes of sections 1605(a)(7) and 1610(a)(7) and (f), any entity as defined under subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (1), and subparagraph (C) of paragraph (1) shall not apply.".

(2) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 1391(f)(3) of title 28, United States Code, is amended by striking "1603(b)" and inserting "1603(b)(1)".

(c) ENFORCEMENT OF JUDGMENTS.—Section 1610(f) of title 28, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1)—

(A) in subparagraph (A) by striking "(including any agency or instrumentality or such state)" and inserting "(including any agency or instrumentality of such state), except to the extent of any punitive damages awarded"; and

(B) by adding at the end the following:

"(C) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, moneys due from or payable by the United States (including any agency or instrumentality thereof) to any state against which a judgment is pending under section

1605(a)(7) shall be subject to attachment and execution with respect to that judgment, in like manner and to the same extent as if the United States were a private person, except to the extent of any punitive damages awarded.''; and

(2) by striking paragraph (3) and adding the following:

''(3)(A) Subject to subparagraph (B), upon determining on an asset-by-asset basis that a waiver is necessary in the national security interest, the President may waive this subsection in connection with (and prior to the enforcement of) any judicial order directing attachment in aid of execution or execution against any property subject to the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations or the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations.

''(B) A waiver under this paragraph shall not apply to—

''(i) if property subject to the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations or the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations has been used for any nondiplomatic purpose (including use as rental property), the proceeds of such use; or

''(ii) if any asset subject to the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations or the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations is sold or otherwise transferred for value to a third party, the proceeds of such sale or transfer.

"(C) In this paragraph, the term 'property subject to the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations or the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations' and the term 'asset subject to the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations or the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations' mean any property or asset, respectively, the attachment in aid of execution or execution of which would result in a violation of an obligation of the United States under the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations or the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations, as the case may be.

"(4) For purposes of this subsection, all assets of any agency or instrumentality of a foreign state shall be treated as assets of that foreign state.".

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to any claim for which a foreign state is not immune under section 1605(a)(7) of title 28, United States Code, arising before, on, or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(e) PAYGO ADJUSTMENT.—The Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall not make any estimates of changes in direct spending outlays and receipts under section 252(d) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 (2 U.S.C. 902(d)) for any fiscal year resulting from the enactment of this section.

TITLE VIII—PRIVATE SECURITY OFFICER QUALITY ASSURANCE

SEC. 801. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the ''Private Security Officer Quality Assurance Act of 2001''.

SEC. 802. FINDINGS.

Congress finds that—

(1) employment of private security officers in the United States is growing rapidly;

(2) the private security industry provides numerous opportunities for entry-level job applicants, including individuals suffering from unemployment due to economic conditions or dislocations;

(3) sworn law enforcement officers provide significant services to the citizens of the United States in its public areas, and are only supplemented by private security officers who provide prevention and reporting services in support of, but not in place of, regular sworn police;

(4) given the growth of large private shopping malls, and the consequent reduction in the number of public shopping streets, the American public is more likely to have contact with private security personnel in the course of a day than with sworn law enforcement officers;

(5) regardless of the differences in their duties, skill, and responsibilities, the public has difficulty in discerning the difference between sworn law enforcement officers and private security personnel; and

(6) the American public demands the employment of qualified, well-trained private security personnel as an adjunct, but not a replacement for sworn law enforcement officers.

SEC. 803. BACKGROUND CHECKS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—An association of employers of private security officers, designated for the purpose of this section by the Attorney General, may submit fingerprints or other methods of positive identification approved by the Attorney General, to the Attorney General on behalf of any applicant for a State license or certificate of registration as a private security officer or employer of private security officers. In response to such a submission, the Attorney General may, to the extent provided by State law conforming to the requirements of the second paragraph under the heading "Federal Bureau of Investigation" and the subheading "Salaries and Expenses" in title II of Public Law 92–544 (86 Stat. 1115), exchange, for licensing and employment purposes, identification and criminal history records with the State governmental agencies to which such applicant has applied.

(b) REGULATIONS.—The Attorney General may prescribe such regulations as may be necessary to carry out this section, including measures relating to the security, confidentiality, accuracy, use, and dissemination of information and audits and recordkeeping and the imposition of fees necessary for the recovery of costs.

(c) REPORT.—The Attorney General shall report to the Senate and House Committees on the Judiciary 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act on the number of inquiries made by the association of employers under this section and their disposition.

SEC. 804. SENSE OF CONGRESS.

It is the sense of Congress that States should participate in the background check system established under section 803.

SEC. 805. DEFINITIONS.

As used in this title—

(1) the term ''employee'' includes an applicant for employment;

(2) the term ''employer'' means any person that—

(A) employs one or more private security officers; or

(B) provides, as an independent contractor, for consideration, the services of one or more private security officers (possibly including oneself);

(3) the term "private security officer"—

(A) means—

(i) an individual who performs security services, full or part time, for consideration as an independent contractor or an employee, whether armed or unarmed and in uniform or plain clothes whose primary duty is to perform security services, or

(ii) an individual who is an employee of an electronic security system company who is engaged in one or more of the following activities in the State: burglar alarm technician, fire alarm technician, closed circuit television technician, access control technician, or security system monitor; but

(B) does not include—

(i) sworn police officers who have law enforcement powers in the State,

(ii) attorneys, accountants, and other professionals who are otherwise licensed in the State,

(iii) employees whose duties are primarily internal audit or credit functions,

TITLE II – ALIENS ENGAGING IN TERRORIST ACTIVITY

SUBTITLE A – DETENTION AND REMOVAL OF ALIENS ENGAGING IN TERRORIST ACTIVITY

Current Law	Problems/Need	Administration Bill	Committee Bill	Senate Bill
Representatives of Organizations Endorsing Terrorism An alien is not inadmissible or deportable for being a representative of an organization that endorses terrorist activity.	An alien should be inadmissible and deportable for being a representative of an organization that endorses terrorist activity.	An alien is inadmissible if he is a representative of a political, social, or other similar group whose public endorsement of terrorist activity the Secretary of State has determined undermines the efforts of the U.S. to reduce or eliminate terrorist activity.	SAME AS ADMIN (section 201(a)). In addition, the bill makes an alien deportable on the same grounds if the endorsement is intended and likely to incite or produce imminent lawless action. (section 201(c)).	SAME AS ADMIN (section 411(a)).
Advocates of Terrorism An alien is not inadmissible or deportable for endorsing or espousing terrorist activity in a way that undermines the efforts of the U.S. to fight terrorism.	An alien should be inadmissible and deportable for endorsing or espousing terrorist activity in a way that undermines the efforts of the U.S. to fight terrorism.	An alien is inadmissible if he has used his prominence within a foreign state or the U.S. to endorse or espouse terrorist activity, or to persuade others to support terrorist activity or a terrorist organization, in a way that the Secretary of State has determined undermines the efforts of the U.S. to reduce or eliminate terrorist activities.	SAME AS ADMIN (section 201(a)). In addition, the bill makes an alien deportable on the same grounds if done in a manner that is intended and likely to incite or produce imminent lawless action. (section 201(c)).	SAME AS ADMIN (section 411(a)).
Family Members of Terrorists The spouse and children of alien terrorists are not inadmissible.	The spouse and children of alien terrorists should be inadmissible.	The spouse and children of an alien terrorist are inadmissible if the terrorist activity occured within the last 5 years.	DELETED	SIMILAR TO ADMIN, but provides an exception where the spouse or child did not know of the proscribed activity or has renounced the activity.

Objects Used by Terrorists An alien is inadmissible and deportable for using explosives or a firearm in a terrorist attack.	Aliens can use other items, such as boxcutters, knives, and airplanes, in terrorist attacks.	An alien is inadmissible and deportable for using explosives or a firearm or other weapon or dangerous device in a terrorist attack.	An alien is inadmissible and deportable for using explosives or a firearm or other object in a terrorist attack. (section 201(a)).	SAME AS ADMIN (section 411(a).
Material Support to Terrorist Organizations An alien is not inadmissible or deportable for providing material support, including contributing funds, to a terrorist organization. However, an alien is inadmissible and deportable for soliciting funds for or membership in a terrorist organization.	An alien should be inadmissible and deportable for contributing funds to a terrorist organization.	An alien is inadmissible and deportable for committing an act that the alien knows or reasonably should know provides material support (including contributing funds) to any organization that alien knows or reasonably should know is a terrorist organization.	An alien is inadmissible and deportable for contributing funds or material support to or soliciting funds for or membership in an organization that has been designated as a terrorist organization by the Secretary of State, or for contributing to, or soliciting membership in or funds for, any non-designated terrorist organization if the alien knows or reasonably should know that the funds, material support or solicitation will further terrorist activity. (section 201(a)).	An alien is inadmissible and deportable for contributing funds or material support to or soliciting funds for or membership in an organization that has been designated as a terrorist organization by the Secretary of State, or has been designated by the Secretary of State as an organization engaging in terrorist activities or providing material support to terrorists, or for contributing to, or soliciting membership in or funds for, any non-designated terrorist organization if the alien cannot demonstrate that he did not know nor reasonably should know that the funds, material support or solicitation will further terrorist activity. This provision shall not apply to any material support or contributed funds if the Secretary of State or AG determine that it should not. (section 411(a)).

Subject: Judges meeting

I propose that the 8 associate counsel with judge responsibility meet Tuesday at 10:00 a.m. (backup time Tuesday at 6:00 p.m.). Despite our progress, we currently have 54 vacancies for which no nominee is pending (9 circuit and 45 district), which is too high a number. I think we should meet just at our associate counsel level first to quickly go through each vacancy so that we can check progress, make sure we are pressuring Senators/commissions where we can, think about what else we can do. After we get our information/recommendations together, we can confer with Judge and Tim with information/plan/schedule. Please let me know whether you are available at 10:00 or 6:00 Tuesday. Thanks.

Subject: NextWave Meeting

We're trying to set up a meeting tomorrow for the FCC/DOJ to come and discuss legislative options they want the Adminstration to be thinking about with respect to the NextWave case and the settlement they've been trying to put together, including some legislative options they've been thinking about. According to the FCC, Verizon and the other telecom companies are trying to put together a separate meeting for Wednesday, so there's some urgency on the timing. Is one of you guys handling this issue? If you are, does 4 or 5 o'clock tomorrow work for you? If you aren't, could you please let me know who the appropriate person is? Thanks, RB 5-3193.

Don W. and David,

Last Thursday (Oct. 4th) OLC was to have sent over its Opinion Letter to Brett Kavanaugh re: Charitable Choice in '96 version and in H.R. 7 version. Brett said the questions really came from WH OFBCI and were for you benefit. Has the letter arrive? If so, could you forward a copy?

Thanks,
Carl H. Esbeck

The DC bar is sponsoring a brown bag lunch on November 1 entitled
"Fighting Terrorism Through Legislation: Where Privacy Rights and Law Enforcement Collide." It is JUST $18 to hear Beryl Howell and CCIPS's
Chris Painter talk about this subject.

If you haven't had enough of Beryll and terrorism yet, let me know and
I'll try to get you into this event on my member's discount.

The DC bar is sponsoring a brown bag lunch on November 1 entitled
"Fighting Terrorism Through Legislation: Where Privacy Rights and Law Enforcement Collide." It is JUST $18 to hear Beryl Howell and CCIPS's
Chris Painter talk about this subject.

If you haven't had enough of Beryll and terrorism yet, let me know and
I'll try to get you into this event on my member's discount.

SIGNIFICANT AGENCY FOIA REQUESTS

COMMERCE

- Received 10/1/01, from Erik Wemple, a reporter for the Export Practitioner, requesting Bureau of Export Administration licensing statistics for exports to China from January 1, 2000, to September 30, 2000, and for the same period in 2001. Wemple specifically requested information covering the total number and dollar value for cases approved, denied, pending, and returned without action.

- Received 10/1/01 from Richard Greenberg, Producer, "Dateline NBC," requesting copies of all deemed export applications approved from 1996 to the present, including the name of the individual approved, country of origin, employer name and address, and type of technology to which access was permitted.

- Received 10/4/01 from Randy R. Herschaft of The Associated Press, requesting all agency records identifiable with Osama Bin Laden or Osama Bin Ladin from 1999 to present.

- Received 10/4/01 from Michael Doyle of McClatchy Newspapers, requesting copies of correspondence from Representative Gary Condit between January 1, 1996, and May 1, 2001.

- Received 10/4/01 from Rob Evans of Guardian Newspaper, requesting copies of the minutes and agenda for a June 20, 2000 meeting between Kelly H. Carnes, then-Assistant Secretary for Technology Policy, and Lord David Sainsbury, British science minister

LABOR

UNITED MINE WORKERS OF AMERICA
Joseph A. Main, Administrator, Department of Occupational Health and Safety, United Mine Workers of America (UMWA), Fairfax, Virginia is seeking:

> documents that relate to an investigation into the September 23. 2001 coal mine explosion in Tuscaloosa County, Brookwood, Alabama in which 13 miners lost their lives.

This request is currently being processed by the Mine Safety and Health Administration.
Date request received: October 3, 2001.

CDC

- Citizens Against Government Waste, Washington, D.C. has requested that CDC provide them information on salary or other employment related benefits received by Dr. Helene

Gayle, Senior Advisor for HIV/AIDS with the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, from CDC or PHS after August 31, 2001. They also requested (in a separate FOIA) a list of all grants/cooperative agreements for all HIV/AIDS prevention projects for FY 1998, 1999, and 2000 to private and non-profit and community-based organizations, and bona fide agents of local governments.

- The Fertilizer Institute, Washington, D.C., has requested that CDC provide them a document on industrial security and terrorism prevention that appeared on the ATSDR web site.

DOT

- Public Citizen Joan Claybrook - All correspondence, meeting agendas, planning documents, work programs, shared or published meeting notes, proposals, memoranda, electronic communications, produced by third parties for the United States, Canada or Mexico, or by U.S., Canadian or Mexican officials, and that are in the possession of the United States as a part of the United States' participation in the Land Transportation Standards Subcommittee created by NAFTA and various Subcommittee working groups.

- The interest group Ground Zero has filed two extensive FOIA requests. The request concerns Security Zones established by the Coast Guard on June 20, 2001 to protect Naval Submarine Base Bangor, WA and transiting submarines in the Puget Sound area. Ground Zero is a non-profit group opposed to the deployment and use of nuclear weapons. The first FOIA request has been completed. Material that was determined to be law enforcement or security sensitive was withheld.

USDA

- The Sierra Nevada Forest Protection Campaign has submitted a Freedom of Information Act request to some national forests covered by the Sierra Nevada Framework decision. They are asking for information on changes to land allocations since the January 2001 decision. The group is particularly interested in changes driven by the local determination process, spotted owls that may have been affected by land allocation changes, and the documents outlining the rationale for the allocation changes.

JUSTICE

- The American Civil Liberties Union has requested copies of the Attorney General Guidelines for Domestic Terrorism Investigations and the Attorney General Guidelines for International Terrorism Investigations, as well as any documents relating to or interpreting those guidelines.

INTERIOR

- National Monuments. The Wilderness Society requested "copies of all correspondence received by the Department and BLM pursuant to the March 2001 letters from Secretary Norton concerning the future of the national monuments established by the previous administration." They also requested access to all correspondence received since March 30, 2001 by the Department and BLM regarding national monuments designated by President Clinton, and any and all analyses, compilations, summaries, charts and other materials of the content of those letters.

- Multiple-Use Management. Forest Guardians filed a request with BLM-NM regarding the BLM's "ongoing efforts to manage livestock grazing, oil and gas, and other resource(s) on the public lands of New Mexico." The request specifically seeks documents that would show "whether or not and to what degree the BLM has completed mitigation measures to prevent jeopardy to the Pecos gambusia and the Pecos bluntnose shiner." There is a notice of intent to sue on the subject of this FOIA request.

- Grand Coulee Dam Emergency Action Plan. Reclamation's Pacific Northwest Region recently received a request under the Freedom of Information Act from the Colville Indian Tribe for the Grand Coulee Dam Emergency Action Plan. Reclamation staff are currently evaluating the document for releasability.

EPA

- During the week of October 2-8, 2001, the Agency received a total of 216 FOIA requests. Of that total, 31 were received in Headquarters. This week's FOIA requests include: (1) David Tripp of Stinson, Mag & Fizzell requests all records referring or relating to Starlink corn and corn seed, Cry9C and/or the presence of Cry9C in corn seed, corn or corn products; (2) New York Public Interest Research Group requests all records and documents pertaining to meetings or correspondence between EPA and General Electric Company representatives that took place between Sept. 7, 2001 to the present regarding the Hudson River PCB Superfund site; (3) Jeff Buckley of Williams Kastner & Gibbs PLLC requests asbestos air monitoring records from lower Manhattan between Sept. 10 and 28, 2001; and (4) the National Academy of Public Administration requests copies of all complaints received by EPA under Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 which deal with permitting.

DRAFT 10/12/01

STATEMENT
by John W. Carlin
Archivist of the United States Stat

to the Subcommittee on Government Efficiency, Financial Management, and Intergovernmental Relations of the Committee on Government Reform
House of Representatives
Congress of the United States

On the Implementation and Effectiveness of the Presidential Records Act of 1978

19 October 2001

Chairman Horn, Congresswoman Schakowsky, members of the Subcommittee, and Subcommittee staff, I am John Carlin, Archivist of the United States, and I thank you for the opportunity to appear before you this morning on the implementation of the Presidential Records Act. Mr. Chairman, I particularly want to thank you for holding this hearing and for your continued interest in the programs and responsibilities of the National Archives and Records Administration. We are fully aware that with the jurisdiction of this subcommittee, attention to NARA is your job. However, you have taken a particular interest in our mission during your career in Congress and the people of NARA and our many constituent groups thank you for that interest.

In order to set the foundation for this dialogue today, I would like to set out the history of the Presidential Records Act and provide the Subcommittee with an overview of our implementation to date. The Presidential Records Act (PRA) was enacted in 1978 to establish public ownership of the records created by subsequent Presidents and their staffs and to establish procedures governing the preservation and public availability of the records. As noted in the House Report accompanying the pending bill:

> The legislation would terminate the tradition of private ownership of Presidential papers and the reliance on volunteerism to determine the fate of their disposition. Instead, the preservation of the historical record of future Presidents would be assured and public access to the materials would be consistent under standards affixed in law. The primary function of the Presidential libraries remains unchanged. The libraries are to continue to provide information about their holdings and to make records available to researchers upon request on an impartial basis.

H. Rep. 95-1487, at 2-3 (95th Cong., 2d Sess., Aug. 14, 1978).

The PRA mandates that the Presidential records of an Administration be transferred to the legal and physical custody of the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) immediately upon the end of the President's last term of office. The Archivist of the United States is given the independent legal "responsibility for the custody, control, and preservation of, and access to, the Presidential records of th[e former] President." 44 U.S.C. § 2203(f)(1). The PRA also requires the Archivist to appoint a Library Director in "consultation with the former President." Id. § 2203(f)(2). The Library Director balances archival and public access considerations with national security, confidentiality, and privacy concerns.

Since its enactment, NARA has taken legal custody of the Presidential records of Presidents Ronald Reagan, George H.W. Bush, and William J. Clinton. The Reagan and Bush records are housed in Presidential Libraries in Simi Valley, California and College Station, Texas, respectively. The Clinton records are stored in a records storage facility in Little Rock, Arkansas, until they can be transferred to a Presidential Library that is being constructed by former President Clinton.

The PRA applies to all Vice-Presidential records in same manner as Presidential records, and affords the former Vice-Presidents the same authority as the former Presidents. Accordingly, all of the procedures and authorities that are ascribed in this testimony to the former Presidents also apply to the former Vice-Presidents (except that Vice-Presidential records may be stored at a separate location from the Presidential records).

Responsibilities of the Archivist of the United States Under the PRA

The PRA established Government control over Presidential records while codifying and preserving some of the basic practices that long existed with respect to the papers that Presidents had donated to the National Archives (dating back to President Hoover). As the House Report on the PRA bill stated: "It is anticipated that the Archivist will process the former Administration's papers in a manner roughly similar to current practices." H. Rep. 95-1487, at 15. The report also stated that "the determination whether access to a Presidential record or reasonably segregable portion thereof shall be restricted shall be made by the Archivist, in his discretion, after consultation with the former President." Id. § 2204(b)(3).

The PRA mandates that "[t]he Archivist shall have an affirmative duty to make such records available to the public as rapidly and completely as possible consistent with the provisions of this Act." Id. § 2203(f)(1). Overall, the PRA represents an effort to legislate a "careful balance between the public's right to know, with its vast implications to historians and other academic interests, and the rights of privacy and confidentiality of certain sensitive records generated by the President and his staff during the course of their White House activities." Floor Statement of Congressman Thompson, Cong. Rec., Oct. 10, 1978, at 34897.

The authorities of the Archivist of the United States changed in 1984, when Congress established the National Archives and Records Administration as an independent agency. Prior to that time, the National Archives and Records Service was a component of the General Services Administration. Among the reasons that Congress expressed for making NARA a separate Federal agency was a concern about "politicization." The Senate Report, for example, noted that "NARS' subordination to GSA has opened the door for archival decisionmaking which is politicized, rather than professional," and described problems dating from the Eisenhower Administration through the controversies over the Nixon tapes and materials. See S. Rep. 98-373, on the National Archives and Records Administration Act of 1983, at 10-13 (98th Cong., 2d Sess., Apr. 3, 1984). The Senate Report concluded that "the record, under both Democratic and Republican administrations, amply demonstrates the dangers of politicization which can occur under the current arrangement." Id. at 13. The House Report raised similar concerns about the "constant threat of manipulation of the Archives' professional processes to achieve political purposes." H. Rep. 98-707, on the National Archives and Records Administration Act of 1984, at 5 (98th Cong., 2d Sess., Apr. 25, 1984).

Presidential Papers and Materials Prior to the PRA

Prior to the PRA, and with the exception of the materials of former President Richard M. Nixon, the Presidential papers and materials maintained under NARA's control at the Presidential Libraries of former Presidents Hoover, Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson,

REV_00133437

Ford, and Carter are controlled by the terms of the deeds of gift by which the former Presidents donated their records to the National Archives. Each of these deeds has provisions outlining categories of records that may be withheld from public access for some period of time. All of them seek to protect information that could harm national security, invade personal privacy, or cause embarrassment or harassment. Some also seek to protect documents involving confidential communications directly with the President. The deeds of Presidents Ford and Carter model the restrictions on the PRA exemptions.

In all instances, the Director of the Presidential Library, who is appointed by NARA in close consultation with the former President or representative, was given the independent authority and discretion to process and open the papers, with very limited involvement by the former President or representative. Living former Presidents in some cases would establish priorities for the processing of particular subjects or series of records. In other cases, a representative or review board was established – such as for Presidents Roosevelt and Kennedy because they died in office, as well as for Truman and Eisenhower – that exercised limited control over the decisions made by the Libraries. The boards' principal concern was with respect to the President's personal and family matters, and, in most cases, they disbanded after a short period of time.

Under these deeds of gift, NARA processed and opened Presidential materials based on the deeds and professional archival considerations. Moreover, because the materials at these Libraries were donated to the United States, they are not subject to request under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) or any other public access statute. This meant that the Library staff were able to process and open most records in an organized and systematic way based on how the records were filed or arranged. Such "systematic processing" is generally much more efficient and less time consuming than processing in response to FOIA requests. However, researchers have no legal recourse to challenge the withholding of records or delays in responding to requests.

The records of President Nixon are governed by the Presidential Recordings and Materials Preservation Act (PRMPA), 44 U.S.C. § 2111, note, which was passed by Congress in 1974 to ensure government control over the Nixon papers and tapes. The PRMPA also established a National Study Commission on Records and Documents of Federal Officials, which was charged with studying, among other things, "whether the historical practice regarding the records and documents produced by or on behalf of Presidents of the United States should be rejected or accepted and whether such practice should be made applicable with respect to all federal officials." Pub. L. 93-526, 88 Stat. 1695 (December 19, 1974), sec. 202. That commission produced a final report in 1977, and its recommendations were considered by Congress in drafting the PRA. See Hearings before a Subcommittee of the Committee on Government Operations on H.R. 10998 (the Presidential Records Act of 1978) and Related Bills, 95th Cong., 2d Sess., (Feb. 23, 28, Mar. 2, 7, 1978) (PRA Hearings).

Public Access to Presidential Records

Presidential records are not subject to public access requests during the President's term of office, and may be made available only by decision of the incumbent President. After the President leaves office, the records are also not available to public access requests for five years, unless NARA has processed an integral file segment sooner than five years. This five year period was intended principally to give NARA an opportunity to organize the records and begin systematic archival processing. At the end of the five year period, all Presidential records are subject to public access requests in accordance with the FOIA. However, for a period not to exceed 12 years from when the President leaves office, the President is authorized, but not required, to impose up to six Presidential restrictions (which must be imposed before the President leaves office and which are not subject to judicial review).

In addition, the PRA establishes that eight of the nine FOIA exemptions shall apply to Presidential records, which stay in effect after the Presidential restrictions expire. Congress specifically excluded Presidential records from the FOIA (b)(5) exemption concerning the deliberative process and other recognized privileges. Four of the six presidential restrictions are identical to corresponding FOIA exemptions: exemptions 1, for classified national security information; exemptions 3, for information protected by other statute; exemptions 4, for trade secrets and confidential business information; and exemptions 6, for unwarranted invasions of personal privacy. Presidential exemption 2 ("P2"), for "appointments to Federal office," has no FOIA counterpart, but is subsumed, in large part, under FOIA exemption (b)(6). Presidential exemption 5 ("P5"), concerning "confidential communications requesting or submitting advice, between the President and his advisers, or between such advisers," is similar to FOIA exemption (b)(5), and protects the disclosure of presidential communications, deliberations, and other information that could be subject to a common law or constitutionally-based privilege.

Because the PRA subjects all Presidential records to public access through the FOIA, PRA Libraries open records almost exclusively in response to FOIA requests (or mandatory declassification review requests under Executive Order 12958 on Classified National Security Information), and have very little opportunity to conduct systematic processing of records after the first five years. Moreover, Congressional and grand jury investigations and other litigation has significantly limited systematic processing even during the first five years.

PRA Restrictions

The PRA does not mandate the Presidential restrictions, but rather makes clear that they may be narrowed or waived any time after the President leaves office. Moreover, in the legislative history, Congress advised the Archivist and former Presidents to do just that:

> It is also expected that the Archivist will follow past practice in applying the restrictive categories in former Presidents' deeds of gift, and negotiate with the ex-President or his representative on an on-going basis to lessen the number of years chosen for particular mandatory restriction categories, to eliminate entire categories, or to permit release of particular records otherwise restricted.

H. Rep. 95-1487, at 15. Former Presidents Reagan and Bush have both narrowed the scope of PRA exemptions P2 and P5, allowing significantly more records to be opened than what might otherwise be authorized. NARA will work with former President Clinton and his representative to try to narrow these exemptions as well.

The PRA also removes the authority to withhold Presidential records under FOIA exemption (b)(5) after the expiration of the P5 exemption. During debate on the bill, Senator Percy stated that "[a]fter the 12-year period, . . . no document should be withheld simply because it contains confidential materials; such a result would undermine a basic purpose of the legislation. Consequently, the (b)(5) exemption has no place in this statutory scheme." Floor Statement of Senator Percy, Cong. Rec., Oct. 13, 1978, at 36844.

In drafting the statute, Congress considered alternative time periods for how long the Presidential exemptions should be available. For example, the National Study Commission on Records and Documents of Federal Officials recommended that the restriction period be 15 years. Similarly, in his testimony on the pending legislation to establish the Presidential Records Act, the Archivist of the United States also recommended a 15-year period. On the other hand, early versions of the legislation set out a 10-year period. President Ford, in his 1976 deed of gift of his Presidential papers to the National Archives, established a 13-year restriction period, after which time all "communications made in confidence to me or between my advisors for the purpose of assisting or advising me" could be opened.

Ultimately, Congress settled on 12 years, which, in the words of Congressman Brooks, "will further insulate from partisan politics the pending public availability of a former President's records by removing the mandatory restrictive period to include a third election cycle after the President has left office." Floor Statement of Congressman Brooks, Cong. Rec., Oct. 5, 1978, at 33860.

The elimination of a statutory exemption in no way prevents a proper assertion of Executive privilege by the former or incumbent President. As the PRA itself notes, the incumbent and former Presidents have clear legal authority to assert Executive privilege over the Presidential records of former Presidents. "Nothing in this Act shall be construed to confirm, limit, or expand any constitutionally-based privilege which may be available to an incumbent or former President." 44 U.S.C. § 2204(c)(2). As Senator Percy explained, the PRA does not > prevent a former or incumbent President from arguing, even after the 12-year period, that a particular confidential communication between the President and an advisor should not be released. To what extent the concept of "executive privilege" protects the confidentiality of a former or incumbent President's communications with his advisors is an open question. If some future President believes that the 12-year closure period does not suffice, that President could object to the release of some document in the 13th or 15th or 20th year. This legislation does not resolve the outcome of such legal action; the issue would be resolved by the courts. The fourth amendment [to the pending legislation] would make it explicit that "nothing in this Act shall be construed to confirm, limit, or expand any constitutionally-based privilege which may be available to an incumbent or former President."

Floor Statement of Senator Percy, Cong. Rec., Oct. 13, 1978, at 36844. This provision reflects the holding by the Supreme Court that the constitutionally based privileges available to a President "survive[] the individual President's tenure." Nixon v. Administrator of General Services, 433 U.S. 425, 449 (1977). But the Supreme Court also noted that Executive privilege with respect to Presidential communications is "subject to erosion over time after an administration leaves office," especially to the extent it can be exercised by a former President. Id. at 451.

Special Access to Presidential Records

In addition to establishing procedures for public access, the PRA also establishes procedures for what NARA calls "special access" to Presidential records that are otherwise closed from public access. These special access provisions are designed to accommodate requests by Congressional investigators, Federal prosecutors, other parties in litigation, and the incumbent President for the ongoing business of the current Administration. However, prior to providing such access, NARA must notify the former and incumbent Presidents and provide them an opportunity to review the records and consider whether to assert any constitutionally-based privilege. Accordingly, either House of Congress, or a Committee or Subcommittee with appropriate jurisdiction, may request access to Presidential records. Similarly, Federal prosecutors may seek access through a grand jury subpoena, and other parties in litigation may seek access through court orders. The incumbent President may also obtain access to the records of a predecessor on behalf of his staff, such as the NSC, or any other agency, "for the conduct of current business." 44 U.S.C. § 2205(2)(B). The former President and his designated representative are always entitled to access to the Presidential records of his Administration.

Executive Order on Presidential Records

Executive Order 12667, issued by President Reagan in 1989, establishes the procedures for providing notice to the former and incumbent Presidents so that they can review records and assert any rights or privileges prior to public or special access disclosures. [The Administration is currently considering whether to issue a new Executive Order on this matter.]

That concludes my formal statement, Mr. Chairman, and I would be happy to answer any questions at the appropriate time.

The purpose of the meeting is to review what has been done re: the Library and discuss any future action we need to take or plan, etc. There are levels of planning for the Library--for instance, one level is the collection of artifacts, etc. from this WH for use in eventual displays. I have been collecting things which relate to Sept. 11---the folder from National Prayer Service, etc. If we don't collect these things now, we won't have it for the Library. Higher levels are the responses we have already done to those interested in the site of the Library, and the selection of the site.
There's nothing you have to prepare for the meeting. Just come and enjoy! :)

I saw nothing in the first one that was remotely interesting. Just looks like your typical big Government program. Did not look at the tax part of it, but by its girth, tax simplification must not have been a big part of it.

OMNIBUS CHARITY/COMPASSION BILL

TITLE I--CHARITABLE GIVING INCENTIVES PACKAGE

SEC. 101. DEDUCTION FOR PORTION OF CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTIONS TO BE ALLOWED TO INDIVIDUALS WHO DO NOT ITEMIZE DEDUCTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL- Section 170 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to charitable, etc., contributions and gifts) is amended by redesignating subsection (m) as subsection (n) and by inserting after subsection (l) the following new subsection:

`(m) DEDUCTION FOR INDIVIDUALS NOT ITEMIZING DEDUCTIONS-

`(1) IN GENERAL- In the case of an individual who does not itemize his deductions for the taxable year, there shall be taken into account as a direct charitable deduction under section 63 an amount equal to the lesser of--

`(A) the amount allowable under subsection (a) for the taxable year for cash contributions, or

`(B) the applicable amount.

`(2) APPLICABLE AMOUNT- For purposes of paragraph (1), the applicable amount shall be determined as follows:

`For taxable years

--The applicable

beginning in:

--amount is:

2001, 2002, 2003

$200 for individuals; $400 for joint filers;

2004, 2005, 2006

$300 for individuals; $600 for joint filers;

2007, 2008, 2009

$400 for individuals; $800 for joint filers;

2010 and thereafter
$500 for individuals; $1,000 for joint filers.

In the case of a joint return, the applicable amount is twice the applicable amount determined under the preceding table.'.

(b) DIRECT CHARITABLE DEDUCTION-

(1) IN GENERAL- Subsection (b) of section 63 of such Code is amended by striking `and' at the end of paragraph (1), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (2) and inserting `, and', and by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

`(3) the direct charitable deduction.'.

(2) DEFINITION- Section 63 of such Code is amended by redesignating subsection (g) as subsection (h) and by inserting after subsection (f) the following new subsection:

`(g) DIRECT CHARITABLE DEDUCTION- For purposes of this section, the term `direct charitable deduction' means that portion of the amount allowable under section 170(a) which is taken as a direct charitable deduction for the taxable year under section 170(m).'.

(3) CONFORMING AMENDMENT- Subsection (d) of section 63 of such Code is amended by striking `and' at the end of paragraph (1), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (2) and inserting `, and', and by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

`(3) the direct charitable deduction.'.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE- The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

SEC. 102. TAX-FREE DISTRIBUTIONS FROM INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT ACCOUNTS FOR CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

(a) IN GENERAL- Subsection (d) of section 408 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to individual retirement accounts) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

`(8) DISTRIBUTIONS FOR CHARITABLE PURPOSES-

`(A) IN GENERAL- No amount shall be includible in gross income by reason

of a qualified charitable distribution.

`(B) QUALIFIED CHARITABLE DISTRIBUTION- For purposes of this paragraph, the term `qualified charitable distribution' means any distribution from an individual retirement account--

`(i) which is made on or after the date that the individual for whose benefit the account is maintained has attained age 59 1/2 , and

`(ii) which is made directly by the trustee--

`(I) to an organization described in section 170(c), or

`(II) to a split-interest entity.

A distribution shall be treated as a qualified charitable distribution only to the extent that the distribution would be includible in gross income without regard to subparagraph (A) and, in the case of a distribution to a split-interest entity, only if no person holds an income interest in the amounts in the split-interest entity attributable to such distribution other than one or more of the following: the individual for whose benefit such account is maintained, the spouse of such individual, or any organization described in section 170(c).

`(C) CONTRIBUTIONS MUST BE OTHERWISE DEDUCTIBLE- For purposes of this paragraph--

`(i) DIRECT CONTRIBUTIONS- A distribution to an organization described in section 170(c) shall be treated as a qualified charitable distribution only if a deduction for the entire distribution would be allowable under section 170 (determined without regard to subsection (b) thereof and this paragraph).

`(ii) SPLIT-INTEREST GIFTS- A distribution to a split-interest entity shall be treated as a qualified charitable distribution only if a deduction for the entire value of the interest in the distribution for the use of an organization described in section 170(c) would be allowable under section 170 (determined without regard to subsection (b) thereof and this paragraph).

`(D) APPLICATION OF SECTION 72- Notwithstanding section 72, in determining the extent to which a distribution is a qualified charitable distribution, the entire amount of the distribution shall be treated as includible in gross income without regard to subparagraph (A) to the extent that such amount does not exceed the aggregate amount which would be so includible if all amounts were distributed from all individual retirement accounts otherwise taken into account in determining the inclusion on such distribution under section 72. Proper adjustments shall be made in applying section 72 to other distributions in such taxable year and subsequent taxable years.

`(E) SPECIAL RULES FOR SPLIT-INTEREST ENTITIES-

`(i) CHARITABLE REMAINDER TRUSTS- Distributions made from an individual retirement account to a trust described in subparagraph (G)(ii)(I) shall be treated as income described in section 664(b)(1) except to the extent that the beneficiary of the individual retirement account notifies the trustee of the trust of the amount which is not allocable to income under subparagraph (D).

`(ii) POOLED INCOME FUNDS- No amount shall be includible in the gross income of a pooled income fund (as defined in subparagraph (G)(ii)(II)) by reason of a qualified charitable distribution to such fund.

`(iii) CHARITABLE GIFT ANNUITIES- Qualified charitable distributions made for a charitable gift annuity shall not be treated as an investment in the contract.

`(F) DENIAL OF DEDUCTION- Qualified charitable distributions shall not be taken into account in determining the deduction under section 170.

`(G) SPLIT-INTEREST ENTITY DEFINED- For purposes of this paragraph, the term `split-interest entity' means--

`(i) a charitable remainder annuity trust or a charitable remainder unitrust (as such terms are defined in section 664(d)),

`(ii) a pooled income fund (as defined in section 642(c)(5)), and

`(iii) a charitable gift annuity (as defined in section 501(m)(5)).'.

(b) MODIFICATIONS RELATING TO INFORMATION RETURNS BY CERTAIN TRUSTS-

(1) RETURNS- Section 6034 of such Code (relating to returns by trusts described in section 4947(a)(2) or claiming charitable deductions under section 642(c)) is amended to read as follows:

`SEC. 6034. RETURNS BY TRUSTS DESCRIBED IN SECTION 4947(a)(2) OR CLAIMING CHARITABLE DEDUCTIONS UNDER SECTION 642(c).

REV_00133477

`(a) TRUSTS DESCRIBED IN SECTION 4947(a)(2)- Every trust described in section 4947(a)(2) shall furnish such information with respect to the taxable year as the Secretary may by forms or regulations require.

`(b) TRUSTS CLAIMING A CHARITABLE DEDUCTION UNDER SECTION 642(c)-

`(1) IN GENERAL- Every trust not required to file a return under subsection (a) but claiming a charitable, etc., deduction under section 642(c) for the taxable year shall furnish such information with respect to such taxable year as the Secretary may by forms or regulations prescribe, including:

`(A) the amount of the charitable, etc., deduction taken under section 642(c) within such year,

`(B) the amount paid out within such year which represents amounts for which charitable, etc., deductions under section 642(c) have been taken in prior years,

`(C) the amount for which charitable, etc., deductions have been taken in prior years but which has not been paid out at the beginning of such year,

`(D) the amount paid out of principal in the current and prior years for charitable, etc., purposes,

`(E) the total income of the trust within such year and the expenses attributable thereto, and

`(F) a balance sheet showing the assets, liabilities, and net worth of the trust as of the beginning of such year.

`(2) EXCEPTIONS- Paragraph (1) shall not apply in the case of a taxable year if all the net income for such year, determined under the applicable principles of the law of trusts, is required to be distributed currently to the beneficiaries. Paragraph (1) shall not apply in the case of a trust described in section 4947(a)(1).'.

(2) INCREASE IN PENALTY RELATING TO FILING OF INFORMATION RETURN BY SPLIT-INTEREST TRUSTS- Paragraph (2) of section 6652(c) of such Code (relating to returns by exempt organizations and by certain trusts) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

`(i) the 5 percent limitation in the second sentence of paragraph (1)(A) shall not apply,

`(ii) in the case of any trust with gross income in excess of $250,000, the first sentence of paragraph (1)(A) shall be applied by substituting `$100' for `$20', and the second sentence thereof shall be applied by substituting `$50,000' for `$10,000', and
`(iii) the third sentence of paragraph (1)(A) shall be disregarded.

If the person required to file such return knowingly fails to file the return, such person shall be personally liable for the penalty imposed pursuant to this subparagraph.'.

(3) CONFIDENTIALITY OF NONCHARITABLE BENEFICIARIES- Subsection (b) of section 6104 of such Code (relating to inspection of annual information returns) is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: `In the case of a trust which is required to file a return under section 6034(a), this subsection shall not apply to information regarding beneficiaries which are not organizations described in section 170(c).'.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATES-

(1) SUBSECTION (a)- The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

(2) SUBSECTION (b)- The amendments made by subsection (b) shall apply to returns for taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

SEC. 103. INCREASE IN CAP ON CORPORATE CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL- Paragraph (2) of section 170(b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to corporations) is amended by striking `10 percent' and inserting `the applicable percentage'.

(b) APPLICABLE PERCENTAGE- Subsection (b) of section 170 of such Code is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

`(3) APPLICABLE PERCENTAGE DEFINED- For purposes of paragraph (2), the applicable percentage shall be determined in accordance with the following table:

`For taxable years beginning

--The applicable

REV_00133479

in calendar year--

--percentage is--

2001 through 2005

--15

2007

2008

– 21

– 23

– 25.'.

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS-

(1) Sections 512(b)(10) and 805(b)(2)(A) of such Code are each amended by striking `10 percent' each place it occurs and inserting `the applicable percentage (determined under section 170(b)(3))'.

(2) Sections 545(b)(2) and 556(b)(2) of such Code are each amended by striking `10-percent limitation' and inserting `applicable percentage limitation'.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE- The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

SEC. 104. CHARITABLE DEDUCTION FOR CONTRIBUTIONS OF FOOD INVENTORY.

(a) IN GENERAL- Subsection (e) of section 170 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to certain contributions of ordinary income and capital gain property) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

`(7) SPECIAL RULE FOR CONTRIBUTIONS OF FOOD INVENTORY- For purposes of this section--

`(A) CONTRIBUTIONS BY NON-CORPORATE TAXPAYERS- In the case of a charitable contribution of food by a taxpayer, paragraph (3)(A) shall be applied without regard to whether or not the contribution is made by a corporation.

`(B) LIMIT ON REDUCTION- In the case of a charitable contribution of food which is a qualified contribution (within the meaning of paragraph (3)(A), as modified by subparagraph (A) of this paragraph)--

`(i) paragraph (3)(B) shall not apply, and

`(ii) the reduction under paragraph (1)(A) for such contribution shall be no greater than the amount (if any) by which the amount of such contribution exceeds twice the basis of such food.

`(C) DETERMINATION OF BASIS- For purposes of this paragraph, if a taxpayer uses the cash method of accounting, the basis of any qualified contribution of such taxpayer shall be deemed to be 50 percent of the fair market value of such contribution.

`(D) DETERMINATION OF FAIR MARKET VALUE- In the case of a charitable contribution of food which is a qualified contribution (within the meaning of paragraph (3), as modified by subparagraphs (A) and (B) of this paragraph) and which, solely by reason of internal standards of the taxpayer, lack of market, or similar circumstances, or which is produced by the taxpayer exclusively for the purposes of transferring the food to an organization described in paragraph (3)(A), cannot or will not be sold, the fair market value of such contribution shall be determined--

`(i) without regard to such internal standards, such lack of market, such circumstances, or such exclusive purpose, and

`(ii) if applicable, by taking into account the price at which the same or similar food items are sold by the taxpayer at the time of the contribution (or, if not so sold at such time, in the recent past).'.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE- The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

REV_00133481

(a) IN GENERAL- Paragraph (3) of section 170(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to special rule for certain contributions of inventory and other property) is amended by redesignating subparagraph (C) as subparagraph (D) and by inserting after subparagraph (B) the following new subparagraph:

`(C) SPECIAL RULE FOR CONTRIBUTIONS OF FOOD INVENTORY-

`(i) GENERAL RULE- In the case of a charitable contribution of food, this paragraph shall be applied--

`(I) without regard to whether the contribution is made by a C corporation, and

`(II) only for food that is apparently wholesome food.

`(ii) DETERMINATION OF FAIR MARKET VALUE- In the case of a qualified contribution of apparently wholesome food to which this paragraph applies and which, solely by reason of internal standards of the taxpayer or lack of market, cannot or will not be sold, the fair market value of such food shall be determined by taking into account the price at which the same or similar food items are sold by the taxpayer at the time of the contribution (or, if not so sold at such time, in the recent past).

`(iii) APPARENTLY WHOLESOME FOOD- For purposes of this subparagraph, the term `apparently wholesome food' shall have the meaning given to such term by section 22(b)(2) of the Bill Emerson Good Samaritan Food Donation Act (42 U.S.C. 1791(b)(2)), as in effect on the date of the enactment of this subparagraph.'.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE- The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

SEC. 105. REFORM OF EXCISE TAX ON NET INVESTMENT INCOME OF PRIVATE FOUNDATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL- Subsection (a) of section 4940 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to excise tax based on investment income) is amended by striking `2 percent' and inserting `1 percent'.

(b) REPEAL OF REDUCTION IN TAX WHERE PRIVATE FOUNDATION MEETS CERTAIN DISTRIBUTION REQUIREMENTS- Section 4940 of such Code is amended by striking subsection (e).

REV_00133482

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE- The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

SEC. 106. EXCISE TAX ON UNRELATED BUSINESS TAXABLE INCOME OF CHARITABLE REMAINDER TRUSTS.

(a) IN GENERAL- Subsection (c) of section 664 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to exemption from income taxes) is amended to read as follows:

`(c) TAXATION OF TRUSTS-

`(1) INCOME TAX- A charitable remainder annuity trust and a charitable remainder unitrust shall, for any taxable year, not be subject to any tax imposed by this subtitle.

`(2) EXCISE TAX-

`(A) IN GENERAL- In the case of a charitable remainder annuity trust or a charitable remainder unitrust that has unrelated business taxable income (within the meaning of section 512, determined as if part III of subchapter F applied to such trust) for a taxable year, there is hereby imposed on such trust or unitrust an excise tax equal to the amount of such unrelated business taxable income.

`(B) CERTAIN RULES TO APPLY- The tax imposed by subparagraph (A) shall be treated as imposed by chapter 42 for purposes of this title other than subchapter E of chapter 42.

`(i) subsection (b),

`(ii) determining the value of trust assets under subsection (d)(2), and

`(iii) determining income under subsection (d)(3).

`(D) TAX COURT PROCEEDINGS- For purposes of this paragraph, the references in section 6212(c)(1) to section 4940 shall be deemed to include references to this paragraph.'.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE- The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

REV_00133483

SEC. 107. EXPANSION OF CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTION ALLOWED FOR SCIENTIFIC PROPERTY USED FOR RESEARCH AND FOR COMPUTER TECHNOLOGY AND EQUIPMENT USED FOR EDUCATIONAL PURPOSES.

(a) SCIENTIFIC PROPERTY USED FOR RESEARCH- Clause (ii) of section 170(e)(4)(B) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (defining qualified research contributions) is amended by inserting `or assembled' after `constructed'.

(b) COMPUTER TECHNOLOGY AND EQUIPMENT FOR EDUCATIONAL PURPOSES- Clause (ii) of section 170(e)(6)(B) of such Code is amended by inserting `or assembled' after `constructed' and `or assembling' after `construction'.
(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENT- Subparagraph (D) of section 170(e)(6) of such Code is amended by inserting `or assembled' after `constructed' and `or assembling' after `construction'.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE- The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

SEC. 108. ADJUSTMENT TO BASIS OF S CORPORATION STOCK FOR CERTAIN CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL- Paragraph (1) of section 1367(a) of such Code (relating to adjustments to basis of stock of shareholders, etc.) is amended by striking `and' at the end of subparagraph (B), by striking the period at the end of subparagraph (C) and inserting `, and', and by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

> `(D) the excess of the amount of the shareholder's deduction for any charitable contribution made by the S corporation over the shareholder's proportionate share of the adjusted basis of the property contributed.'.

TITLE II--INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNTS

SEC. 201. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS- Congress makes the following findings:

(1) For the vast majority of households the pathway to the economic mainstream and financial security is not through spending and consumption, but through saving, investing, and the accumulation of assets. Assets promote economic household stability, decrease economic strain on households, promote educational attainment, decrease marital dissolution, decrease the risk of intergenerational poverty transmission, increase health and satisfaction among adults, increase property values, decrease residential mobility, increase property maintenance, and increase local civic involvement.

(2) One-third of all Americans have no assets available for investment and another 20 percent have only negligible assets. Assets are distributed far more unevenly than income. Whereas the top 20 percent of American households earn over 43 percent of all income, such households hold over 68 percent of net worth and almost 87 percent of net financial assets. Moreover, asset poverty and wealth gaps are even higher among minority households by a ratio of more than 11 to 1. Up to 20 percent of all households are unbanked and do not have access to the basic financial tools that make asset accumulation possible.

(3) Public policy has contributed to large asset gaps in the United States. Traditional public assistance programs based on income and consumption have rarely been successful in supporting the transition to economic self-sufficiency. Tax policy, through $288,000,000,000 in annual tax incentives, has helped lay the foundation for the great American middle class, but only for some citizens. Fully 90 percent of such current tax benefits accrue to households earning more than $50,000 per year, roughly half of all American households. Lacking an income tax liability, low-income working families cannot take advantage of asset development incentives. Moreover, low-income families seeking public assistance must first spend down their assets and face severe asset limits once on assistance.

(4) Individual Development Accounts , or IDAs, have proven to be successful in helping low-income working families save and accumulate assets. In one national demonstration project, 2,378 low-income families saved a total of $834,442 in one year which generated another $1,644,510 in private matching funds. Thus far, IDA savings have been used to purchase long-term, high-return assets, including homes, post-secondary education and training, and small businesses. Presently, about 10,000 IDAs are in existence in the United States, held by a very small fraction of the at least 70 million Americans who are asset poor.

(5) Therefore, the Federal Government should support, through the tax code, a significant expansion of Individual Development Accounts so that millions of low-income working families across the country can save, accumulate assets, and move their lives forward, and thus make positive contributions to the economic and social well-being of the United States, as well as to its future.

(b) PURPOSES- The purposes of this title are to provide for the establishment of individual development account programs that will--

(1) provide individuals and families with limited means an opportunity to accumulate assets and to enter the financial mainstream;

(2) promote education, homeownership, and the development of small businesses;

(3) stabilize families and build communities; and

REV_00133485

(4) support continued United States economic expansion.

SEC. 202. DEFINITIONS.

As used in this title:

(1) ELIGIBLE INDIVIDUAL -

(A) IN GENERAL- The term `eligible individual' means an individual who--

(i) has attained the age of 18 years but not the age of 61;

(ii) is a citizen or legal resident of the United States;

(iii) is not a student (as defined in section 151(c)(4)); and

(iv) is a taxpayer the adjusted gross income of whom for the preceding taxable year does not exceed--

(I) $20,000, in the case of a taxpayer described in section 1(c) or 1(d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986;

(II) $25,000, in the case of a taxpayer described in section 1(b) of such Code; and

(III) $40,000, in the case of a taxpayer described in section 1(a) of such Code.

(B) INFLATION ADJUSTMENT-

(i) IN GENERAL- In the case of any taxable year beginning after 2002, each dollar amount referred to in subparagraph (A)(iv) shall be increased by an amount equal to--

(I) such dollar amount, multiplied by

(II) the cost-of-living adjustment determined under section (1)(f)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 for the calendar year in which the taxable year begins, by substituting `2001' for `1992'.

(ii) ROUNDING- If any amount as adjusted under clause (i) is not a multiple of $50, such amount shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $50.

REV_00133486

(2) INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT- The term `Individual Development Account' means an account established for an eligible individual as part of a qualified individual development account program, but only if the written governing instrument creating the account meets the following requirements:

(A) The sole owner of the account is the individual for whom the account was established.

(B) No contribution will be accepted unless it is in cash.

(C) The holder of the account is a qualified financial institution.

(D) The assets of the account will not be commingled with other property except in a common trust fund or common investment fund.

(E) Except as provided in section 1005(b), any amount in the account may be paid out only for the purpose of paying the qualified expenses of the account owner.

(3) PARALLEL ACCOUNT- The term `parallel account' means a separate, parallel individual or pooled account for all matching funds and earnings dedicated to an Individual Development Account owner as part of a qualified individual development account program, the sole owner of which is a qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe.

(4) QUALIFIED FINANCIAL INSTITUTION-

(A) IN GENERAL- The term `qualified financial institution' means any person authorized to be a trustee of any individual retirement account under section 408(a)(2).

(B) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION- Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as preventing a person described in subparagraph (A) from collaborating with 1 or more contractual affiliates, qualified nonprofit organizations, or Indian tribes to carry out an individual development account program established under section 1002.

(5) QUALIFIED NONPROFIT ORGANIZATION- The term `qualified nonprofit organization' means--

(A) any organization described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and exempt from taxation under section 501(a) of such Code;

REV_00133487

(B) any community development financial institution certified by the Community Development Financial Institution Fund; or

(C) any credit union chartered under Federal or State law.

(6) INDIAN TRIBE- The term `Indian tribe' means any Indian tribe as defined in section 4(12) of the Native American Housing Assistance and Self-Determination Act of 1996 (25 U.S.C. 4103(12), and includes any tribal subsidiary, subdivision, or other wholly owned tribal entity.

(7) QUALIFIED INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT PROGRAM- The term `qualified individual development account program' means a program established under section 1002 under which--

(A) Individual Development Accounts and parallel accounts are held by a qualified financial institution; and

(B) additional activities determined by the Secretary as necessary to responsibly develop and administer accounts , including recruiting, providing financial education and other training to account owners, and regular program monitoring, are carried out by the qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe.

(8) QUALIFIED EXPENSE DISTRIBUTION-

(A) IN GENERAL- The term `qualified expense distribution' means any amount paid (including through electronic payments) or distributed out of an Individual Development Account and a parallel account established for an eligible individual if such amount--

(i) is used exclusively to pay the qualified expenses of the Individual Development Account owner or such owner's spouse or dependents, as approved by the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe;

(ii) is paid by the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe--

(I) except as otherwise provided in this clause, directly to the unrelated third party to whom the amount is due;

(II) in the case of distributions for working capital under a qualified business plan (as defined in subparagraph (B)(iv)(IV)), directly to the account owner;

REV_00133488

(III) in the case of any qualified rollover, directly to another Individual Development Account and parallel account; or

(IV) in the case of a qualified final distribution, directly to the spouse, dependent, or other named beneficiary of the deceased account owner; and

(iii) is paid after the account owner has completed a financial education course as required under section 1003(b).

(B) QUALIFIED EXPENSES-

(i) IN GENERAL- The term `qualified expenses' means any of the following:

(I) Qualified higher education expenses.

(II) Qualified first-time homebuyer costs.

(III) Qualified business capitalization or expansion costs.

(IV) Qualified rollovers.

(V) Qualified final distribution.

(ii) QUALIFIED HIGHER EDUCATION EXPENSES-

(I) IN GENERAL- The term `qualified higher education expenses' has the meaning given such term by section 72(t)(7) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, determined by treating postsecondary vocational educational schools as eligible educational institutions.

(II) POSTSECONDARY VOCATIONAL EDUCATION SCHOOL- The term `postsecondary vocational educational school' means an area vocational education school (as defined in subparagraph (C) or (D) of section 521(4) of the Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Applied Technology Education Act (20 U.S.C. 2471(4))) which is in any State (as defined in section 521(33) of such Act), as such sections are in effect on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(III) COORDINATION WITH OTHER BENEFITS- The amount of qualified higher education expenses for any taxable year

shall be reduced as provided in section 25A(g)(2) of such Code and may not be taken into account for purposes of determining qualified higher education expenses under section 135 or 530 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(iii) QUALIFIED FIRST-TIME HOMEBUYER COSTS- The term `qualified first-time homebuyer costs' means qualified acquisition costs (as defined in section 72(t)(8) of such Code without regard to subparagraph (B) thereof) with respect to a principal residence (within the meaning of section 121 of such Code) for a qualified first-time homebuyer (as defined in section 72(t)(8) of such Code).

(iv) QUALIFIED BUSINESS CAPITALIZATION OR EXPANSION COSTS-

(I) IN GENERAL- The term `qualified business capitalization or expansion costs' means qualified expenditures for the capitalization or expansion of a qualified business pursuant to a qualified business plan.

(II) QUALIFIED EXPENDITURES- The term `qualified expenditures' means expenditures included in a qualified business plan, including capital, plant, equipment, working capital, inventory expenses, attorney and accounting fees, and other costs normally associated with starting or expanding a business.

(III) QUALIFIED BUSINESS- The term `qualified business' means any business that does not contravene any law.

(IV) QUALIFIED BUSINESS PLAN- The term `qualified business plan' means a business plan which has been approved by the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe and which meets such requirements as the Secretary may specify.

(v) QUALIFIED ROLLOVERS- The term `qualified rollover' means the complete distribution of the amounts in an Individual Development Account and parallel account to another Individual Development Account and parallel account established in another qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe for the benefit of the account owner.

(vi) QUALIFIED FINAL DISTRIBUTION- The term `qualified final distribution' means, in the case of a deceased account owner, the complete distribution of the amounts in an Individual Development Account and parallel account directly to the spouse, any dependent, or other named beneficiary of the deceased.

(9) SECRETARY- The term `Secretary' means the Secretary of the Treasury.

SEC. 203. STRUCTURE AND ADMINISTRATION OF QUALIFIED INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT PROGRAMS.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT OF QUALIFIED INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT PROGRAMS- Any qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe may establish 1 or more qualified individual development account programs which meet the requirements of this title.

(b) BASIC PROGRAM STRUCTURE-

(1) IN GENERAL- All qualified individual development account programs shall consist of the following 2 components:

(A) An Individual Development Account to which an eligible individual may contribute cash in accordance with section 1003.

(B) A parallel account to which all matching funds shall be deposited in accordance with section 1004.

(2) TAILORED IDA PROGRAMS- A qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe may tailor its qualified individual development account program to allow matching funds to be spent on 1 or more of the categories of qualified expenses.

(c) TAX TREATMENT OF PARALLEL ACCOUNTS - Any account described in subparagraph (B) of subsection (b)(1) is exempt from taxation under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

SEC. 204. PROCEDURES FOR OPENING AND MAINTAINING AN INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT AND QUALIFYING FOR MATCHING FUNDS.

(a) OPENING AN ACCOUNT- An eligible individual may open an Individual Development Account with a qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe upon certification that such individual maintains no other Individual Development Account (other than an Individual Development Account to be terminated by a qualified rollover).

(b) REQUIRED COMPLETION OF FINANCIAL EDUCATION COURSE-

(1) IN GENERAL- Before becoming eligible to withdraw matching funds to pay for qualified expenses, owners of Individual Development Accounts must complete a financial education course offered by a qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, an Indian tribe, or a government entity.

(2) STANDARD AND APPLICABILITY OF COURSE- The Secretary, in consultation with representatives of qualified individual development account programs and financial educators, shall establish minimum quality standards for the contents of financial education courses and providers of such courses offered under paragraph (1) and a protocol to exempt individuals from the requirement under paragraph (1) because of hardship or lack of need.

(c) PROOF OF STATUS AS AN ELIGIBLE INDIVIDUAL - Federal income tax forms from the preceding taxable year (or in the absence of such forms, such documentation as specified by the Secretary proving the eligible individual's adjusted gross income and the status of the individual as an eligible individual) shall be presented to the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe at the time of the establishment of the Individual Development Account and in any taxable year in which contributions are made to the Account to qualify for matching funds under section 1004(b)(1)(A).

(d) DIRECT DEPOSITS- The Secretary may, under regulations, provide for the direct deposit of any portion (not less than $1) of any overpayment of Federal tax of an individual as a contribution to the Individual Development Account of such individual .

SEC. 205. DEPOSITS BY QUALIFIED INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT PROGRAMS.

(a) PARALLEL ACCOUNTS - The qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe shall deposit all matching funds for each Individual Development Account into a parallel account at a qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe.

(b) REGULAR DEPOSITS OF MATCHING FUNDS-

(1) IN GENERAL- Subject to paragraph (2), the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe shall not less than quarterly (or upon a proper withdrawal request under section 1005, if necessary) deposit into the parallel account with respect to each eligible individual the following:

(A) A dollar-for-dollar match for the first $500 contributed by the eligible individual into an Individual Development Account with respect to any taxable year.

(B) Any matching funds provided by State, local, or private sources in accordance to the matching ratio set by those sources.

REV_00133492

(2) INFLATION ADJUSTMENT-

(A) IN GENERAL- In the case of any taxable year beginning after 2002, the dollar amount referred to in paragraph (1)(A) shall be increased by an amount equal to--

(i) such dollar amount, multiplied by

(ii) the cost-of-living adjustment determined under section (1)(f)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 for the calendar year in which the taxable year begins, by substituting `2001' for `1992'.

(B) ROUNDING- If any amount as adjusted under subparagraph (A) is not a multiple of $20, such amount shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $20.

(3) Cross reference-

For allowance of tax credit for Individual Development Account subsidies, including matching funds, see section 30B of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(c) DEPOSIT OF MATCHING FUNDS INTO INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT OF INDIVIDUAL WHO HAS ATTAINED AGE 61- In the case of an Individual Development Account owner who attains the age of 61, the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe which holds the parallel account for such individual shall deposit the funds in such parallel account into the Individual Development Account of such individual on the first day of the succeeding taxable year of such individual .

(d) UNIFORM ACCOUNTING REGULATIONS- To ensure proper recordkeeping and determination of the tax credit under section 30B of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, the Secretary shall prescribe regulations with respect to accounting for matching funds in the parallel accounts .

(e) REGULAR REPORTING OF ACCOUNTS - Any qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe shall report the balances in any Individual Development
Account and parallel account of an individual on not less than an annual basis to such individual .

SEC. 206. WITHDRAWAL PROCEDURES.

REV_00133493

(a) WITHDRAWALS FOR QUALIFIED EXPENSES- To withdraw money from an individual's Individual Development Account to pay qualified expenses of such individual or such individual's spouse or dependents, the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe shall directly transfer such funds from the Individual Development Account, and, if applicable, from the parallel account electronically to the distributees described in section 1001(8)(A)(ii). If the distributee is not equipped to receive funds electronically, the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe may issue such funds by paper check to the distributee.

(b) WITHDRAWALS FOR NONQUALIFIED EXPENSES- An Individual Development Account owner may unilaterally withdraw any amount of funds from the Individual Development Account for purposes other than to pay qualified expenses, but shall forfeit a proportionate amount of matching funds from the individual's parallel account by doing so, unless such withdrawn funds are recontributed to such Account by September 30 following the withdrawal.

(c) WITHDRAWALS FROM ACCOUNTS OF NONELIGIBLE INDIVIDUALS- If the individual for whose benefit an Individual Development Account is established ceases to be an eligible individual , such account shall remain an Individual Development Account, but such individual shall not be eligible for any further matching funds under section 1004(b)(1)(A) during the period--

(1) beginning on the first day of the taxable year of such individual following the beginning of such ineligibility, and

(2) ending on the last day of the taxable year of such individual in which such ineligibility ceases.

(d) TAX TREATMENT OF MATCHING FUNDS- Any amount withdrawn from a parallel account shall not be includible in an eligible individual's gross income.

(e) WITHDRAWAL LIABILITY RESTS ONLY WITH ELIGIBLE INDIVIDUALS- Nothing in this title may be construed to impose liability on a qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe for non-compliance with the requirements of this title related to withdrawals from Individual Development Accounts .

SEC. 207. CERTIFICATION AND TERMINATION OF QUALIFIED INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT PROGRAMS.

(a) CERTIFICATION PROCEDURES- Upon establishing a qualified individual

development account program under section 1002, a qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe shall certify to the Secretary on forms prescribed by the Secretary and accompanied by any documentation required by the Secretary, that--

(1) the accounts described in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of section 1002(b)(1) are operating pursuant to all the provisions of this title; and

(2) the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe agrees to implement an information system necessary to monitor the cost and outcomes of the qualified individual development account program.

(b) AUTHORITY TO TERMINATE QUALIFIED IDA PROGRAM- If the Secretary determines that a qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe under this title is not operating a qualified individual development account program in accordance with the requirements of this title (and has not implemented any corrective recommendations directed by the Secretary), the Secretary shall terminate such institution's, nonprofit organization's, or Indian tribe's authority to conduct the program. If the Secretary is unable to identify a qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe to assume the authority to conduct such program, then any funds in a parallel account established for the benefit of any individual under such program shall be deposited into the Individual Development Account of such individual as of the first day of such termination.

SEC. 208. REPORTING, MONITORING, AND EVALUATION.

(a) RESPONSIBILITIES OF QUALIFIED FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, QUALIFIED NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS, AND INDIAN TRIBES- Each qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe that operates a qualified individual development account program under section 1002 shall report annually to the Secretary within 90 days after the end of each calendar year on--

(1) the number of eligible individuals making contributions into Individual Development Accounts ;

(2) the amounts contributed into Individual Development Accounts and deposited into parallel accounts for matching funds;

(3) the amounts withdrawn from Individual Development Accounts and parallel accounts , and the purposes for which such amounts were withdrawn;

(4) the balances remaining in Individual Development Accounts and parallel accounts ; and

(5) such other information needed to help the Secretary monitor the cost and outcomes of the qualified individual development account program (provided in a non-individually-identifiable manner).

(b) RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE SECRETARY-

(1) MONITORING PROTOCOL- Not later than 12 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall develop and implement a protocol and process to monitor the cost and outcomes of the qualified individual development account programs established under section 1002.

(2) ANNUAL REPORTS- In each year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit a progress report to Congress on the status of such qualified individual development account programs. Such report shall include from a representative sample of qualified individual development account programs information on--

(A) the characteristics of participants, including age, gender, race or ethnicity, marital status, number of children, employment status, and monthly income;

(B) deposits, withdrawals, balances, uses of Individual Development Accounts , and participant characteristics;

(C) the characteristics of qualified individual development account programs, including match rate, economic education requirements, permissible uses of accounts , staffing of programs in full time employees, and the total costs of programs; and

(D) process information on program implementation and administration, especially on problems encountered and how problems were solved.

SEC. 209. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There is authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary $1,000,000 for fiscal year 2002 and for each fiscal year through 2008, for the purposes of implementing this title, including the reporting, monitoring, and evaluation required under section 1007, to remain available until expended.

SEC. 210. ACCOUNT FUNDS DISREGARDED FOR PURPOSES OF CERTAIN MEANS-TESTED FEDERAL PROGRAMS.

Notwithstanding any other provision of Federal law that requires consideration of 1 or more financial circumstances of an individual , for the purposes of determining eligibility to receive,
or the amount of, any assistance or benefit authorized by such provision to be provided to or for the benefit of such individual , an amount equal to the sum of--

REV_00133496

(1) all amounts (including earnings thereon) in any Individual Development Account; plus

(2) the matching deposits made on behalf of such individual (including earnings thereon) in any parallel account, shall be disregarded for such purposes.

SEC. 211. MATCHING FUNDS FOR INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNTS PROVIDED THROUGH A TAX CREDIT FOR QUALIFIED FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL- Subpart B of part IV of subchapter A of chapter 1 (relating to other credits) is amended by inserting after section 30A the following new section:

`SEC. 30B. INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT INVESTMENT CREDIT FOR QUALIFIED FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS.

`(a) DETERMINATION OF AMOUNT- There shall be allowed as a credit against the applicable tax for the taxable year an amount equal to the individual development account investment provided by an eligible entity during the taxable year under an individual development account program established under section 1002 of the XX Act.

`(b) APPLICABLE TAX- For the purposes of this section, the term `applicable tax' means the excess (if any) of--

`(1) the tax imposed under this chapter (other than the taxes imposed under the provisions described in subparagraphs (C) through (Q) of section 26(b)(2)), over

`(2) the credits allowable under subpart B (other than this section) and subpart D of this part.

`(c) INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT INVESTMENT-

`(1) IN GENERAL- For purposes of this section, the term `individual development account investment' means, with respect to an individual development account program of a qualified financial institution in any taxable year, an amount equal to the sum of--

`(A) the aggregate amount of dollar-for-dollar matches under such program under section 1004(b)(1)(A) of the XX Act for such taxable year, plus

`(B) an amount equal to the sum of--

`(i) with respect to each Individual Development Account opened during

REV_00133497

such taxable year, $100, plus

`(ii) with respect to each Individual Development Account maintained during such taxable year, $30.

`(2) INFLATION ADJUSTMENT-

`(A) IN GENERAL- In the case of any taxable year beginning after 2002, each dollar amount referred to in paragraph (1)(B) shall be increased by an amount equal to--

`(i) such dollar amount, multiplied by
`(ii) the cost-of-living adjustment determined under section (1)(f)(3) for the calendar year in which the taxable year begins, by substituting `2001' for `1992'.

`(B) ROUNDING- If any amount as adjusted under subparagraph (A) is not a multiple of $5, such amount shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $5.

`(d) ELIGIBLE ENTITY- For purposes of this section, the term `eligible entity' means a qualified financial institution, or 1 or more contractual affiliates of such an institution as defined by the Secretary in regulations.

`(e) OTHER DEFINITIONS- For purposes of this section, any term used in this section and also in the XX Act shall have the meaning given such term by such Act.

`(f) DENIAL OF DOUBLE BENEFIT- No deduction or credit (other than under this section) shall be allowed under this chapter with respect to any expense which is taken into account under subsection (c)(1)(A) in determining the credit under this section.

`(g) REGULATIONS- The Secretary may prescribe such regulations as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out this section, including regulations providing for a recapture of the credit allowed under this section (notwithstanding any termination date described in subsection

(h)) in cases where there is a forfeiture under section 1005(b) of the XX Act in a subsequent taxable year of any amount which was taken into account in determining the amount of such credit.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT- The table of sections for subpart B of part IV of

subchapter A of chapter 1 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 30A the following new item:

`Sec. 30B. Individual development account investment credit for qualified financial institutions.'.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE- The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

TITLE III -- CHARITABLE DONATIONS LIABILITY REFORM FOR IN-KIND CORPORATE CONTRIBUTIONS

SEC. 301. CHARITABLE DONATIONS LIABILITY REFORM FOR IN-KIND CORPORATE CONTRIBUTIONS.

Subject: LRM IMS4 - - Draft Bill on Omnibus Charity/Compassion Package - Tax and IDA Provisions

I saw nothing in the first one that was remotely interesting. Just looks like your typical big Government program. Did not look at the tax part of it, but by its girth, tax simplification must not have been a big part of it.

OMNIBUS CHARITY/COMPASSION BILL

TITLE I--CHARITABLE GIVING INCENTIVES PACKAGE

SEC. 101. DEDUCTION FOR PORTION OF CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTIONS TO BE ALLOWED TO INDIVIDUALS WHO DO NOT ITEMIZE DEDUCTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL- Section 170 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to charitable, etc., contributions and gifts) is amended by redesignating subsection (m) as subsection (n) and by inserting after subsection (l) the following new subsection:

`(m) DEDUCTION FOR INDIVIDUALS NOT ITEMIZING DEDUCTIONS-

`(1) IN GENERAL- In the case of an individual who does not itemize his deductions for the taxable year, there shall be taken into account as a direct charitable deduction under section 63 an amount equal to the lesser of--

`(A) the amount allowable under subsection (a) for the taxable year for cash contributions, or

`(B) the applicable amount.

`(2) APPLICABLE AMOUNT- For purposes of paragraph (1), the applicable amount shall be determined as follows:

`For taxable years

--The applicable

beginning in:

--amount is:

2001, 2002, 2003

$200 for individuals; $400 for joint filers;

2004, 2005, 2006

$300 for individuals; $600 for joint filers;

2007, 2008, 2009

$400 for individuals; $800 for joint filers;

2010 and thereafter
$500 for individuals; $1,000 for joint filers.

In the case of a joint return, the applicable amount is twice the applicable amount determined under the preceding table.'.

(b) DIRECT CHARITABLE DEDUCTION-

(1) IN GENERAL- Subsection (b) of section 63 of such Code is amended by striking `and' at the end of paragraph (1), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (2) and inserting `, and', and by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

`(3) the direct charitable deduction.'.

(2) DEFINITION- Section 63 of such Code is amended by redesignating subsection (g) as subsection (h) and by inserting after subsection (f) the following new subsection:

`(g) DIRECT CHARITABLE DEDUCTION- For purposes of this section, the term `direct charitable deduction' means that portion of the amount allowable under section 170(a) which is taken as a direct charitable deduction for the taxable year under section 170(m).'.

(3) CONFORMING AMENDMENT- Subsection (d) of section 63 of such Code is amended by striking `and' at the end of paragraph (1), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (2) and inserting `, and', and by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

`(3) the direct charitable deduction.'.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE- The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

SEC. 102. TAX-FREE DISTRIBUTIONS FROM INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT ACCOUNTS FOR CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

(a) IN GENERAL- Subsection (d) of section 408 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to individual retirement accounts) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

`(8) DISTRIBUTIONS FOR CHARITABLE PURPOSES-

`(A) IN GENERAL- No amount shall be includible in gross income by reason

of a qualified charitable distribution.

`(B) QUALIFIED CHARITABLE DISTRIBUTION- For purposes of this paragraph, the term `qualified charitable distribution' means any distribution from an individual retirement account--

`(i) which is made on or after the date that the individual for whose benefit the account is maintained has attained age 59 1/2 , and

`(ii) which is made directly by the trustee--

`(I) to an organization described in section 170(c), or

`(II) to a split-interest entity.

A distribution shall be treated as a qualified charitable distribution only to the extent that the distribution would be includible in gross income without regard to subparagraph (A) and, in the case of a distribution to a split-interest entity, only if no person holds an income interest in the amounts in the split-interest entity attributable to such distribution other than one or more of the following: the individual for whose benefit such account is maintained, the spouse of such individual, or any organization described in section 170(c).

`(i) DIRECT CONTRIBUTIONS- A distribution to an organization described in section 170(c) shall be treated as a qualified charitable distribution only if a deduction for the entire distribution would be allowable under section 170 (determined without regard to subsection (b) thereof and this paragraph).

`(ii) SPLIT-INTEREST GIFTS- A distribution to a split-interest entity shall be treated as a qualified charitable distribution only if a deduction for the entire value of the interest in the distribution for the use of an organization described in section 170(c) would be allowable under section 170 (determined without regard to subsection (b) thereof and this paragraph).

`(D) APPLICATION OF SECTION 72- Notwithstanding section 72, in determining the extent to which a distribution is a qualified charitable distribution, the entire amount of the distribution shall be treated as includible in gross income without regard to subparagraph (A) to the extent that such amount does not exceed the aggregate amount which would be so includible if all amounts were distributed from all individual retirement accounts otherwise taken into account in determining the inclusion on such distribution under section 72. Proper adjustments shall be made in applying section 72 to other distributions in such taxable year and subsequent taxable years.

`(E) SPECIAL RULES FOR SPLIT-INTEREST ENTITIES-

`(i) CHARITABLE REMAINDER TRUSTS- Distributions made from an individual retirement account to a trust described in subparagraph (G)(ii)(I) shall be treated as income described in section 664(b)(1) except to the extent that the beneficiary of the individual retirement account notifies the trustee of the trust of the amount which is not allocable to income under subparagraph (D).

`(ii) POOLED INCOME FUNDS- No amount shall be includible in the gross income of a pooled income fund (as defined in subparagraph (G)(ii)(II)) by reason of a qualified charitable distribution to such fund.

`(iii) CHARITABLE GIFT ANNUITIES- Qualified charitable distributions made for a charitable gift annuity shall not be treated as an investment in the contract.

`(F) DENIAL OF DEDUCTION- Qualified charitable distributions shall not be taken into account in determining the deduction under section 170.

`(G) SPLIT-INTEREST ENTITY DEFINED- For purposes of this paragraph, the term `split-interest entity' means--

`(i) a charitable remainder annuity trust or a charitable remainder unitrust (as such terms are defined in section 664(d)),

`(ii) a pooled income fund (as defined in section 642(c)(5)), and

`(iii) a charitable gift annuity (as defined in section 501(m)(5)).'.

(b) MODIFICATIONS RELATING TO INFORMATION RETURNS BY CERTAIN TRUSTS-

(1) RETURNS- Section 6034 of such Code (relating to returns by trusts described in section 4947(a)(2) or claiming charitable deductions under section 642(c)) is amended to read as follows:

`SEC. 6034. RETURNS BY TRUSTS DESCRIBED IN SECTION 4947(a)(2) OR CLAIMING CHARITABLE DEDUCTIONS UNDER SECTION 642(c).

REV_00133511

`(a) TRUSTS DESCRIBED IN SECTION 4947(a)(2)- Every trust described in section 4947(a)(2) shall furnish such information with respect to the taxable year as the Secretary may by forms or regulations require.

`(b) TRUSTS CLAIMING A CHARITABLE DEDUCTION UNDER SECTION 642(c)-

`(1) IN GENERAL- Every trust not required to file a return under subsection (a) but claiming a charitable, etc., deduction under section 642(c) for the taxable year shall furnish such information with respect to such taxable year as the Secretary may by forms or regulations prescribe, including:

`(A) the amount of the charitable, etc., deduction taken under section 642(c) within such year,

`(B) the amount paid out within such year which represents amounts for which charitable, etc., deductions under section 642(c) have been taken in prior years,

`(C) the amount for which charitable, etc., deductions have been taken in prior years but which has not been paid out at the beginning of such year,

`(D) the amount paid out of principal in the current and prior years for charitable, etc., purposes,

`(E) the total income of the trust within such year and the expenses attributable thereto, and

`(F) a balance sheet showing the assets, liabilities, and net worth of the trust as of the beginning of such year.

`(2) EXCEPTIONS- Paragraph (1) shall not apply in the case of a taxable year if all the net income for such year, determined under the applicable principles of the law of trusts, is required to be distributed currently to the beneficiaries. Paragraph (1) shall not apply in the case of a trust described in section 4947(a)(1).'.

(2) INCREASE IN PENALTY RELATING TO FILING OF INFORMATION RETURN BY SPLIT-INTEREST TRUSTS- Paragraph (2) of section 6652(c) of such Code (relating to returns by exempt organizations and by certain trusts) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

`(i) the 5 percent limitation in the second sentence of paragraph (1)(A) shall not apply,

`(ii) in the case of any trust with gross income in excess of $250,000, the first sentence of paragraph (1)(A) shall be applied by substituting `$100' for `$20', and the second sentence thereof shall be applied by substituting `$50,000' for `$10,000', and
`(iii) the third sentence of paragraph (1)(A) shall be disregarded.

If the person required to file such return knowingly fails to file the return, such person shall be personally liable for the penalty imposed pursuant to this subparagraph.'.

(3) CONFIDENTIALITY OF NONCHARITABLE BENEFICIARIES- Subsection (b) of section 6104 of such Code (relating to inspection of annual information returns) is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: `In the case of a trust which is required to file a return under section 6034(a), this subsection shall not apply to information regarding beneficiaries which are not organizations described in section 170(c).'.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATES-

(1) SUBSECTION (a)- The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

(2) SUBSECTION (b)- The amendments made by subsection (b) shall apply to returns for taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

SEC. 103. INCREASE IN CAP ON CORPORATE CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL- Paragraph (2) of section 170(b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to corporations) is amended by striking `10 percent' and inserting `the applicable percentage'.

(b) APPLICABLE PERCENTAGE- Subsection (b) of section 170 of such Code is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

`(3) APPLICABLE PERCENTAGE DEFINED- For purposes of paragraph (2), the applicable percentage shall be determined in accordance with the following table:

`For taxable years beginning

--The applicable

REV_00133513

in calendar year--

--percentage is--

--15

2007

2008

– 21

– 23

– 25.'.

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS-

(1) Sections 512(b)(10) and 805(b)(2)(A) of such Code are each amended by striking `10 percent' each place it occurs and inserting `the applicable percentage (determined under section 170(b)(3))'.

(2) Sections 545(b)(2) and 556(b)(2) of such Code are each amended by striking `10-percent limitation' and inserting `applicable percentage limitation'.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE- The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

SEC. 104. CHARITABLE DEDUCTION FOR CONTRIBUTIONS OF FOOD INVENTORY.

(a) IN GENERAL- Subsection (e) of section 170 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to certain contributions of ordinary income and capital gain property) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

`(7) SPECIAL RULE FOR CONTRIBUTIONS OF FOOD INVENTORY- For purposes of this section--

`(A) CONTRIBUTIONS BY NON-CORPORATE TAXPAYERS- In the case of a charitable contribution of food by a taxpayer, paragraph (3)(A) shall be applied without regard to whether or not the contribution is made by a corporation.

`(B) LIMIT ON REDUCTION- In the case of a charitable contribution of food which is a qualified contribution (within the meaning of paragraph (3)(A), as modified by subparagraph (A) of this paragraph)--

`(i) paragraph (3)(B) shall not apply, and

`(ii) the reduction under paragraph (1)(A) for such contribution shall be no greater than the amount (if any) by which the amount of such contribution exceeds twice the basis of such food.

`(C) DETERMINATION OF BASIS- For purposes of this paragraph, if a taxpayer uses the cash method of accounting, the basis of any qualified contribution of such taxpayer shall be deemed to be 50 percent of the fair market value of such contribution.

`(D) DETERMINATION OF FAIR MARKET VALUE- In the case of a charitable contribution of food which is a qualified contribution (within the meaning of paragraph (3), as modified by subparagraphs (A) and (B) of this paragraph) and which, solely by reason of internal standards of the taxpayer, lack of market, or similar circumstances, or which is produced by the taxpayer exclusively for the purposes of transferring the food to an organization described in paragraph (3)(A), cannot or will not be sold, the fair market value of such contribution shall be determined--

`(i) without regard to such internal standards, such lack of market, such circumstances, or such exclusive purpose, and

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE- The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

REV_00133515

(a) IN GENERAL- Paragraph (3) of section 170(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to special rule for certain contributions of inventory and other property) is amended by redesignating subparagraph (C) as subparagraph (D) and by inserting after subparagraph (B) the following new subparagraph:

`(C) SPECIAL RULE FOR CONTRIBUTIONS OF FOOD INVENTORY-

`(i) GENERAL RULE- In the case of a charitable contribution of food, this paragraph shall be applied--

`(I) without regard to whether the contribution is made by a C corporation, and

`(II) only for food that is apparently wholesome food.

`(ii) DETERMINATION OF FAIR MARKET VALUE- In the case of a qualified contribution of apparently wholesome food to which this paragraph applies and which, solely by reason of internal standards of the taxpayer or lack of market, cannot or will not be sold, the fair market value of such food shall be determined by taking into account the price at which the same or similar food items are sold by the taxpayer at the time of the contribution (or, if not so sold at such time, in the recent past).

`(iii) APPARENTLY WHOLESOME FOOD- For purposes of this subparagraph, the term `apparently wholesome food' shall have the meaning given to such term by section 22(b)(2) of the Bill Emerson Good Samaritan Food Donation Act (42 U.S.C. 1791(b)(2)), as in effect on the date of the enactment of this subparagraph.'.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE- The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

SEC. 105. REFORM OF EXCISE TAX ON NET INVESTMENT INCOME OF PRIVATE FOUNDATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL- Subsection (a) of section 4940 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to excise tax based on investment income) is amended by striking `2 percent' and inserting `1 percent'.

(b) REPEAL OF REDUCTION IN TAX WHERE PRIVATE FOUNDATION MEETS CERTAIN DISTRIBUTION REQUIREMENTS- Section 4940 of such Code is amended by striking subsection (e).

REV_00133516

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE- The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

SEC. 106. EXCISE TAX ON UNRELATED BUSINESS TAXABLE INCOME OF CHARITABLE REMAINDER TRUSTS.

(a) IN GENERAL- Subsection (c) of section 664 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to exemption from income taxes) is amended to read as follows:

`(c) TAXATION OF TRUSTS-

`(1) INCOME TAX- A charitable remainder annuity trust and a charitable remainder unitrust shall, for any taxable year, not be subject to any tax imposed by this subtitle.

`(2) EXCISE TAX-

`(A) IN GENERAL- In the case of a charitable remainder annuity trust or a charitable remainder unitrust that has unrelated business taxable income (within the meaning of section 512, determined as if part III of subchapter F applied to such trust) for a taxable year, there is hereby imposed on such trust or unitrust an excise tax equal to the amount of such unrelated business taxable income.

`(B) CERTAIN RULES TO APPLY- The tax imposed by subparagraph (A) shall be treated as imposed by chapter 42 for purposes of this title other than subchapter E of chapter 42.

`(i) subsection (b),

`(ii) determining the value of trust assets under subsection (d)(2), and

`(iii) determining income under subsection (d)(3).

`(D) TAX COURT PROCEEDINGS- For purposes of this paragraph, the references in section 6212(c)(1) to section 4940 shall be deemed to include references to this paragraph.'.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE- The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

REV_00133517

SEC. 107. EXPANSION OF CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTION ALLOWED FOR SCIENTIFIC PROPERTY USED FOR RESEARCH AND FOR COMPUTER TECHNOLOGY AND EQUIPMENT USED FOR EDUCATIONAL PURPOSES.

(a) SCIENTIFIC PROPERTY USED FOR RESEARCH- Clause (ii) of section 170(e)(4)(B) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (defining qualified research contributions) is amended by inserting `or assembled' after `constructed'.

(b) COMPUTER TECHNOLOGY AND EQUIPMENT FOR EDUCATIONAL PURPOSES- Clause (ii) of section 170(e)(6)(B) of such Code is amended by inserting `or assembled' after `constructed' and `or assembling' after `construction'.
(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENT- Subparagraph (D) of section 170(e)(6) of such Code is amended by inserting `or assembled' after `constructed' and `or assembling' after `construction'.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE- The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

SEC. 108. ADJUSTMENT TO BASIS OF S CORPORATION STOCK FOR CERTAIN CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL- Paragraph (1) of section 1367(a) of such Code (relating to adjustments to basis of stock of shareholders, etc.) is amended by striking `and' at the end of subparagraph (B), by striking the period at the end of subparagraph (C) and inserting `, and', and by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

> `(D) the excess of the amount of the shareholder's deduction for any charitable contribution made by the S corporation over the shareholder's proportionate share of the adjusted basis of the property contributed.'.

TITLE II--INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNTS

SEC. 201. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS- Congress makes the following findings:

(1) For the vast majority of households the pathway to the economic mainstream and financial security is not through spending and consumption, but through saving, investing, and the accumulation of assets. Assets promote economic household stability, decrease economic strain on households, promote educational attainment, decrease marital dissolution, decrease the risk of intergenerational poverty transmission, increase health and satisfaction among adults, increase property values, decrease residential mobility, increase property maintenance, and increase local civic involvement.

(2) One-third of all Americans have no assets available for investment and another 20 percent have only negligible assets. Assets are distributed far more unevenly than income. Whereas the top 20 percent of American households earn over 43 percent of all income, such households hold over 68 percent of net worth and almost 87 percent of net financial assets. Moreover, asset poverty and wealth gaps are even higher among minority households by a ratio of more than 11 to 1. Up to 20 percent of all households are unbanked and do not have access to the basic financial tools that make asset accumulation possible.

(3) Public policy has contributed to large asset gaps in the United States. Traditional public assistance programs based on income and consumption have rarely been successful in supporting the transition to economic self-sufficiency. Tax policy, through $288,000,000,000 in annual tax incentives, has helped lay the foundation for the great American middle class, but only for some citizens. Fully 90 percent of such current tax benefits accrue to households earning more than $50,000 per year, roughly half of all American households. Lacking an income tax liability, low-income working families cannot take advantage of asset development incentives. Moreover, low-income families seeking public assistance must first spend down their assets and face severe asset limits once on assistance.

(4) Individual Development Accounts , or IDAs, have proven to be successful in helping low-income working families save and accumulate assets. In one national demonstration project, 2,378 low-income families saved a total of $834,442 in one year which generated another $1,644,510 in private matching funds. Thus far, IDA savings have been used to purchase long-term, high-return assets, including homes, post-secondary education and training, and small businesses. Presently, about 10,000 IDAs are in existence in the United States, held by a very small fraction of the at least 70 million Americans who are asset poor.

(5) Therefore, the Federal Government should support, through the tax code, a significant expansion of Individual Development Accounts so that millions of low-income working families across the country can save, accumulate assets, and move their lives forward, and thus make positive contributions to the economic and social well-being of the United States, as well as to its future.

(b) PURPOSES- The purposes of this title are to provide for the establishment of individual development account programs that will--

(1) provide individuals and families with limited means an opportunity to accumulate assets and to enter the financial mainstream;

(2) promote education, homeownership, and the development of small businesses;

(3) stabilize families and build communities; and

REV_00133519

(4) support continued United States economic expansion.

SEC. 202. DEFINITIONS.

(1) ELIGIBLE INDIVIDUAL -

(A) IN GENERAL- The term `eligible individual' means an individual who--

(i) has attained the age of 18 years but not the age of 61;

(ii) is a citizen or legal resident of the United States;

(iii) is not a student (as defined in section 151(c)(4)); and

(iv) is a taxpayer the adjusted gross income of whom for the preceding taxable year does not exceed--

(I) $20,000, in the case of a taxpayer described in section 1(c) or 1(d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986;

(II) $25,000, in the case of a taxpayer described in section 1(b) of such Code; and

(III) $40,000, in the case of a taxpayer described in section 1(a) of such Code.

(B) INFLATION ADJUSTMENT-

(i) IN GENERAL- In the case of any taxable year beginning after 2002, each dollar amount referred to in subparagraph (A)(iv) shall be increased by an amount equal to--

(I) such dollar amount, multiplied by

(II) the cost-of-living adjustment determined under section (1)(f)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 for the calendar year in which the taxable year begins, by substituting `2001' for `1992'.

(ii) ROUNDING- If any amount as adjusted under clause (i) is not a multiple of $50, such amount shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $50.

REV_00133520

(2) INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT- The term `Individual Development Account' means an account established for an eligible individual as part of a qualified individual development account program, but only if the written governing instrument creating the account meets the following requirements:

(A) The sole owner of the account is the individual for whom the account was established.

(B) No contribution will be accepted unless it is in cash.

(C) The holder of the account is a qualified financial institution.

(D) The assets of the account will not be commingled with other property except in a common trust fund or common investment fund.

(E) Except as provided in section 1005(b), any amount in the account may be paid out only for the purpose of paying the qualified expenses of the account owner.

(3) PARALLEL ACCOUNT- The term `parallel account' means a separate, parallel individual or pooled account for all matching funds and earnings dedicated to an Individual Development Account owner as part of a qualified individual development account program, the sole owner of which is a qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe.

(4) QUALIFIED FINANCIAL INSTITUTION-

(A) IN GENERAL- The term `qualified financial institution' means any person authorized to be a trustee of any individual retirement account under section 408(a)(2).

(B) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION- Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as preventing a person described in subparagraph (A) from collaborating with 1 or more contractual affiliates, qualified nonprofit organizations, or Indian tribes to carry out an individual development account program established under section 1002.

(5) QUALIFIED NONPROFIT ORGANIZATION- The term `qualified nonprofit organization' means--

(A) any organization described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and exempt from taxation under section 501(a) of such Code;

REV_00133521

(B) any community development financial institution certified by the Community Development Financial Institution Fund; or

(C) any credit union chartered under Federal or State law.

(6) INDIAN TRIBE- The term `Indian tribe' means any Indian tribe as defined in section 4(12) of the Native American Housing Assistance and Self-Determination Act of 1996 (25 U.S.C. 4103(12), and includes any tribal subsidiary, subdivision, or other wholly owned tribal entity.

(7) QUALIFIED INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT PROGRAM- The term `qualified individual development account program' means a program established under section 1002 under which--

(A) Individual Development Accounts and parallel accounts are held by a qualified financial institution; and

(B) additional activities determined by the Secretary as necessary to responsibly develop and administer accounts , including recruiting, providing financial education and other training to account owners, and regular program monitoring, are carried out by the qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe.

(8) QUALIFIED EXPENSE DISTRIBUTION-

(A) IN GENERAL- The term `qualified expense distribution' means any amount paid (including through electronic payments) or distributed out of an Individual Development Account and a parallel account established for an eligible individual if such amount--

(i) is used exclusively to pay the qualified expenses of the Individual Development Account owner or such owner's spouse or dependents, as approved by the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe;

(ii) is paid by the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe--

(I) except as otherwise provided in this clause, directly to the unrelated third party to whom the amount is due;

(II) in the case of distributions for working capital under a qualified business plan (as defined in subparagraph (B)(iv)(IV)), directly to the account owner;

REV_00133522

(III) in the case of any qualified rollover, directly to another Individual Development Account and parallel account; or

(IV) in the case of a qualified final distribution, directly to the spouse, dependent, or other named beneficiary of the deceased account owner; and

(iii) is paid after the account owner has completed a financial education course as required under section 1003(b).

(B) QUALIFIED EXPENSES-

(i) IN GENERAL- The term `qualified expenses' means any of the following:

(I) Qualified higher education expenses.

(II) Qualified first-time homebuyer costs.

(III) Qualified business capitalization or expansion costs.

(IV) Qualified rollovers.

(V) Qualified final distribution.

(ii) QUALIFIED HIGHER EDUCATION EXPENSES-

(I) IN GENERAL- The term `qualified higher education expenses' has the meaning given such term by section 72(t)(7) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, determined by treating postsecondary vocational educational schools as eligible educational institutions.

(II) POSTSECONDARY VOCATIONAL EDUCATION SCHOOL- The term `postsecondary vocational educational school' means an area vocational education school (as defined in subparagraph (C) or (D) of section 521(4) of the Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Applied Technology Education Act (20 U.S.C. 2471(4))) which is in any State (as defined in section 521(33) of such Act), as such sections are in effect on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(III) COORDINATION WITH OTHER BENEFITS- The amount of qualified higher education expenses for any taxable year

shall be reduced as provided in section 25A(g)(2) of such Code and may not be taken into account for purposes of determining qualified higher education expenses under section 135 or 530 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(iii) QUALIFIED FIRST-TIME HOMEBUYER COSTS- The term `qualified first-time homebuyer costs' means qualified acquisition costs (as defined in section 72(t)(8) of such Code without regard to subparagraph (B) thereof) with respect to a principal residence (within the meaning of section 121 of such Code) for a qualified first-time homebuyer (as defined in section 72(t)(8) of such Code).

(iv) QUALIFIED BUSINESS CAPITALIZATION OR EXPANSION COSTS-

(I) IN GENERAL- The term `qualified business capitalization or expansion costs' means qualified expenditures for the capitalization or expansion of a qualified business pursuant to a qualified business plan.

(II) QUALIFIED EXPENDITURES- The term `qualified expenditures' means expenditures included in a qualified business plan, including capital, plant, equipment, working capital, inventory expenses, attorney and accounting fees, and other costs normally associated with starting or expanding a business.

(III) QUALIFIED BUSINESS- The term `qualified business' means any business that does not contravene any law.

(IV) QUALIFIED BUSINESS PLAN- The term `qualified business plan' means a business plan which has been approved by the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe and which meets such requirements as the Secretary may specify.

(v) QUALIFIED ROLLOVERS- The term `qualified rollover' means the complete distribution of the amounts in an Individual Development Account and parallel account to another Individual Development Account and parallel account established in another qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe for the benefit of the account owner.

(vi) QUALIFIED FINAL DISTRIBUTION- The term `qualified final distribution' means, in the case of a deceased account owner, the complete distribution of the amounts in an Individual Development Account and parallel account directly to the spouse, any dependent, or other named beneficiary of the deceased.

(9) SECRETARY- The term `Secretary' means the Secretary of the Treasury.

SEC. 203. STRUCTURE AND ADMINISTRATION OF QUALIFIED INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT PROGRAMS.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT OF QUALIFIED INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT PROGRAMS- Any qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe may establish 1 or more qualified individual development account programs which meet the requirements of this title.

(b) BASIC PROGRAM STRUCTURE-

(1) IN GENERAL- All qualified individual development account programs shall consist of the following 2 components:

(A) An Individual Development Account to which an eligible individual may contribute cash in accordance with section 1003.

(B) A parallel account to which all matching funds shall be deposited in accordance with section 1004.

(2) TAILORED IDA PROGRAMS- A qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe may tailor its qualified individual development account program to allow matching funds to be spent on 1 or more of the categories of qualified expenses.

(c) TAX TREATMENT OF PARALLEL ACCOUNTS - Any account described in subparagraph (B) of subsection (b)(1) is exempt from taxation under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

SEC. 204. PROCEDURES FOR OPENING AND MAINTAINING AN INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT AND QUALIFYING FOR MATCHING FUNDS.

(a) OPENING AN ACCOUNT- An eligible individual may open an Individual Development Account with a qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe upon certification that such individual maintains no other Individual Development Account (other than an Individual Development Account to be terminated by a qualified rollover).

(b) REQUIRED COMPLETION OF FINANCIAL EDUCATION COURSE-

(1) IN GENERAL- Before becoming eligible to withdraw matching funds to pay for qualified expenses, owners of Individual Development Accounts must complete a financial education course offered by a qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, an Indian tribe, or a government entity.

(2) STANDARD AND APPLICABILITY OF COURSE- The Secretary, in consultation with representatives of qualified individual development account programs and financial educators, shall establish minimum quality standards for the contents of financial education courses and providers of such courses offered under paragraph (1) and a protocol to exempt individuals from the requirement under paragraph (1) because of hardship or lack of need.

(c) PROOF OF STATUS AS AN ELIGIBLE INDIVIDUAL - Federal income tax forms from the preceding taxable year (or in the absence of such forms, such documentation as specified by the Secretary proving the eligible individual's adjusted gross income and the status of the individual as an eligible individual) shall be presented to the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe at the time of the establishment of the Individual Development Account and in any taxable year in which contributions are made to the Account to qualify for matching funds under section 1004(b)(1)(A).

(d) DIRECT DEPOSITS- The Secretary may, under regulations, provide for the direct deposit of any portion (not less than $1) of any overpayment of Federal tax of an individual as a contribution to the Individual Development Account of such individual .

SEC. 205. DEPOSITS BY QUALIFIED INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT PROGRAMS.

(a) PARALLEL ACCOUNTS - The qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe shall deposit all matching funds for each Individual Development Account into a parallel account at a qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe.

(b) REGULAR DEPOSITS OF MATCHING FUNDS-

(1) IN GENERAL- Subject to paragraph (2), the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe shall not less than quarterly (or upon a proper withdrawal request under section 1005, if necessary) deposit into the parallel account with respect to each eligible individual the following:

(A) A dollar-for-dollar match for the first $500 contributed by the eligible individual into an Individual Development Account with respect to any taxable year.

(B) Any matching funds provided by State, local, or private sources in accordance to the matching ratio set by those sources.

REV_00133526

(2) INFLATION ADJUSTMENT-

(A) IN GENERAL- In the case of any taxable year beginning after 2002, the dollar amount referred to in paragraph (1)(A) shall be increased by an amount equal to--

(i) such dollar amount, multiplied by

(ii) the cost-of-living adjustment determined under section (1)(f)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 for the calendar year in which the taxable year begins, by substituting `2001' for `1992'.

(B) ROUNDING- If any amount as adjusted under subparagraph (A) is not a multiple of $20, such amount shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $20.

(3) Cross reference-

For allowance of tax credit for Individual Development Account subsidies, including matching funds, see section 30B of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(c) DEPOSIT OF MATCHING FUNDS INTO INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT OF INDIVIDUAL WHO HAS ATTAINED AGE 61- In the case of an Individual Development Account owner who attains the age of 61, the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe which holds the parallel account for such individual shall deposit the funds in such parallel account into the Individual Development Account of such individual on the first day of the succeeding taxable year of such individual .

(d) UNIFORM ACCOUNTING REGULATIONS- To ensure proper recordkeeping and determination of the tax credit under section 30B of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, the Secretary shall prescribe regulations with respect to accounting for matching funds in the parallel accounts .

(e) REGULAR REPORTING OF ACCOUNTS - Any qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe shall report the balances in any Individual Development
Account and parallel account of an individual on not less than an annual basis to such individual .

SEC. 206. WITHDRAWAL PROCEDURES.

REV_00133527

(a) WITHDRAWALS FOR QUALIFIED EXPENSES- To withdraw money from an individual's Individual Development Account to pay qualified expenses of such individual or such individual's spouse or dependents, the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe shall directly transfer such funds from the Individual Development Account, and, if applicable, from the parallel account electronically to the distributees described in section 1001(8)(A)(ii). If the distributee is not equipped to receive funds electronically, the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe may issue such funds by paper check to the distributee.

(b) WITHDRAWALS FOR NONQUALIFIED EXPENSES- An Individual Development Account owner may unilaterally withdraw any amount of funds from the Individual Development Account for purposes other than to pay qualified expenses, but shall forfeit a proportionate amount of matching funds from the individual's parallel account by doing so, unless such withdrawn funds are recontributed to such Account by September 30 following the withdrawal.

(c) WITHDRAWALS FROM ACCOUNTS OF NONELIGIBLE INDIVIDUALS- If the individual for whose benefit an Individual Development Account is established ceases to be an eligible individual , such account shall remain an Individual Development Account, but such individual shall not be eligible for any further matching funds under section 1004(b)(1)(A) during the period--

(1) beginning on the first day of the taxable year of such individual following the beginning of such ineligibility, and

(2) ending on the last day of the taxable year of such individual in which such ineligibility ceases.

(d) TAX TREATMENT OF MATCHING FUNDS- Any amount withdrawn from a parallel account shall not be includible in an eligible individual's gross income.

(e) WITHDRAWAL LIABILITY RESTS ONLY WITH ELIGIBLE INDIVIDUALS- Nothing in this title may be construed to impose liability on a qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe for non-compliance with the requirements of this title related to withdrawals from Individual Development Accounts .

SEC. 207. CERTIFICATION AND TERMINATION OF QUALIFIED INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT PROGRAMS.

(a) CERTIFICATION PROCEDURES- Upon establishing a qualified individual

development account program under section 1002, a qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe shall certify to the Secretary on forms prescribed by the Secretary and accompanied by any documentation required by the Secretary, that--

(1) the accounts described in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of section 1002(b)(1) are operating pursuant to all the provisions of this title; and

(2) the qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe agrees to implement an information system necessary to monitor the cost and outcomes of the qualified individual development account program.

(b) AUTHORITY TO TERMINATE QUALIFIED IDA PROGRAM- If the Secretary determines that a qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe under this title is not operating a qualified individual development account program in accordance with the requirements of this title (and has not implemented any corrective recommendations directed by the Secretary), the Secretary shall terminate such institution's, nonprofit organization's, or Indian tribe's authority to conduct the program. If the Secretary is unable to identify a qualified financial institution, a qualified nonprofit organization, or an Indian tribe to assume the authority to conduct such program, then any funds in a parallel account established for the benefit of any individual under such program shall be deposited into the Individual Development Account of such individual as of the first day of such termination.

SEC. 208. REPORTING, MONITORING, AND EVALUATION.

(a) RESPONSIBILITIES OF QUALIFIED FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, QUALIFIED NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS, AND INDIAN TRIBES- Each qualified financial institution, qualified nonprofit organization, or Indian tribe that operates a qualified individual development account program under section 1002 shall report annually to the Secretary within 90 days after the end of each calendar year on--

(1) the number of eligible individuals making contributions into Individual Development Accounts ;

(2) the amounts contributed into Individual Development Accounts and deposited into parallel accounts for matching funds;

(3) the amounts withdrawn from Individual Development Accounts and parallel accounts , and the purposes for which such amounts were withdrawn;

(4) the balances remaining in Individual Development Accounts and parallel accounts ; and

(5) such other information needed to help the Secretary monitor the cost and outcomes of the qualified individual development account program (provided in a non-individually-identifiable manner).

(b) RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE SECRETARY-

(1) MONITORING PROTOCOL- Not later than 12 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall develop and implement a protocol and process to monitor the cost and outcomes of the qualified individual development account programs established under section 1002.

(2) ANNUAL REPORTS- In each year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit a progress report to Congress on the status of such qualified individual development account programs. Such report shall include from a representative sample of qualified individual development account programs information on--

(A) the characteristics of participants, including age, gender, race or ethnicity, marital status, number of children, employment status, and monthly income;

(B) deposits, withdrawals, balances, uses of Individual Development Accounts , and participant characteristics;

(C) the characteristics of qualified individual development account programs, including match rate, economic education requirements, permissible uses of accounts , staffing of programs in full time employees, and the total costs of programs; and

(D) process information on program implementation and administration, especially on problems encountered and how problems were solved.

SEC. 209. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There is authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary $1,000,000 for fiscal year 2002 and for each fiscal year through 2008, for the purposes of implementing this title, including the reporting, monitoring, and evaluation required under section 1007, to remain available until expended.

SEC. 210. ACCOUNT FUNDS DISREGARDED FOR PURPOSES OF CERTAIN MEANS-TESTED FEDERAL PROGRAMS.

Notwithstanding any other provision of Federal law that requires consideration of 1 or more financial circumstances of an individual , for the purposes of determining eligibility to receive,
or the amount of, any assistance or benefit authorized by such provision to be provided to or for the benefit of such individual , an amount equal to the sum of--

REV_00133530

(1) all amounts (including earnings thereon) in any Individual Development Account; plus

(2) the matching deposits made on behalf of such individual (including earnings thereon) in any parallel account,

shall be disregarded for such purposes.

SEC. 211. MATCHING FUNDS FOR INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNTS PROVIDED THROUGH A TAX CREDIT FOR QUALIFIED FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL- Subpart B of part IV of subchapter A of chapter 1 (relating to other credits) is amended by inserting after section 30A the following new section:

`SEC. 30B. INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT INVESTMENT CREDIT FOR QUALIFIED FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS.

`(a) DETERMINATION OF AMOUNT- There shall be allowed as a credit against the applicable tax for the taxable year an amount equal to the individual development account investment provided by an eligible entity during the taxable year under an individual development account program established under section 1002 of the XX Act.

`(b) APPLICABLE TAX- For the purposes of this section, the term `applicable tax' means the excess (if any) of--

`(1) the tax imposed under this chapter (other than the taxes imposed under the provisions described in subparagraphs (C) through (Q) of section 26(b)(2)), over

`(2) the credits allowable under subpart B (other than this section) and subpart D of this part.

`(c) INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNT INVESTMENT-

`(1) IN GENERAL- For purposes of this section, the term `individual development account investment' means, with respect to an individual development account program of a qualified financial institution in any taxable year, an amount equal to the sum of--

`(A) the aggregate amount of dollar-for-dollar matches under such program under section 1004(b)(1)(A) of the XX Act for such taxable year, plus

`(B) an amount equal to the sum of--

`(i) with respect to each Individual Development Account opened during

REV_00133531

such taxable year, $100, plus

`(ii) with respect to each Individual Development Account maintained during such taxable year, $30.

`(2) INFLATION ADJUSTMENT-

`(A) IN GENERAL- In the case of any taxable year beginning after 2002, each dollar amount referred to in paragraph (1)(B) shall be increased by an amount equal to--

`(i) such dollar amount, multiplied by
`(ii) the cost-of-living adjustment determined under section (1)(f)(3) for the calendar year in which the taxable year begins, by substituting `2001' for `1992'.

`(B) ROUNDING- If any amount as adjusted under subparagraph (A) is not a multiple of $5, such amount shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $5.

`(d) ELIGIBLE ENTITY- For purposes of this section, the term `eligible entity' means a qualified financial institution, or 1 or more contractual affiliates of such an institution as defined by the Secretary in regulations.

`(e) OTHER DEFINITIONS- For purposes of this section, any term used in this section and also in the XX Act shall have the meaning given such term by such Act.

`(f) DENIAL OF DOUBLE BENEFIT- No deduction or credit (other than under this section) shall be allowed under this chapter with respect to any expense which is taken into account under subsection (c)(1)(A) in determining the credit under this section.

`(g) REGULATIONS- The Secretary may prescribe such regulations as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out this section, including regulations providing for a recapture of the credit allowed under this section (notwithstanding any termination date described in subsection

(h)) in cases where there is a forfeiture under section 1005(b) of the XX Act in a subsequent taxable year of any amount which was taken into account in determining the amount of such credit.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT- The table of sections for subpart B of part IV of

subchapter A of chapter 1 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 30A the following new item:

`Sec. 30B. Individual development account investment credit for qualified financial institutions.'.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE- The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

TITLE III -- CHARITABLE DONATIONS LIABILITY REFORM FOR IN-KIND CORPORATE CONTRIBUTIONS

SEC. 301. CHARITABLE DONATIONS LIABILITY REFORM FOR IN-KIND CORPORATE CONTRIBUTIONS.

(8) NONPROFIT ORGANIZATION- The term `nonprofit organization' means--

(A) any organization described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue

REV_00133533

Code of 1986 and exempt from tax under section 501(a) of such Code; or

(B) any not-for-profit organization organized and conducted for public benefit and operated primarily for charitable, civic, educational, religious, welfare, or health purposes.

(9) STATE- The term `State' means each of the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, any other territory or possession of the United States, or any political subdivision of any such State, territory, or possession.

(b) LIABILITY-

(1) LIABILITY OF BUSINESS ENTITIES THAT DONATE EQUIPMENT TO NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS-

(A) IN GENERAL- Subject to subsection (c), a business entity shall not be subject to civil liability relating to any injury or death that results from the use of equipment donated by a business entity to a nonprofit organization.

(B) APPLICATION- This paragraph shall apply with respect to civil liability under Federal and State law.

(2) LIABILITY OF BUSINESS ENTITIES PROVIDING USE OF FACILITIES TO NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS-

(A) IN GENERAL- Subject to subsection (c), a business entity shall not be subject to civil liability relating to any injury or death occurring at a facility of the business entity in connection with a use of such facility by a nonprofit organization, if--

(i) the use occurs outside of the scope of business of the business entity;

(ii) such injury or death occurs during a period that such facility is used by the nonprofit organization; and

(iii) the business entity authorized the use of such facility by the nonprofit organization.

(B) APPLICATION- This paragraph shall apply--

(i) with respect to civil liability under Federal and State law; and

(ii) regardless of whether a nonprofit organization pays for the use of a

(3) LIABILITY OF BUSINESS ENTITIES PROVIDING USE OF A MOTOR VEHICLE OR AIRCRAFT-

(A) IN GENERAL- Subject to subsection (c), a business entity shall not be subject to civil liability relating to any injury or death occurring as a result of the operation of aircraft or a motor vehicle of a business entity loaned to a nonprofit organization for use outside of the scope of business of the business entity, if--

(i) such injury or death occurs during a period that such motor vehicle or aircraft is used by a nonprofit organization; and

(ii) the business entity authorized the use by the nonprofit organization of motor vehicle or aircraft that resulted in the injury or death.

(B) APPLICATION- This paragraph shall apply--

(i) with respect to civil liability under Federal and State law; and

(ii) regardless of whether a nonprofit organization pays for the use of the aircraft or motor vehicle.

(c) EXCEPTIONS- Subsection (b) shall not apply to an injury or death that results from an act or omission of a business entity that constitutes gross negligence or intentional misconduct.

(d) SUPERSEDING PROVISION-

(1) IN GENERAL- Subject to paragraph (2) and subsection (e), this title preempts the laws of any State to the extent that such laws are inconsistent with this title, except that this title shall not preempt any State law that provides additional protection for a business entity for an injury or death described in a paragraph of subsection (b) with respect to which the conditions specified in such paragraph apply.

(2) LIMITATION- Nothing in this title shall be construed to supersede any Federal or State health or safety law.

(e) ELECTION OF STATE REGARDING NONAPPLICABILITY- A provision of this title shall not apply to any civil action in a State court against a business entity in which all parties are citizens of the State if such State enacts a statute--

(1) citing the authority of this section;

REV_00133535

(2) declaring the election of such State that such provision shall not apply to such civil action in the State; and

(3) containing no other provisions.

(f) EFFECTIVE DATE- This section shall apply to injuries (and deaths resulting therefrom) occurring on or after the date of the enactment of this Act .

Note that I just learned the $250,000 compensation provision for Africa bombing victims was deleted on the House floor; Maxine Waters termed it an "insult as redrafted" and asked that it be cut rather than included. I have attached a revised side by side to so reflect.

Primary Differences Between House and Senate Bills
(October 15, 2001)

(1) Section 203 of the House bill requires post-sharing notification to the court for grand jury information.
(2) Section 216 of the House bill modifies the pen/trap provisions consistent with Congressman Armey's proposal.
(3) Section 223 of the House bill contains a version of Congressman Frank's proposals relating to civil liability and disciplinary action based on surveillance activities.
(4) Section 224 of the House bill sunsets most of title II.
(5) The House bill does not incorporate title III of the Senate Bill, which is entitled "International Money Laundering Abatement and Anti-terrorist Financing Act of 2001."
(6) Title IV of the House bill (relating to immigration) has a subtitle C relating to victims of terrorism that has no counterpart in the Senate bill.
(7) Section 412 of the House bill requires reconsideration of the detention of terrorist aliens who are not removed every six months, and consolidates habeas review in the D.C. Circuit.
(8) Title V of the House bill omits the McDade fix (section 501 in the Senate Bill).
(9) Title VIII of the House bill omits the biological weapons section (section 802 in the Senate bill).
(10) The House bill adds a section that requires the designation of an official by the Inspector General to receive allegations of civil rights and civil liberties abuses by Department personnel.

I have judicial interviews and 9 and 10:30 tomorrow morning, so that time won't work very well for me. You can still go ahead and have it, however, and fill me in afterwards.

still would like to do that quick internal judges meeting to go over remaining vacancies; how about tomorrow right after staff meeting? And we can vow to make the staff meeting itself as quick as possible?

FYI: CCIPS' requested changes to the House bill.

All but the last request - which is a request to insert language in the report - were included in the list I sent over Friday. Even those these are virtually all repetitive, I am passing these along anyway since they include updated page and line numbers that correspond to the most recent House version.

CCIPS Comments on H.R. 2975

The following are proposed technical amendments to the House Bill. Page and line numbers refer to House Bill circulated on October 15, 2001.

I. Important Technical Amendments

A. Section 216(5), page 44, after line 3:
Proposed change: Insert:

> "(6) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.– Section 3124(b) of title 18, United States Code, is amended by inserting "or other facility" after "the appropriate line"."

Reason: The amendments contained in the bill insert "or other facility" after "line" throughout the statute to reflect the fact that pen/trap devices are no longer used only on telephone lines (see, e.g., page 40, line 20; page 41, line 13). This change to 3124(b) was inadvertently left out.

B. Section 220(3), page 47, after line 9:
Proposed change: Insert:

> "(3) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.– Section 2703(d) of title 18, United States Code, is amended by striking "described in section 3127(2)(A)"."

Reason: In order for the amendment in Section 220(2) to have the intended effect of modifying the definition of "court of competent jurisdiction," the 2703(d) cross-reference to another section of title 18 must be struck.

C. Section 814(a)(4), page 155, line 12-15.
Proposed change: Strike "(B) caused (or, in the" and all that follows through "resulted in–" and insert the following:

> "(B) by conduct described in clause (i), (ii), or (iii) of subparagraph (A), caused (or in the case of an attempted offense, would, if completed, have caused)–"

Reason: The language in the bill does not make sense. The above text was taken from the proposed Senate manager's amendment.

D. Section 814(c)(1), page 158, lines 1-3.
Proposed change: Strike subsection (c)(1) and insert the following:

"(1) in subsection (e)(2) after "means a computer" insert "including a computer located outside of the United States"

Reason: Moving the phrase to a different place in the same subsection reduces the risk that the amendment will have negative implications on other statutes that contain this language.

II. Technical Changes To Frank Amendment To Which Rep. Frank Already Agreed

A. Section 223(b)(3), page 51, line 24.
Proposed change: Strike "duties" and insert "functions".
Reason: Rep. Frank agreed to change, but it inadvertently does not appear in the text.

B. Section 223(c)(1), page 52, line 8.
Proposed change: After "any" insert "willful".
Reason: Rep. Frank agreed to change, but it inadvertently does not appear in the text.

C. Section 223(c)(1), page 52, line 14.
Proposed change: After "successfully establishes" insert "such".
Reason: Rep. Frank agreed to change, but it inadvertently does not appear in the text.

D. Section 223(c)(1), page 53, lines 1-5.
Proposed change: Strike "(2) Any action against" and all that follows through "discovers the violation." and insert the following new paragraph (2):

> "(2) Any action against the United States under this section shall be forever barred unless it is presented in writing to the appropriate Federal agency within two years after such claim accrues or unless action is begun within six months after the date of mailing, by certified or registered mail, of notice of final denial of the claim by the agency to which it was presented. The claim shall accrue on the date upon which the claimant first has a reasonable opportunity to discover the violation."

Reason: Rep. Frank agreed to change, but it inadvertently does not appear in the text.

III. Report Language

A. Section 222, page 49, line 6-15:
Proposed change: If possible, insert the following report language:

> "The Act does not require providers to spend money to develop, design, or implement technical capabilities or facilities. Providers must, of course, continue to comply with obligations imposed by court orders to assist in the interception or collection of evidence in criminal investigations."

Senate Faces Showdown on Judges

By Paul Kane
Roll Call

REV_00133557

Monday, October 15, 2001
With Democrats and Republicans still clashing over the pace of judicial nominations, the appropriations process is expected to remain in slow motion this week in the Senate.

For now, appropriators say the Senate gridlock is not hampering efforts to meet the end-of-the-month target for wrapping up the annual spending bills. House Members and Senators on the spending committees have continued to work on a handful of conference reports that could be concluded this week.

But another week or more of foot-dragging on appropriations measures in the Senate could seriously jeopardize Congress' ability to conclude action on spending bills this month. Senate GOP leaders, however, say ensuring President Bush's judicial nominees get confirmed to the federal bench is just as important a goal as moving appropriations.

"It's still a major problem," Senate Minority Leader Trent Lott (R-Miss.) said at the end of last week. Less than two weeks ago, Lott initiated the strategy of objecting to any attempt by Democrats to bring up an appropriations bill.

Asked if he expected any appropriations measures to move forward this week, Lott replied, "Not right now. No, sir."

Senate Majority Leader Thomas Daschle (D-S.D.) has not blinked, and instead Friday linked the fate of one of the Republicans' key legislative initiatives - the energy bill - to their cooperation on the appropriations bills.

"They say they want to bring up energy, and yet they filibuster every bill that we need to take up to get to a point where we can bring up energy," Daschle said, adding that he will first finish any emergency legislation related to Sept. 11 events and appropriations. "As soon as we get that essential work done, I'm more than willing to look at energy and agriculture - those two bills in particular."

Since adopting the more aggressive approach toward judicial nominees and the spending process, Senate Republicans have only grown increasingly frustrated with Democrats, particularly Judiciary
Chairman Patrick Leahy (Vt.).

On Friday the nine Judiciary Republicans sent Leahy a letter attacking his decision last month to change the questionnaire that all nominees coming before the committee must answer. For the first time, nominees will have to answer questions in the publicly released portion of the questionnaire pertaining to any arrests, charges or convictions of the past 20 years. In the confidential section, which is available to all committee members and their staffs, nominees will now have to spell out past drug use.

Noting that Leahy did not push for these changes during the Clinton administration, the GOP Senators suggested that he was "motivated to implement these changes for political purposes," and they argue that publicizing these issues would have a chilling effect on public service.

"The cumulative effect of your changes is that qualified potential nominees may be deterred from pursuing a career in public service by the more complex and intrusive nature of the questionnaire," the Senators wrote.

Leahy, however, contends that his new questionnaire simplifies the process and that his questions are almost identical to those being publicly asked of nominees by other committees, particularly Governmental Affairs, which had its survey of nominees serve as a model for Judiciary.

Leahy's sixth hearing on judicial nominees came this month. In 1989 and in 1993, similar first years of new administrations, the committee didn't hold its fifth judicial nomination hearing until November.

"The committee and the Senate should be commended, not criticized,"Leahy said in a floor speech Thursday, noting that Judiciary has focused recently on anti-terrorism legislation as well. "In spite of unfair and unfounded criticism, I have continued to proceed with additional hearings and press onward as best I can."

Lott, however, said rank-and-file Republicans are still furious with Leahy, and noted that recent moves to slow the appropriations process came after the GOP Conference had previously urged him to block the spending bills to gain leverage on judicial nominees - a tactic he initially resisted but one he has since agreed upon.

"I've already pushed them back twice," he said of his fellow Republicans.

The anger with Leahy has turned somewhat personal in nature. A growing number of GOP Senators complain that the only way they can get him to move judges from their home states is if they personally ask the chairman to hold a hearing and give them a committee vote, something they say is akin to "begging."

GOP committee members contend that this method leaves open the question of favoritism. "To avoid concerns about favoritism, we suggest that you move judicial nominees in roughly the order that they were nominated," the nine Republicans wrote in an Oct. 3 letter to Leahy.

In his floor speech, Leahy acknowledged that he appreciated the "courtesy" shown by some GOPSenators who personally approached him and let him know how important certain nominees were to their judicial districts, pleas that he has answered. "Others will carp and criticize no matter what we are able to achieve," he said.

REV_00133559

Republicans said the impasse over judges and appropriations will end only after Daschle and Leahy give them specifics of when and how often the nominees will be confirmed.

"We're going to have to have some assurances that we're going to get some judges up [on the floor]," said Minority Whip Don Nickles (R-Okla.), who has been negotiating with his Democratic counterpart, Majority Whip Harry Reid (Nev.).

Reid, however, said he is still waiting to hear from Nickles about which nominees Republicans feel should be moved first and fastest and that the delay will only hold up the problem's resolution.

"Senator Nickles said he'd bring me a list. I'll be happy to talk to him," Reid said.

In the meantime, the Senate has been unable to take up the remaining five appropriations measures left to be approved and sent to a House-Senate conference. Four of those bills have already been completed by the Appropriations Committee and are awaiting floor action.

Daschle, having grown impatient with Republican demands, has scheduled a cloture vote for this afternoon on the foreign operations appropriation, which could serve as the first major test of the GOP's will on the issue.

The House, meanwhile, has completed work on 12 of the 13 spending bills, with the final appropriation bill, on national security and Defense issues, targeted for a floor vote at the end of this week or early next week.

Eight spending measures have passed both chambers, but House and Senate appropriators have approved just one conference report.

Because of the work on conference reports, House appropriators don't believe they have been held up by the Senate delays, according to John Scofield, spokesman for Appropriations Chairman Bill Young (R-Fla.). But if the judicial fight lasts another week or more, House appropriators will be left with nothing to do, and the target date for adjournment will inevitably fall well into next month, he said.

"If it goes on much longer," Scofield warned, "we'll have some problems."

Inhofe: Two Oklahoma Nominees for Federal Bench Could be Confirmed Soon

The Associated Press
Monday, October 15, 2001

Two nominees for the federal bench in Oklahoma could soon be confirmed by the U.S. Senate, according to Sen. Jim Inhofe.

REV_00133560

The Senate Judiciary Committee could act upon the nominations of Claire Eagan and James Payne within days, Inhofe, R-Okla., said. He also said a confirmation vote by the full Senate could follow quickly. Eagan, 51, and Payne, 60, were nominated by President Bush less than three months ago. The brevity of their confirmation process is uncommon considering it takes some nominees more than a year to win confirmation.

Eagan of Tulsa is headed for a slot in the state's Northern judicial district, while Payne of Muskogee will divide his time on the bench among the Northern, Western and Eastern districts. Both currently serve as U.S. magistrates.

During their confirmation hearing, both nominees were asked how to maintain the balance between liberty and security while addressing the threat of terrorism.

Eagan said she trusts Congress to be conscious of the balance between civil liberties and the fear people have of more terrorist attacks.

"I believe the Supreme Court has suggested that there might be an exception when dealing with civil liberties and the different procedural safeguards for those liberties if there is an issue of terrorism," she said. "And I believe any statute will have a presumption of constitutionality."

Payne also said he had confidence in lawmakers' judgments in these trying times.

"The hallmark of this country is our personal freedoms," he said. "I know the Senate and the Congress has a very difficult balancing act to keep us free and keep us secure. I know the role of the court is not to interfere with your process."

Oklahoma has two other vacancies on the federal bench.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Joe Heaton and Stephen P. Friot, both of Oklahoma City, have been nominated to fill those two slots in the Western District.

Foreign Aid Bill Held Up by GOP; Senators Demand Action on Nominees

By Helen Dewar
The Washington Post
Saturday, October 13, 2001

In a resumption of partisan squabbling over judicial nominations, Senate Republicans are holding up action on a $ 15.6 billion foreign aid spending bill as leverage to force Democrats to speed action on President Bush's selections for the federal bench.

Democrats have scheduled a vote late Monday to curtail the delaying tactics, but key Republicans say they will continue stalling on spending bills until the Senate completes action on the roughly 35 nominations that were sent to the Senate before its summer recess and that are still pending.

REV_00133561

The two parties have been feuding over the pace of action on judicial nominations since shortly after Democrats took control of the Senate in early June. Democrats say they are acting as fast as they can -- faster, they say, than Republicans acted in moving many of President Bill Clinton's judicial nominations. Republicans, using different statistics to measure speed, contend that Democrats are dragging their heels and reneging on agreements to expedite action. The sparring subsided a bit after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks on New York and Washington but has resumed with renewed vigor on both sides.

According to Sen. Orrin G. Hatch (Utah), ranking Republican on the Judiciary Committee, there are 108 vacancies on the federal bench, which he said is more than there were when committee Chairman Patrick J. Leahy (D-Vt.) used to complain about judicial vacancies, when the White House was controlled by Democrats and the Senate by Republicans.

Eight judicial nominees have been confirmed, including two who were approved by the Senate late Thursday. Fifty-two other nominations are awaiting action, according to Hatch.

Defending the Democratic record, Leahy said no Bush nominees even had hearings before Democrats took over. Leahy said Democrats "are now ahead of the pace of confirmations for judicial nominees in the first year of the Clinton administration and the pace in the first year of the first Bush administration." He also said the administration had yet to nominate any U.S. marshals and still has to fill 40 U.S. attorney posts.

On Oct. 3, all nine Republicans on the Judiciary Committee wrote Leahy to demand faster action on judges. "In our view, once the anti-terrorism legislation is completed," they said, referring to legislation that passed the Senate on Thursday, "there is no higher priority than filling the vacancies that exist in our federal courts." Because of the terrorist attacks, they added, "the other priority is confirmation of U.S. attorney nominees."

In an interview yesterday, Sen. Jon Kyl (R-Ariz.), one of the signers of the letter, said Republicans may continue holding up spending bills -- except for the bill that funds military operations -- to ensure action on judges. "It's very clear we can do many things at the same time if we want to," he said. "This has a very high priority."

In addition to the foreign operations and defense bills, the Senate has yet to act on three domestic spending measures, including the huge bill for education, health and other social welfare programs.

"Obviously we have to get together and work this out," Kyl said.

Reacting to the GOP tactics on the foreign operations bill, Senate Majority Leader Thomas A. Daschle (D-S.D.) said Republicans have tried to filibuster virtually every bill that has come up in recent weeks. "So I'm not surprised, I'm just disappointed," he added.

REV_00133562

Added David Carle, spokesman for Leahy: "Some Republicans are scared to death that Democrats are going to treat their nominees as badly as they treated Democratic nominees, and they're not. Democrats are being fair."

Nominee Criticized for Club Affiliation; It has Been Accused of Discriminating

By Bill Walsh
The Times-Picayune
Saturday, October 13, 2001

U.S. Rep. Billy Tauzin said Friday that he will urge federal judicial nominee Jay Zainey to drop his membership to Metairie Country Club because questions have been raised about whether the club discriminates against African-Americans.

Tauzin said he expected to make the suggestion "pretty soon" to Zainey, a Metairie lawyer who was nominated Wednesday by President Bush to fill a vacancy on U.S. District Court in New Orleans.

Tauzin, R-Chackbay, said he has no knowledge of the membership practices of the 79-year-old Jefferson Parish club but that questions about the club's policy should be enough to make the candidate rethink his membership, even though a recent FBI check of the club found no discrimination. "The mere perception of a problem, when he is a judicial nominee, is best dealt with forcefully," Tauzin said.

An official from Metairie Country Club said the organization does not discriminate against anyone. According to club rules, potential members must be invited to join, endorsed by two other members and then approved by a membership committee.

General Manager Don Beever would not say whether there are any African-American members among the club's 1,270 families.

Zainey, 50, did not return calls for comment.

In 1990, then-club President Dalton Truax told The Times-Picayune that the country club had no African-American members.

Earlier complaints

The club's membership practices came under scrutiny during a judicial race in September 1998, when a group of civic and church leaders in New Orleans filed a complaint with the state Judicial Commission about club member Judge Niles Hellmers, who was running for re-election to 1st City Court.

The complaint alleged that Hellmers was in violation of the judicial code of ethics, which forbids judges from holding memberships in any organization that arbitrarily excludes members on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin.

The complaint was rendered moot when Hellmers was defeated for re-election a month later by Sonja Spears.

Marie Galatas, a local pastor and one of those who filed the complaint, said Zainey's membership in the club should disqualify him from serving on the bench.

"If he knows there are no black members of that club, he should resign before getting that position," Galatas said. "If he doesn't know, it's time for him to inquire."

FBI finds nothing wrong

The FBI recently looked at the club's membership policies and practices as part of Zainey's background check. The agency concluded there was no discrimination.

Should Zainey remain in the club, he can expect questions about its membership practices when his nomination is scrutinized by the Senate Judiciary Committee. The committee requests that all nominees say whether they belong to any organizations that discriminate "through either formal membership requirements or practical implementation of the membership policies." If so, nominees are asked what they have done to change those policies.

With a backlog of Bush nominees pending before the judiciary panel, it's unclear when Zainey's nomination will be considered

Palm Beach Circuit Judge, Miami Lawyer to get Presidential Nod for Judgeships

By Dan Christensen
Palm Beach Daily Business Review
Friday, October 12, 2001

A Palm Beach circuit judge and a prominent Miami attorney have been chosen by the White House to fill two vacant U.S. District Court judgeships in South Florida, the Daily Business Review has learned.

Judge Kenneth A. Marra, who has declared no party affiliation, and Jose E. Martinez, a Republican, were selected for the lifetime appointments from among six finalists whose names were submitted to President Bush last month by the Florida Federal Nominating Commission.

After FBI background checks are completed in about 45 days, their nominations will be officially announced and their names sent to the U.S. Senate for confirmation.

Marra was tapped for a seat on the federal bench in Fort Lauderdale. Martinez will sit in Miami. Bob Martinez, the former Miami U.S. attorney who chairs the Federal Nominating Commission, said the White House isn't issuing a statement now regarding the nominations and asked him not to discuss the matter publicly. Asked whether that was for security reasons, Martinez said he doesn't know why.

"I don't know what their thinking is," said Martinez. He referred a caller to an assistant White House general counsel who did not return a phone message.

Jose Martinez, through a secretary, declined to comment about his selection.

Martinez, a stalwart Republican who was born in the Dominican Republic, a former federal prosecutor and regional director of the old federal Office for Drug Abuse Law Enforcement, is name partner in the nine-attorney firm Martinez & Gutierrez. He specializes in product liability cases, including tobacco and automotive product liability defense.

Martinez, 60, is also vice chair of the Federal Court Practice Committee, the Florida Bar's liaison to the federal district courts.

"He's well-known, well-liked and has been a very capable trial attorney for many years," said attorney Edward B. Davis, a retired U.S. District chief judge.

Marra, who currently serves on Palm Beach's criminal bench, also declined to comment on being selected.

Marra is a Stetson law school graduate who was appointed to his seat in 1996 by Gov. Lawton Chiles.

Early in his career, the 50-year-old jurist worked as a civil trial attorney for the Department of Justice. He was also a partner and commercial attorney in Palm Beach with the firm of Nason Gildan Yeager Gerson & White. The firm is now known as Nason Yeager Gerson White & Lioce.

More than 30 lawyers applied for the two judgeships when they were announced earlier this year. The two other finalists for the Miami judgeship were Miami federal magistrate Ted Bandstra and Miami-Dade Circuit Judge Jerald Bagley. The two other finalists for the Fort Lauderdale seat were Fort Lauderdale federal magistrate Barry S. Seltzer and Broward Circuit Judge James I. Cohn.

All were interviewed by Sens. Bob Graham and Bill Nelson and officials from the White House and the Justice Department.

"I found the process to be extremely fair," said finalist Cohn. "I am disappointed, but not deterred."

With choices for the two judgeships made, the only major federal post in South Florida with finalists under consideration by the president is that of the U.S. attorney. The contenders are incumbent Guy Lewis, White & Case Republican insider Marcos Jimenez and Marcia Cooke, a former federal prosecutor and chief inspector general to Gov. Jeb Bush.

Mills Confirmed for North Mississippi Federal Judgeship

By Emily Wagster
The Associated Press
Friday, October 12, 2001

The U.S. Senate voted 98-0 Thursday to confirm Mike Mills of Fulton for a federal judgeship in north Mississippi.

The vote came after Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., said she wouldn't delay a vote on his nomination. She had raised concerns about an abortion case dissent in which Mills participated. "I'm very excited and very grateful," Mills, 45, said shortly after learning of his confirmation.

Mills has been on the Supreme Court since 1995 and said he expects to remain on it until the end of the month. After that, he'll be based in U.S. District Court in Oxford. He'll also hear cases in Aberdeen and Greenville.

"The approval of Justice Mills by the Senate will give our state the benefit of a very well qualified new federal judge," said Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss. "He will be a fine addition to the federal bench in Mississippi."

Mills will replace U.S. District Judge Neal Biggers Jr. of Oxford, who has taken senior status. Mills served 12 years in the Mississippi House of Representatives before then-Gov. Kirk Fordice tapped him to fill a Supreme Court vacancy. Mills won a full term in 1996.

Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss., who also promoted Mills' nomination to the federal judgeship, said he hoped Feinstein's questions were answered.

"Mike Mills is highly qualified by education, by experience and by demeanor," Lott said Thursday.

Feinstein had expressed concern over Mills' ruling in a case involving a woman accused of trespassing at an abortion clinic in Jackson.

Dr. Beverly McMillan said the trespassing was justified because she had information about dangerous and illegal procedures at the clinic. A Hinds County judge did not allow the testimony and McMillan was convicted on the trespassing charge.

In a 5-4 decision by the Supreme Court, Mills joined a dissent that said every defendant had a right to present his or her theory of a case.

National abortion rights groups had brought his vote to the attention of senators.

REV_00133566

Feinstein's spokesman, Howard Gantman, said Wednesday that Feinstein had reviewed the record and wouldn't try to block Mills' confirmation.

Gov. Ronnie Musgrove will appoint a replacement for Mills. Musgrove will fill another vacancy when Justice Fred L. Banks of leaves the Supreme Court at the end of October to go into private law practice.

It may make sense. The reaction of the leg team when we raised it last time was that it would be a non-starter on the Hill, but maybe if we describe it as something akin to workers comp -- no fault coverage for certain types of injuries-- it wouldn't seem as controversial. How would the pool be funded?

Senate Faces Showdown on Judges

By Paul Kane
Roll Call

REV_00133573

Monday, October 15, 2001
With Democrats and Republicans still clashing over the pace of judicial nominations, the appropriations process is expected to remain in slow motion this week in the Senate.

For now, appropriators say the Senate gridlock is not hampering efforts to meet the end-of-the-month target for wrapping up the annual spending bills. House Members and Senators on the spending committees have continued to work on a handful of conference reports that could be concluded this week.

But another week or more of foot-dragging on appropriations measures in the Senate could seriously jeopardize Congress' ability to conclude action on spending bills this month. Senate GOP leaders, however, say ensuring President Bush's judicial nominees get confirmed to the federal bench is just as important a goal as moving appropriations.

"It's still a major problem," Senate Minority Leader Trent Lott (R-Miss.) said at the end of last week. Less than two weeks ago, Lott initiated the strategy of objecting to any attempt by Democrats to bring up an appropriations bill.

Asked if he expected any appropriations measures to move forward this week, Lott replied, "Not right now. No, sir."

Senate Majority Leader Thomas Daschle (D-S.D.) has not blinked, and instead Friday linked the fate of one of the Republicans' key legislative initiatives - the energy bill - to their cooperation on the appropriations bills.

"They say they want to bring up energy, and yet they filibuster every bill that we need to take up to get to a point where we can bring up energy," Daschle said, adding that he will first finish any emergency legislation related to Sept. 11 events and appropriations. "As soon as we get that essential work done, I'm more than willing to look at energy and agriculture - those two bills in particular."

Since adopting the more aggressive approach toward judicial nominees and the spending process, Senate Republicans have only grown increasingly frustrated with Democrats, particularly Judiciary
Chairman Patrick Leahy (Vt.).

On Friday the nine Judiciary Republicans sent Leahy a letter attacking his decision last month to change the questionnaire that all nominees coming before the committee must answer. For the first time, nominees will have to answer questions in the publicly released portion of the questionnaire pertaining to any arrests, charges or convictions of the past 20 years. In the confidential section, which is available to all committee members and their staffs, nominees will now have to spell out past drug use.

Noting that Leahy did not push for these changes during the Clinton administration, the GOP Senators suggested that he was "motivated to implement these changes for political purposes," and they argue that publicizing these issues would have a chilling effect on public service.

"The cumulative effect of your changes is that qualified potential nominees may be deterred from pursuing a career in public service by the more complex and intrusive nature of the questionnaire," the
Senators wrote.

Leahy, however, contends that his new questionnaire simplifies the process and that his questions are almost identical to those being publicly asked of nominees by other committees, particularly Governmental Affairs, which had its survey of nominees serve as a model for Judiciary.

Leahy's sixth hearing on judicial nominees came this month. In 1989 and in 1993, similar first years of new administrations, the committee didn't hold its fifth judicial nomination hearing until November.

"The committee and the Senate should be commended, not criticized,"Leahy said in a floor speech Thursday, noting that Judiciary has focused recently on anti-terrorism legislation as well. "In spite of unfair and unfounded criticism, I have continued to proceed with additional hearings and press onward as best I can."

Lott, however, said rank-and-file Republicans are still furious with Leahy, and noted that recent moves to slow the appropriations process came after the GOP Conference had previously urged him to block the spending bills to gain leverage on judicial nominees - a tactic he initially resisted but one he has since agreed upon.

"I've already pushed them back twice," he said of his fellow Republicans.

The anger with Leahy has turned somewhat personal in nature. A growing number of GOP Senators complain that the only way they can get him to move judges from their home states is if they personally ask the chairman to hold a hearing and give them a committee vote, something they say is akin to "begging."

GOP committee members contend that this method leaves open the question of favoritism. "To avoid concerns about favoritism, we suggest that you move judicial nominees in roughly the order that they were nominated," the nine Republicans wrote in an Oct. 3 letter to Leahy.

In his floor speech, Leahy acknowledged that he appreciated the "courtesy" shown by some GOPSenators who personally approached him and let him know how important certain nominees were to their judicial districts, pleas that he has answered. "Others will carp and criticize no matter what we are able to achieve," he said.

Republicans said the impasse over judges and appropriations will end only after Daschle and Leahy give them specifics of when and how often the nominees will be confirmed.

"We're going to have to have some assurances that we're going to get some judges up [on the floor]," said Minority Whip Don Nickles (R-Okla.), who has been negotiating with his Democratic counterpart, Majority Whip Harry Reid (Nev.).

Reid, however, said he is still waiting to hear from Nickles about which nominees Republicans feel should be moved first and fastest and that the delay will only hold up the problem's resolution.

"Senator Nickles said he'd bring me a list. I'll be happy to talk to him," Reid said.

In the meantime, the Senate has been unable to take up the remaining five appropriations measures left to be approved and sent to a House-Senate conference. Four of those bills have already been completed by the Appropriations Committee and are awaiting floor action.

Daschle, having grown impatient with Republican demands, has scheduled a cloture vote for this afternoon on the foreign operations appropriation, which could serve as the first major test of the GOP's will on the issue.

The House, meanwhile, has completed work on 12 of the 13 spending bills, with the final appropriation bill, on national security and Defense issues, targeted for a floor vote at the end of this week or early next week.

Eight spending measures have passed both chambers, but House and Senate appropriators have approved just one conference report.

Because of the work on conference reports, House appropriators don't believe they have been held up by the Senate delays, according to John Scofield, spokesman for Appropriations Chairman Bill Young (R-Fla.). But if the judicial fight lasts another week or more, House appropriators will be left with nothing to do, and the target date for adjournment will inevitably fall well into next month, he said.

"If it goes on much longer," Scofield warned, "we'll have some problems."

Inhofe: Two Oklahoma Nominees for Federal Bench Could be Confirmed Soon

The Associated Press
Monday, October 15, 2001

Two nominees for the federal bench in Oklahoma could soon be confirmed by the U.S. Senate, according to Sen. Jim Inhofe.

REV_00133576

The Senate Judiciary Committee could act upon the nominations of Claire Eagan and James Payne within days, Inhofe, R-Okla., said. He also said a confirmation vote by the full Senate could follow quickly. Eagan, 51, and Payne, 60, were nominated by President Bush less than three months ago. The brevity of their confirmation process is uncommon considering it takes some nominees more than a year to win confirmation.

Eagan of Tulsa is headed for a slot in the state's Northern judicial district, while Payne of Muskogee will divide his time on the bench among the Northern, Western and Eastern districts. Both currently serve as U.S. magistrates.

During their confirmation hearing, both nominees were asked how to maintain the balance between liberty and security while addressing the threat of terrorism.

Eagan said she trusts Congress to be conscious of the balance between civil liberties and the fear people have of more terrorist attacks.

"I believe the Supreme Court has suggested that there might be an exception when dealing with civil liberties and the different procedural safeguards for those liberties if there is an issue of terrorism," she said. "And I believe any statute will have a presumption of constitutionality."

Payne also said he had confidence in lawmakers' judgments in these trying times.

"The hallmark of this country is our personal freedoms," he said. "I know the Senate and the Congress has a very difficult balancing act to keep us free and keep us secure. I know the role of the court is not to interfere with your process."

Oklahoma has two other vacancies on the federal bench.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Joe Heaton and Stephen P. Friot, both of Oklahoma City, have been nominated to fill those two slots in the Western District.

Foreign Aid Bill Held Up by GOP; Senators Demand Action on Nominees

By Helen Dewar
The Washington Post
Saturday, October 13, 2001

In a resumption of partisan squabbling over judicial nominations, Senate Republicans are holding up action on a $ 15.6 billion foreign aid spending bill as leverage to force Democrats to speed action on President Bush's selections for the federal bench.

Democrats have scheduled a vote late Monday to curtail the delaying tactics, but key Republicans say they will continue stalling on spending bills until the Senate completes action on the roughly 35 nominations that were sent to the Senate before its summer recess and that are still pending.

REV_00133577

The two parties have been feuding over the pace of action on judicial nominations since shortly after Democrats took control of the Senate in early June. Democrats say they are acting as fast as they can -- faster, they say, than Republicans acted in moving many of President Bill Clinton's judicial nominations. Republicans, using different statistics to measure speed, contend that Democrats are dragging their heels and reneging on agreements to expedite action. The sparring subsided a bit after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks on New York and Washington but has resumed with renewed vigor on both sides.

According to Sen. Orrin G. Hatch (Utah), ranking Republican on the Judiciary Committee, there are 108 vacancies on the federal bench, which he said is more than there were when committee Chairman Patrick J. Leahy (D-Vt.) used to complain about judicial vacancies, when the White House was controlled by Democrats and the Senate by Republicans.

Eight judicial nominees have been confirmed, including two who were approved by the Senate late Thursday. Fifty-two other nominations are awaiting action, according to Hatch.

Defending the Democratic record, Leahy said no Bush nominees even had hearings before Democrats took over. Leahy said Democrats "are now ahead of the pace of confirmations for judicial nominees in the first year of the Clinton administration and the pace in the first year of the first Bush administration." He also said the administration had yet to nominate any U.S. marshals and still has to fill 40 U.S. attorney posts.

On Oct. 3, all nine Republicans on the Judiciary Committee wrote Leahy to demand faster action on judges. "In our view, once the anti-terrorism legislation is completed," they said, referring to legislation that passed the Senate on Thursday, "there is no higher priority than filling the vacancies that exist in our federal courts." Because of the terrorist attacks, they added, "the other priority is confirmation of U.S. attorney nominees."

In an interview yesterday, Sen. Jon Kyl (R-Ariz.), one of the signers of the letter, said Republicans may continue holding up spending bills -- except for the bill that funds military operations -- to ensure action on judges. "It's very clear we can do many things at the same time if we want to," he said. "This has a very high priority."

In addition to the foreign operations and defense bills, the Senate has yet to act on three domestic spending measures, including the huge bill for education, health and other social welfare programs.

"Obviously we have to get together and work this out," Kyl said.

Reacting to the GOP tactics on the foreign operations bill, Senate Majority Leader Thomas A. Daschle (D-S.D.) said Republicans have tried to filibuster virtually every bill that has come up in recent weeks. "So I'm not surprised, I'm just disappointed," he added.

REV_00133578

Added David Carle, spokesman for Leahy: "Some Republicans are scared to death that Democrats are going to treat their nominees as badly as they treated Democratic nominees, and they're not. Democrats are being fair."

Nominee Criticized for Club Affiliation; It has Been Accused of Discriminating

By Bill Walsh
The Times-Picayune
Saturday, October 13, 2001

U.S. Rep. Billy Tauzin said Friday that he will urge federal judicial nominee Jay Zainey to drop his membership to Metairie Country Club because questions have been raised about whether the club discriminates against African-Americans.

Tauzin said he expected to make the suggestion "pretty soon" to Zainey, a Metairie lawyer who was nominated Wednesday by President Bush to fill a vacancy on U.S. District Court in New Orleans.

Tauzin, R-Chackbay, said he has no knowledge of the membership practices of the 79-year-old Jefferson Parish club but that questions about the club's policy should be enough to make the candidate rethink his membership, even though a recent FBI check of the club found no discrimination. "The mere perception of a problem, when he is a judicial nominee, is best dealt with forcefully," Tauzin said.

An official from Metairie Country Club said the organization does not discriminate against anyone. According to club rules, potential members must be invited to join, endorsed by two other members and then approved by a membership committee.

General Manager Don Beever would not say whether there are any African-American members among the club's 1,270 families.

Zainey, 50, did not return calls for comment.

In 1990, then-club President Dalton Truax told The Times-Picayune that the country club had no African-American members.

Earlier complaints

The club's membership practices came under scrutiny during a judicial race in September 1998, when a group of civic and church leaders in New Orleans filed a complaint with the state Judicial Commission about club member Judge Niles Hellmers, who was running for re-election to 1st City Court.

The complaint alleged that Hellmers was in violation of the judicial code of ethics, which forbids judges from holding memberships in any organization that arbitrarily excludes members on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin.

The complaint was rendered moot when Hellmers was defeated for re-election a month later by Sonja Spears.

Marie Galatas, a local pastor and one of those who filed the complaint, said Zainey's membership in the club should disqualify him from serving on the bench.

"If he knows there are no black members of that club, he should resign before getting that position," Galatas said. "If he doesn't know, it's time for him to inquire."

FBI finds nothing wrong

The FBI recently looked at the club's membership policies and practices as part of Zainey's background check. The agency concluded there was no discrimination.

Should Zainey remain in the club, he can expect questions about its membership practices when his nomination is scrutinized by the Senate Judiciary Committee. The committee requests that all nominees say whether they belong to any organizations that discriminate "through either formal membership requirements or practical implementation of the membership policies." If so, nominees are asked what they have done to change those policies.

With a backlog of Bush nominees pending before the judiciary panel, it's unclear when Zainey's nomination will be considered

Palm Beach Circuit Judge, Miami Lawyer to get Presidential Nod for Judgeships

By Dan Christensen
Palm Beach Daily Business Review
Friday, October 12, 2001

A Palm Beach circuit judge and a prominent Miami attorney have been chosen by the White House to fill two vacant U.S. District Court judgeships in South Florida, the Daily Business Review has learned.

Judge Kenneth A. Marra, who has declared no party affiliation, and Jose E. Martinez, a Republican, were selected for the lifetime appointments from among six finalists whose names were submitted to President Bush last month by the Florida Federal Nominating Commission.

After FBI background checks are completed in about 45 days, their nominations will be officially announced and their names sent to the U.S. Senate for confirmation.

Marra was tapped for a seat on the federal bench in Fort Lauderdale. Martinez will sit in Miami. Bob Martinez, the former Miami U.S. attorney who chairs the Federal Nominating Commission, said the White House isn't issuing a statement now regarding the nominations and asked him not to discuss the matter publicly. Asked whether that was for security reasons, Martinez said he doesn't know why.

"I don't know what their thinking is," said Martinez. He referred a caller to an assistant White House general counsel who did not return a phone message.

Jose Martinez, through a secretary, declined to comment about his selection.

Martinez, a stalwart Republican who was born in the Dominican Republic, a former federal prosecutor and regional director of the old federal Office for Drug Abuse Law Enforcement, is name partner in the nine-attorney firm Martinez & Gutierrez. He specializes in product liability cases, including tobacco and automotive product liability defense.

Martinez, 60, is also vice chair of the Federal Court Practice Committee, the Florida Bar's liaison to the federal district courts.

"He's well-known, well-liked and has been a very capable trial attorney for many years," said attorney Edward B. Davis, a retired U.S. District chief judge.

Marra, who currently serves on Palm Beach's criminal bench, also declined to comment on being selected.

Marra is a Stetson law school graduate who was appointed to his seat in 1996 by Gov. Lawton Chiles.

Early in his career, the 50-year-old jurist worked as a civil trial attorney for the Department of Justice. He was also a partner and commercial attorney in Palm Beach with the firm of Nason Gildan Yeager Gerson & White. The firm is now known as Nason Yeager Gerson White & Lioce.

More than 30 lawyers applied for the two judgeships when they were announced earlier this year. The two other finalists for the Miami judgeship were Miami federal magistrate Ted Bandstra and Miami-Dade Circuit Judge Jerald Bagley. The two other finalists for the Fort Lauderdale seat were Fort Lauderdale federal magistrate Barry S. Seltzer and Broward Circuit Judge James I. Cohn.

All were interviewed by Sens. Bob Graham and Bill Nelson and officials from the White House and the Justice Department.

"I found the process to be extremely fair," said finalist Cohn. "I am disappointed, but not deterred."

With choices for the two judgeships made, the only major federal post in South Florida with finalists under consideration by the president is that of the U.S. attorney. The contenders are incumbent Guy Lewis, White & Case Republican insider Marcos Jimenez and Marcia Cooke, a former federal prosecutor and chief inspector general to Gov. Jeb Bush.

Mills Confirmed for North Mississippi Federal Judgeship

By Emily Wagster
The Associated Press
Friday, October 12, 2001

The U.S. Senate voted 98-0 Thursday to confirm Mike Mills of Fulton for a federal judgeship in north Mississippi.

The vote came after Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., said she wouldn't delay a vote on his nomination. She had raised concerns about an abortion case dissent in which Mills participated. "I'm very excited and very grateful," Mills, 45, said shortly after learning of his confirmation.

Mills has been on the Supreme Court since 1995 and said he expects to remain on it until the end of the month. After that, he'll be based in U.S. District Court in Oxford. He'll also hear cases in Aberdeen and Greenville.

"The approval of Justice Mills by the Senate will give our state the benefit of a very well qualified new federal judge," said Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss. "He will be a fine addition to the federal bench in Mississippi."

Mills will replace U.S. District Judge Neal Biggers Jr. of Oxford, who has taken senior status. Mills served 12 years in the Mississippi House of Representatives before then-Gov. Kirk Fordice tapped him to fill a Supreme Court vacancy. Mills won a full term in 1996.

Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss., who also promoted Mills' nomination to the federal judgeship, said he hoped Feinstein's questions were answered.

"Mike Mills is highly qualified by education, by experience and by demeanor," Lott said Thursday.

Feinstein had expressed concern over Mills' ruling in a case involving a woman accused of trespassing at an abortion clinic in Jackson.

Dr. Beverly McMillan said the trespassing was justified because she had information about dangerous and illegal procedures at the clinic. A Hinds County judge did not allow the testimony and McMillan was convicted on the trespassing charge.

In a 5-4 decision by the Supreme Court, Mills joined a dissent that said every defendant had a right to present his or her theory of a case.

National abortion rights groups had brought his vote to the attention of senators.

REV_00133582

Feinstein's spokesman, Howard Gantman, said Wednesday that Feinstein had reviewed the record and wouldn't try to block Mills' confirmation.

Gov. Ronnie Musgrove will appoint a replacement for Mills. Musgrove will fill another vacancy when Justice Fred L. Banks of leaves the Supreme Court at the end of October to go into private law practice.

The Supreme Court opened its new Term on Monday. The most stable Court in history -- the same Justices have been serving since the opening of the 1994 Term -- issued its end-of-summer orders and began its long march toward a rush of decisions concluding with its anticipated June 2002 adjournment. Two cases were argued, and a host of lawyers from around the country were admitted to practice in the nation's highest court. But the ostensibly routine proceedings were not the same. With no recent precedent from which to draw, Chief Justice Rehnquist opened the Court's new session with a stirring tribute to the nation's courage and greatness. The great tide of recent events had not simply passed the Justices by. To the contrary, the Chief made specific reference to Solicitor General Ted Olson and the loss of his wife, Barbara. The Court family had been directly touched.

Not on the docket, but looming large in the background, were legal issues of high moment stemming from the September 11 attacks. Proposed legislation aimed at re-arming law enforcement in the struggle against terrorism was under debate across the oak-dotted lawn on Capitol Hill. Justice O'Connor, the week before, made what was seen by the press as an indirect reference to the Court's role in that unfolding debate -- and that of the judiciary more generally -- in remarks at New York University's School of Law. She spoke strongly about the need, even in crisis, "to preserve the rule of law." Part of her message was universal: The need to persuade "a sometimes hostile world that our dream of a society that conforms to the rule of law is a dream we all should share." But her point was also directed to the homeland, as if aimed at the congressional debate on the anti-terrorist legislation. "We wish it were not necessary; we wish we could set the clock back. But to preserve liberty, we must preserve the rule of law."

The Court is, of course, ordinarily the last word on these and other issues of moment, as we saw in the epic (and unexpected) high-stakes litigation last autumn culminating in Bush v. Gore. Toqueville wisely observed early in our history that, in this country, great issues of policy almost invariably become questions of law. The Court's landmark decision in the Steel Seizure case during the Korean Conflict stands as a jolting reminder that, even in times of war, the Court will strike down actions by the President if they are incompatible with constitutional or statutory commands. And so the question arises, whether the proposals submitted by the Administration would pass muster under the scrutiny of a closely-divided Court that frequently resolves some of the thorniest legal issues by a razor-thin 5-4 margin.

My early-on prediction is that the proposals, if enacted, would fare very well indeed when and if called to run the Supreme Court gauntlet. Much of the Administration's package is mild and non-controversial. The lion's share of the proposals will therefore will not spawn difficult or novel legal questions. One reason is that a unifying theme of the proposals is to update and modernize aging provisions of law, ensuring that the law enforcement arsenal employed in anti-terrorism investigations is as modern and serviceable as that used in, say, drug investigations. A number of these laws were enacted in a quieter era of rotary telephones. Terrorists and their support rings are thoroughly modern, using the Internet, e-mail and multiple cellular phones. The proposed law would apply the same legal standards that govern wiretaps on telephones to e-mail and the like. The idea is technological neutrality. Law enforcement's ability to detect the most serious and unsettling of crimes should not depend on the technology used by the would-be assailants and their comrades. The point is that there is no change in the legal standards that govern when or under what circumstances federal law enforcement could seek such information. That means the Supreme Court will choose to remain on the sidelines -- no one is purporting to change the law, as happened when Congress purported to overrule the Miranda decision only to find the Rehnquist Court rallying to its defense.

Improvements are also sought to ease the administrative burdens -- and delays -- attendant to getting approvals from the Attorney General and a special court created by Congress to review applications for surveillance in the United States directed at the agents of foreign powers. So too, parochial limitations of search warrants and surveillance orders would be jettisoned. Federal prosecutors, FBI agents and others would not have to seek, pointlessly, re-authorization in multiple judicial districts (93 in all) across the country. These too present no thorny legal question likely to interest the Justices. No standards are being changed. Legal shifts that fall within the category of streamlining, within the context of settled and accepted legal and constitutional principles, likewise are doubtful candidates for Supreme Court review. And stepped-up penalties, for example stronger punishments for possession of biological weapons, are classic policy questions that involve judgment calls by Congress and the President. No place for Supreme Court intervention there.

The hottest issue under debate has been the proposal concerning detention, indefinitely, of aliens. That, some suggest, runs afoul of basic constitutional liberties, including recent decisions by the Supreme Court. Despite the fervor, there is far less here than meets the eye. There is no authorization of indefinite detention of suspected terrorists, as has been widely assumed. Rather, the proposal is more targeted. It authorizes detention of suspected terrorists who are otherwise subject to criminal or deportation proceedings. That is the equivalent of denying release pending bail. Although unusual in a free society, there are various circumstances under existing law when indefinite detention is permitted. And the Supreme Court has so ruled. Individuals who are dangers to the community may be held without bond as the judicial or administrative process runs its course.

Part of the misunderstanding arises from the Supreme Court's controversial decisions last June in what appear to be very similar cases. But the appearance is deceptive, and the similarity ends on closer examination. In two consolidated cases, the Court held by a 5-4 margin that the Attorney General could not hold indefinitely in confinement individuals who were subject to deportation proceedings once a 90-day period (provided by Congress for bringing about the individual's exit to another country) had expired. The concern was a possible constitutional violation that might be created by indefinitely detaining an alien who had been ordered deported but who had nowhere to go (since in both cases no country was willing to welcome the individual back home). Over separate dissenting opinions by Justice Scalia and Justice Kennedy, with Chief Justice Rehnquist and Justice Thomas in agreement, the Court created an implied term in the deportation statute in question to save the provision from the possible constitutional violation created by indefinite detention.

Not only were the cases decided by a narrow 5-4 margin, Justice Breyer, in writing for the majority, took pains, presciently as it turned out, to distinguish the situation before the Court from one involving terrorism. Showing their concern for the prerogatives of the Executive Branch when confronted with a genuine danger, the five Justices were emphatic in limiting the scope of their judgment. "Neither do we consider terrorism or other special circumstances where special arguments might be made for forms of preventive detention and for heightened deference to the judgments of the political branches with respect to matters of national security."

The Court, in short, has already done the relevant legal groundwork. It has laid down the legal standards to govern the debate. It would appear that the Administration has carefully kept a lawyerly eye on the Court's precedent in crafting the tools the President and the Attorney General want and need in facing the post-September 11 world.

DRAFT -- NOT FOR RELEASE

October 16, 2001
(House)

H.R. 3004 - The Financial Anti-Terrorism Act of 2001
(Rep. Oxley (R) Ohio and 24 cosponsors)

The Administration supports House passage of H.R. 3004 and welcomes the anti-money laundering proposals that are included in this bill. In particular, the Administration welcomes the incorporation of due process into the regulations, orders, actions, and definitions that would be established under this legislation. In addition, the Administration supports the inclusion of relevant Administration representatives and banking regulators in decision-making that impacts the financial services industry and its conduct around the world.

The Administration does have some concerns with H.R. 3004. The Administration believes that the jurisdictional factors provided in Section 301 of the bill for determining whether a jurisdiction, financial institution, or class of transactions is "of primary money laundering concern" may not constitute definitive proof of money laundering. In that regard, the Administration especially appreciates the elimination in the House bill of references to tax havens and lower tax rates as possible indications of money laundering concern. In addition, the Administration expects that a small but financially efficient economy would not find itself targeted under this bill on the grounds of these jurisdictional factors alone.

Despite these concerns, the Administration applauds the overall efforts reflected by this legislation to equip enforcement officials with the new anti-money laundering tools needed to successfully conduct the war on terrorism. The Administration appreciates the opportunity to work with the Financial Services Committee on this legislation and looks forward to continuing to work with Congress as these proposals move through the legislative process.

(Do Not Distribute Outside Executive Office of the President)

This Statement of Administration Policy was developed by the Legislative Reference Division (Rodgers) in consultation with the Departments of Justice (Jones), State (Harrison), the Treasury (Leavy), OSTP (Wilson), CEA (Furchotgott-Roth), NEC (Malmgren), OVP (Addington, Burks), and OMB/HTF (Hire).

The following did not respond to our request for views: CIA and NSC

OMB/LA Clearance: _____.

We understand that a manager's amendment to H.R. 3004 is under development, for consideration as early as this evening under suspension of the rules, that makes significant changes to the introduced version of the bill and the manager's amendment ordered reported by the House Financial Services Committee on October 11, 2001. However the text of the new manager's amendment was not available when the description of the bill below was prepared.

Administration Position to Date

The Administration has not taken a position on H.R. 3004.

Summary of H.R. 3004

The description below is based on the introduced version of H.R. 3004.

Title I - Strengthening Law Enforcement

Title I of H.R. 3004 would enhance the ability of law enforcement agencies to identify the financial infrastructure of terrorist and other criminal organizations, by requiring interagency coordination and information exchange.

Specifically Title I of H.R. 3004 would:

abmake it a Federal crime, punishable by up to 5 years in prison, for anyone to knowingly conceal more than $10,000 in currency or other monetary instruments on his person or in any conveyance, article of luggage, merchandise or other container, and to transport or attempt to transport that currency across the border with the intent to avoid the requirement that such currency be declared to Customs inspectors;

abmake it an offense to transport more than $10,000 in criminal proceeds in interstate commerce, if the courier knows the money came from an illegal source or that it was intended to be used for an unlawful purpose;
abprovide that the government need not establish that the defendant was familiar with the Federal statute making the operation of an unlicenced money remitter a criminal offense;

abgive district courts "long-arm" jurisdiction over a foreign bank that commits a money laundering offense in the United States, and authorizes the restraint of assets found in the United States that may be used to satisfy a civil judgment against such a bank;

abexpand the number of foreign offenses that are predicated for money laundering to include fraud, corruption, smuggling and other offenses, including crimes of violence perpetrated by terrorists;

abadd "material support for terrorism" to the list of predicate offenses that can give rise to a money laundering prosecution;

abprovide for the inadmissibility of any individual seeking entry to the U.S. who a consular officer has reason to believe has engaged in certain money laundering offenses, or any criminal activity in a foreign country that would constitute such an offense if committed in the U.S., as well as the spouse, son or daughter of such persons under certain circumstances;

abauthorize the seizure of laundered funds from correspondent accounts (accounts of foreign banks maintained in the U.S.);

abauthorize the U.S. Customs Service to conduct limited warrant-less searches of outbound international mail when there is a reasonable suspicion that the mail contains bulk cash or other illegal contraband. The bill would extend authority to outbound international mail sent via the U.S. Postal Service. The bill also includes a provision that would prohibit U.S. Customs Service inspectors from reading, copying, or seizing any correspondence without a search warrant or the written consent of the sender;

abmake it a Federal crime, punishable by up to 5 years in prison, to knowingly falsify or conceal a customers true identity in a transaction with a financial institution (including a bank, securities firm, or insurance company);

abrequire the Secretary of the Treasury to utilize already existing statutory authority to prescribe regulations requiring financial institutions to verify the identity of all persons who open and maintain accounts, and to keep records of the information used to verify such identification;

Title II - Public-Private Cooperation

This title would encourage cooperation and information exchange between the government and the financial services sector, to ensure that suspicious financial activities that may be related to terrorism are identified and investigated.
Specifically, Title II of H.R. 3004 would require the Secretary of the Treasury to:

abestablish a secure website dedicated to receiving electronic filings of Suspicious Activity Reports by financial institutions and provide financial institutions with alerts and other information regarding suspicious activity that warrants enhanced scrutiny.

abdisseminate quarterly reports to the financial services industry identifying and analyzing patterns of suspicious financial activity disclosed by the reports filed by the industry pursuant to the Bank Secrecy Act.

abpublish by no later than December 31, 2001, a proposed regulation requiring securities broker-dealers to file Suspicious Activity Reports.

Title II of H.R. 3004 would also:

abclarify the Bank Secrecy Act's "safe harbor" provision, which protects financial institutions that disclose possible violations of law or regulation from civil liability for reporting their suspicions and for not alerting those identified in the reports.

abpermit a bank, upon request by another bank, to share information in a written employment reference concerning the possible involvement of a current or former officer or employee in potentially unlawful activity without fear of civil liability for sharing the information.

Title III - Combating International Money Laundering.

Title III of H.R. 3004 would address money laundering associated with off-shore secrecy havens and other countries that generally do not cooperate with U.S. law enforcement efforts to track terrorist assets and the proceeds of other criminal activity.

H.R. 3004 would give the Secretary of the Treasury discretionary authority to impose one or more of five special measures against foreign jurisdictions, financial institutions operating outside the United States, and international transactions that are determined to be of primary money laundering concern. Those measures include: (1) additional record keeping and reporting requirements; (2) identification of beneficial ownership of accounts held by foreign persons; (3) identification of persons permitted to use a payable-through account with an institution outside the U.S.; (4) identification of persons permitted to use a correspondent account with an institution outside the U.S.; and (5) prohibition of, or imposition of conditions on, correspondent or payable-through accounts with institutions outside the U.S.

The bill would require the Secretary to consult with the Secretary of State and the Attorney General to determine whether a foreign jurisdiction is of "primary money laundering concern," by taking into consideration: (1) whether a jurisdiction offers bank secrecy and special tax advantages;

(2) the quality of its bank supervision and anti-money laundering laws;
(3) the volume of transactions relative to the size of its economy; and
(4) the experience of U.S. law enforcement officials in receiving cooperation from the jurisdiction.

H.R. 3004 would prohibit a gambling business from accepting bank instruments in connection with unlawful Internet gambling. Covered instruments include credit cards, electronic fund transfers, and checks.

H.R. 3004 would define the term "bets or wagers" as the staking or risking by any person of something of value upon the outcome of a contest of others, a sporting event, or a game predominantly subject to chance with the agreement that the winner will receive something of greater value than the amount staked or risked. The bill would clarify that bets or wagers do not include a bona fide business transaction governed by the securities laws; a transaction subject to the Commodity Exchange Act; an over-the-counter derivative instrument; a contract of indemnity or guarantee; a contract for life, health, or accident insurance; a deposit with a depository institution; or certain participation in a simulation sports game or education game. The bill would also clarify that businesses of betting or wagering do not generally include any financial intermediary (creditor, credit card issuer, insured depository institution, transmitter of an electric fund transfer, money transmitting business, or network used to effect a credit transaction, electronic fund transfer, stored value product transaction, or money transmitting service, or any participant in such network).

H.R. 3004 would authorize civil penalties, including a preliminary injunction or injunction, against any person to prevent or restrain a violation of this section, including expedited proceedings in exigent circumstances, to be brought by the U.S. Attorney General, or the attorney general of a State or other appropriate State official. The bill would also clarify that the bill is not intended to alter, supercede, or otherwise affect the application of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act.

H.R. 3004 would authorize criminal penalties, including fines or imprisonment for not more than five years, or both. The bill would also authorize a permanent injunction against a person convicted under this subsection, enjoining such person from placing, receiving, or otherwise making bets or wagers or sending, receiving, or inviting information assisting in the placing of bets or wagers.

H.R. 3004 would provide that the "safe harbor provided" to a financial intermediary (creditor, credit card issuer, financial institution, operator of a terminal at which an electronic fund transfer may be initiated, money transmitting business, or national, regional, or local network) does not apply to a financial intermediary that operates, manages, supervises, or directs an Internet website at which unlawful bets or wagers are or may be placed, received, or otherwise made; or is owned or controlled by any person who operates, manages, supervises, or directs such an Internet website.

H.R. 3004 would authorize the appropriate Federal banking agency to prohibit an insured depository institution from extending credit, or facilitating an extension of credit, electronic fund transfer, or money transmitting service, or from paying, transferring, or collecting on any check, draft, or other instrument drawn on any depository institution, where the institution has actual knowledge that a person is violating this section in connection with such activities. The bill would provide that a financial intermediary is not held liable for a violation of this act solely based on the unknowing and unintentional involvement of the intermediary through the use of the facilities of such intermediary in an unlawful Internet gambling transaction, unless the intermediary acted as an agent of a gambling business and had: (1) actual knowledge that the specific transaction is an unlawful Internet gambling transaction; and (2) the intent to engage in the business of submitting into the payment system Internet gambling transactions prohibited by this section.

H.R. 3004 would provide that, in deliberations between the U.S. Government and any other country on money laundering, corruption, and crime issues, the U.S. Government should encourage cooperation by foreign governments in identifying whether Internet gambling operations are being used for money laundering, corruption, or other crimes, advance policies that promote the cooperation by foreign governments in the enforcement of this Act, and encourage the Financial Action Task Force on Money Laundering to study the extent to which Internet gambling operations are being used for money laundering.

Title IV - Currency Protection

Title IV of H.R. 3004 would make it a criminal offense to possess an electronic image of an obligation or security document of the United States with intent to defraud, also increasing maximum sentences for a series of counterfeiting offenses. This title would also conform the legal prohibition on counterfeiting foreign security documents or obligations within the U.S. to that of counterfeiting U.S. security document or obligations.

This title would also permit the Secretary of the Treasury to authorize production of currency, stamps or other security documents for foreign countries if such work does not interfere with the production of such documents for the U.S. and if the Secretary of State has concurred in the production.

Pay-As-You-Go Scoring

According to HTF (Hire), H.R. 3004 would increase receipts; therefore, it is subject to the pay-as-you-go requirements of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990. This Office has not completed estimates, but expects that the effect will be marginal.

(Rep. Oxley (R) Ohio

and 24 cosponsors)

The Administration supports House passage of H.R. 3004 and welcomes the anti-money laundering proposals that are included in this bill. In particular, the Administration welcomes the incorporation of due process into the regulations, orders, actions, and definitions that would be established under this legislation. In addition, the Administration supports the inclusion of relevant Administration representatives and banking regulators in decision-making that impacts the financial services industry and its conduct around the world.

The Administration does have some concerns with H.R. 3004. The Administration believes that the jurisdictional factors provided in Section 301 of the bill for determining whether a jurisdiction, financial institution, or class of transactions is "of primary money laundering concern" may not constitute definitive proof of money laundering. In that regard, the Administration especially appreciates the elimination in the House bill of references to tax havens and lower tax rates as possible indications of money laundering concern. In addition, the Administration expects that a small but financially efficient economy would not find itself targeted under this bill on the grounds of these jurisdictional factors alone.

Despite these concerns, the Administration applauds the overall efforts reflected by this legislation to equip enforcement officials with the new anti-money laundering tools needed to successfully conduct the war on terrorism. The Administration appreciates the opportunity to work with the Financial Services Committee on this legislation and looks forward to continuing to work with Congress as these proposals move through the legislative process.

We understand that a manager's amendment to H.R. 3004 is under development, for consideration as early as this evening under suspension of the rules, that makes significant changes to the introduced version of the bill and the manager's amendment ordered reported by the House Financial Services Committee on October 11, 2001. However the text of the new manager's amendment was not available when the description of the bill below was prepared.

Administration Position to Date

The Administration has not taken a position on H.R. 3004.

Summary of H.R. 3004

The description below is based on the introduced version of H.R. 3004.

Title I - Strengthening Law Enforcement

Title I of H.R. 3004 would enhance the ability of law enforcement agencies to identify the financial infrastructure of terrorist and other criminal organizations, by requiring interagency coordination and information exchange.

Specifically Title I of H.R. 3004 would:

- make it a Federal crime, punishable by up to 5 years in prison, for anyone to knowingly conceal more than $10,000 in currency or other monetary instruments on his person or in any conveyance, article of luggage, merchandise or other container, and to transport or attempt to transport that currency across the border with the intent to avoid the requirement that such currency be declared to Customs inspectors;

- make it an offense to transport more than $10,000 in criminal proceeds in interstate commerce, if the courier knows the money came from an illegal source or that it was intended to be used for an unlawful purpose;
- provide that the government need not establish that the defendant was familiar with the Federal statute making the operation of an unlicenced money remitter a criminal offense;

- give district courts "long-arm" jurisdiction over a foreign bank that commits a money laundering offense in the United States, and authorizes the restraint of assets found in the United States that may be used to satisfy a civil judgment against such a bank;

- expand the number of foreign offenses that are predicated for money laundering to include fraud, corruption, smuggling and other offenses, including crimes of violence perpetrated by terrorists;

REV_00133639

- add "material support for terrorism" to the list of predicate offenses that can give rise to a money laundering prosecution;

- provide for the inadmissibility of any individual seeking entry to the U.S. who a consular officer has reason to believe has engaged in certain money laundering offenses, or any criminal activity in a foreign country that would constitute such an offense if committed in the U.S., as well as the spouse, son or daughter of such persons under certain circumstances;

- authorize the seizure of laundered funds from correspondent accounts (accounts of foreign banks maintained in the U.S.);

- authorize the U.S. Customs Service to conduct limited warrant-less searches of outbound international mail when there is a reasonable suspicion that the mail contains bulk cash or other illegal contraband. The bill would extend authority to outbound international mail sent via the U.S. Postal Service. The bill also includes a provision that would prohibit U.S. Customs Service inspectors from reading, copying, or seizing any correspondence without a search warrant or the written consent of the sender;

- make it a Federal crime, punishable by up to 5 years in prison, to knowingly falsify or conceal a customers true identity in a transaction with a financial institution (including a bank, securities firm, or insurance company);

- require the Secretary of the Treasury to utilize already existing statutory authority to prescribe regulations requiring financial institutions to verify the identity of all persons who open and maintain accounts, and to keep records of the information used to verify such identification;

Title II - Public-Private Cooperation

This title would encourage cooperation and information exchange between the government and the financial services sector, to ensure that suspicious financial activities that may be related to terrorism are identified and investigated.

Specifically, Title II of H.R. 3004 would require the Secretary of the Treasury to:

- establish a secure website dedicated to receiving electronic filings of Suspicious Activity Reports by financial institutions and provide financial institutions with alerts and other information regarding suspicious activity that warrants enhanced scrutiny.

- disseminate quarterly reports to the financial services industry identifying and analyzing patterns of suspicious financial activity disclosed by the reports filed by the industry pursuant to the Bank Secrecy Act.

REV_00133640

- publish by no later than December 31, 2001, a proposed regulation requiring securities broker-dealers to file Suspicious Activity Reports.

Title II of H.R. 3004 would also:

- clarify the Bank Secrecy Act's "safe harbor" provision, which protects financial institutions that disclose possible violations of law or regulation from civil liability for reporting their suspicions and for not alerting those identified in the reports.

- permit a bank, upon request by another bank, to share information in a written employment reference concerning the possible involvement of a current or former officer or employee in potentially unlawful activity without fear of civil liability for sharing the information.

Title III - Combating International Money Laundering.

Title III of H.R. 3004 would address money laundering associated with off-shore secrecy havens and other countries that generally do not cooperate with U.S. law enforcement efforts to track terrorist assets and the proceeds of other criminal activity.

H.R. 3004 would give the Secretary of the Treasury discretionary authority to impose one or more of five special measures against foreign jurisdictions, financial institutions operating outside the United States, and international transactions that are determined to be of primary money laundering concern. Those measures include: (1) additional record keeping and reporting requirements; (2) identification of beneficial ownership of accounts held by foreign persons; (3) identification of persons permitted to use a payable-through account with an institution outside the U.S.; (4) identification of persons permitted to use a correspondent account with an institution outside the U.S.; and (5) prohibition of, or imposition of conditions on, correspondent or payable-through accounts with institutions outside the U.S.

The bill would require the Secretary to consult with the Secretary of State and the Attorney General to determine whether a foreign jurisdiction is of "primary money laundering concern," by taking into consideration: (1) whether a jurisdiction offers bank secrecy and special tax advantages; (2) the quality of its bank supervision and anti-money laundering laws; (3) the volume of transactions relative to the size of its economy; and (4) the experience of U.S. law enforcement officials in receiving cooperation from the jurisdiction.

H.R. 3004 would prohibit a gambling business from accepting bank instruments in connection with unlawful Internet gambling. Covered instruments include credit cards, electronic fund transfers, and checks.

H.R. 3004 would define the term "bets or wagers" as the staking or risking by any person of something of value upon the outcome of a contest of others, a sporting event, or a game predominantly subject to chance with the agreement that the winner will receive something of greater value than the amount staked or risked. The bill would clarify that bets or wagers do not include a bona fide business transaction governed by the securities laws; a transaction subject to the Commodity Exchange Act; an over-the-counter derivative instrument; a contract of indemnity or guarantee; a contract for life, health, or accident insurance; a deposit with a depository institution; or certain participation in a simulation sports game or education game. The bill would also clarify that businesses of betting or wagering do not generally include any financial intermediary (creditor, credit card issuer, insured depository institution, transmitter of an electric fund transfer, money transmitting business, or network used to effect a credit transaction, electronic fund transfer, stored value product transaction, or money transmitting service, or any participant in such network).

H.R. 3004 would authorize civil penalties, including a preliminary injunction or injunction, against any person to prevent or restrain a violation of this section, including expedited proceedings in exigent circumstances, to be brought by the U.S. Attorney General, or the attorney general of a State or other appropriate State official. The bill would also clarify that the bill is not intended to alter, supercede, or otherwise affect the application of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act.

H.R. 3004 would authorize criminal penalties, including fines or imprisonment for not more than five years, or both. The bill would also authorize a permanent injunction against a person convicted under this subsection, enjoining such person from placing, receiving, or otherwise making bets or wagers or sending, receiving, or inviting information assisting in the placing of bets or wagers.

H.R. 3004 would provide that the "safe harbor provided" to a financial intermediary (creditor, credit card issuer, financial institution, operator of a terminal at which an electronic fund transfer may be initiated, money transmitting business, or national, regional, or local network) does not apply to a financial intermediary that operates, manages, supervises, or directs an Internet website at which unlawful bets or wagers are or may be placed, received, or otherwise made; or is owned or controlled by any person who operates, manages, supervises, or directs such an Internet website.

H.R. 3004 would authorize the appropriate Federal banking agency to prohibit an insured depository institution from extending credit, or facilitating an extension of credit, electronic fund transfer, or money transmitting service, or from paying, transferring, or collecting on any check, draft, or other instrument drawn on any depository institution, where the institution has actual knowledge that a person is violating this section in connection with such activities. The bill would provide that a financial intermediary is not held liable for a violation of this act solely based on the unknowing and unintentional involvement of the intermediary through the use of the facilities of such intermediary in an unlawful Internet gambling transaction, unless the intermediary acted as an agent of a gambling business and had: (1) actual knowledge that the specific transaction is an unlawful Internet gambling transaction; and (2) the intent to engage in the business of submitting into the payment system Internet gambling transactions prohibited by this section.

H.R. 3004 would provide that, in deliberations between the U.S. Government and any other country on money laundering, corruption, and crime issues, the U.S. Government should encourage cooperation by foreign governments in identifying whether Internet gambling operations are being used for money laundering, corruption, or other crimes, advance policies that promote the cooperation by foreign governments in the enforcement of this Act, and encourage the Financial Action Task Force on Money Laundering to study the extent to which Internet gambling operations are being used for money laundering.

Title IV - Currency Protection

Title IV of H.R. 3004 would make it a criminal offense to possess an electronic image of an obligation or security document of the United States with intent to defraud, also increasing maximum sentences for a series of counterfeiting offenses. This title would also conform the legal prohibition on counterfeiting foreign security documents or obligations within the U.S. to that of counterfeiting U.S. security document or obligations.

This title would also permit the Secretary of the Treasury to authorize production of currency, stamps or other security documents for foreign countries if such work does not interfere with the production of such documents for the U.S. and if the Secretary of State has concurred in the production.

REV_00133643

Pay-As-You-Go Scoring

According to HTF (Hire), H.R. 3004 would increase receipts; therefore, it is subject to the pay-as-you-go requirements of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990. This Office has not completed estimates, but expects that the effect will be marginal.

October 16, 2001
(House)

H.R. 3004 - The Financial Anti-Terrorism Act of 2001
(Rep. Oxley (R) Ohio and 24 cosponsors)

The Administration supports House passage of H.R. 3004 and welcomes the anti-money laundering proposals that are included in this bill. In particular, the Administration welcomes the incorporation of due process into the regulations, orders, actions, and definitions that would be established under this legislation. In addition, the Administration supports the inclusion of relevant Administration representatives and banking regulators in decision-making that impacts the financial services industry and its conduct around the world.

The Administration does have some concerns with H.R. 3004. The Administration believes that the jurisdictional factors provided in Section 301 of the bill for determining whether a jurisdiction, financial institution, or class of transactions is "of primary money laundering concern" may not constitute definitive proof of money laundering. In that regard, the Administration especially appreciates the elimination in the House bill of references to tax havens and lower tax rates as possible indications of money laundering concern. In addition, the Administration expects that a small but financially efficient economy would not find itself targeted under this bill on the grounds of these jurisdictional factors alone.

Despite these concerns, the Administration applauds the overall efforts reflected by this legislation to equip enforcement officials with the new anti-money laundering tools needed to successfully conduct the war on terrorism. The Administration appreciates the opportunity to work with the Financial Services Committee on this legislation and looks forward to continuing to work with Congress as these proposals move through the legislative process.

We understand that a manager's amendment to H.R. 3004 is under development, for consideration as early as this evening under suspension of the rules, that makes significant changes to the introduced version of the bill and the manager's amendment ordered reported by the House Financial Services Committee on October 11, 2001. However the text of the new manager's amendment was not available when the description of the bill below was prepared.

Administration Position to Date

The Administration has not taken a position on H.R. 3004.

Summary of H.R. 3004

The description below is based on the introduced version of H.R. 3004.

Title I - Strengthening Law Enforcement

Title I of H.R. 3004 would enhance the ability of law enforcement agencies to identify the financial infrastructure of terrorist and other criminal organizations, by requiring interagency coordination and information exchange.

Specifically Title I of H.R. 3004 would:

abmake it a Federal crime, punishable by up to 5 years in prison, for anyone to knowingly conceal more than $10,000 in currency or other monetary instruments on his person or in any conveyance, article of luggage, merchandise or other container, and to transport or attempt to transport that currency across the border with the intent to avoid the requirement that such currency be declared to Customs inspectors;

abmake it an offense to transport more than $10,000 in criminal proceeds in interstate commerce, if the courier knows the money came from an illegal source or that it was intended to be used for an unlawful purpose;
abprovide that the government need not establish that the defendant was familiar with the Federal statute making the operation of an unlicenced money remitter a criminal offense;

abgive district courts "long-arm" jurisdiction over a foreign bank that commits a money laundering offense in the United States, and authorizes the restraint of assets found in the United States that may be used to satisfy a civil judgment against such a bank;

abexpand the number of foreign offenses that are predicated for money laundering to include fraud, corruption, smuggling and other offenses, including crimes of violence perpetrated by terrorists;

abadd "material support for terrorism" to the list of predicate offenses that can give rise to a money laundering prosecution;

abprovide for the inadmissibility of any individual seeking entry to the U.S. who a consular officer has reason to believe has engaged in certain money laundering offenses, or any criminal activity in a foreign country that would constitute such an offense if committed in the U.S., as well as the spouse, son or daughter of such persons under certain circumstances;

abauthorize the seizure of laundered funds from correspondent accounts (accounts of foreign banks maintained in the U.S.);

abauthorize the U.S. Customs Service to conduct limited warrant-less searches of outbound international mail when there is a reasonable suspicion that the mail contains bulk cash or other illegal contraband. The bill would extend authority to outbound international mail sent via the U.S. Postal Service. The bill also includes a provision that would prohibit U.S. Customs Service inspectors from reading, copying, or seizing any correspondence without a search warrant or the written consent of the sender;

abmake it a Federal crime, punishable by up to 5 years in prison, to knowingly falsify or conceal a customers true identity in a transaction with a financial institution (including a bank, securities firm, or insurance company);

abrequire the Secretary of the Treasury to utilize already existing statutory authority to prescribe regulations requiring financial institutions to verify the identity of all persons who open and maintain accounts, and to keep records of the information used to verify such identification;

Title II - Public-Private Cooperation

This title would encourage cooperation and information exchange between the government and the financial services sector, to ensure that suspicious financial activities that may be related to terrorism are identified and investigated.
Specifically, Title II of H.R. 3004 would require the Secretary of the Treasury to:

abestablish a secure website dedicated to receiving electronic filings of Suspicious Activity Reports by financial institutions and provide financial institutions with alerts and other information regarding suspicious activity that warrants enhanced scrutiny.

abdisseminate quarterly reports to the financial services industry identifying and analyzing patterns of suspicious financial activity disclosed by the reports filed by the industry pursuant to the Bank Secrecy Act.

abpublish by no later than December 31, 2001, a proposed regulation requiring securities broker-dealers to file Suspicious Activity Reports.

Title II of H.R. 3004 would also:

abclarify the Bank Secrecy Act's "safe harbor" provision, which protects financial institutions that disclose possible violations of law or regulation from civil liability for reporting their suspicions and for not alerting those identified in the reports.

abpermit a bank, upon request by another bank, to share information in a written employment reference concerning the possible involvement of a current or former officer or employee in potentially unlawful activity without fear of civil liability for sharing the information.

Title III - Combating International Money Laundering.

Title III of H.R. 3004 would address money laundering associated with off-shore secrecy havens and other countries that generally do not cooperate with U.S. law enforcement efforts to track terrorist assets and the proceeds of other criminal activity.

H.R. 3004 would give the Secretary of the Treasury discretionary authority to impose one or more of five special measures against foreign jurisdictions, financial institutions operating outside the United States, and international transactions that are determined to be of primary money laundering concern. Those measures include: (1) additional record keeping and reporting requirements; (2) identification of beneficial ownership of accounts held by foreign persons; (3) identification of persons permitted to use a payable-through account with an institution outside the U.S.; (4) identification of persons permitted to use a correspondent account with an institution outside the U.S.; and (5) prohibition of, or imposition of conditions on, correspondent or payable-through accounts with institutions outside the U.S.

The bill would require the Secretary to consult with the Secretary of State and the Attorney General to determine whether a foreign jurisdiction is of "primary money laundering concern," by taking into consideration: (1) whether a jurisdiction offers bank secrecy and special tax advantages; (2) the quality of its bank supervision and anti-money laundering laws; (3) the volume of transactions relative to the size of its economy; and (4) the experience of U.S. law enforcement officials in receiving cooperation from the jurisdiction.

H.R. 3004 would prohibit a gambling business from accepting bank instruments in connection with unlawful Internet gambling. Covered instruments include credit cards, electronic fund transfers, and checks.

H.R. 3004 would define the term "bets or wagers" as the staking or risking by any person of something of value upon the outcome of a contest of others, a sporting event, or a game predominantly subject to chance with the agreement that the winner will receive something of greater value than the amount staked or risked. The bill would clarify that bets or wagers do not include a bona fide business transaction governed by the securities laws; a transaction subject to the Commodity Exchange Act; an over-the-counter derivative instrument; a contract of indemnity or guarantee; a contract for life, health, or accident insurance; a deposit with a depository institution; or certain participation in a simulation sports game or education game. The bill would also clarify that businesses of betting or wagering do not generally include any financial intermediary (creditor, credit card issuer, insured depository institution, transmitter of an electric fund transfer, money transmitting business, or network used to effect a credit transaction, electronic fund transfer, stored value product transaction, or money transmitting service, or any participant in such network).

H.R. 3004 would authorize civil penalties, including a preliminary injunction or injunction, against any person to prevent or restrain a violation of this section, including expedited proceedings in exigent circumstances, to be brought by the U.S. Attorney General, or the attorney general of a State or other appropriate State official. The bill would also clarify that the bill is not intended to alter, supercede, or otherwise affect the application of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act.

H.R. 3004 would authorize criminal penalties, including fines or imprisonment for not more than five years, or both. The bill would also authorize a permanent injunction against a person convicted under this subsection, enjoining such person from placing, receiving, or otherwise making bets or wagers or sending, receiving, or inviting information assisting in the placing of bets or wagers.

H.R. 3004 would provide that the "safe harbor provided" to a financial intermediary (creditor, credit card issuer, financial institution, operator of a terminal at which an electronic fund transfer may be initiated, money transmitting business, or national, regional, or local network) does not apply to a financial intermediary that operates, manages, supervises, or directs an Internet website at which unlawful bets or wagers are or may be placed, received, or otherwise made; or is owned or controlled by any person who operates, manages, supervises, or directs such an Internet website.

H.R. 3004 would authorize the appropriate Federal banking agency to prohibit an insured depository institution from extending credit, or facilitating an extension of credit, electronic fund transfer, or money transmitting service, or from paying, transferring, or collecting on any check, draft, or other instrument drawn on any depository institution, where the institution has actual knowledge that a person is violating this section in connection with such activities. The bill would provide that a financial intermediary is not held liable for a violation of this act solely based on the unknowing and unintentional involvement of the intermediary through the use of the facilities of such intermediary in an unlawful Internet gambling transaction, unless the intermediary acted as an agent of a gambling business and had: (1) actual knowledge that the specific transaction is an unlawful Internet gambling transaction; and (2) the intent to engage in the business of submitting into the payment system Internet gambling transactions prohibited by this section.

H.R. 3004 would provide that, in deliberations between the U.S. Government and any other country on money laundering, corruption, and crime issues, the U.S. Government should encourage cooperation by foreign governments in identifying whether Internet gambling operations are being used for money laundering, corruption, or other crimes, advance policies that promote the cooperation by foreign governments in the enforcement of this Act, and encourage the Financial Action Task Force on Money Laundering to study the extent to which Internet gambling operations are being used for money laundering.

Title IV - Currency Protection

Title IV of H.R. 3004 would make it a criminal offense to possess an electronic image of an obligation or security document of the United States with intent to defraud, also increasing maximum sentences for a series of counterfeiting offenses. This title would also conform the legal prohibition on counterfeiting foreign security documents or obligations within the U.S. to that of counterfeiting U.S. security document or obligations.

This title would also permit the Secretary of the Treasury to authorize production of currency, stamps or other security documents for foreign countries if such work does not interfere with the production of such documents for the U.S. and if the Secretary of State has concurred in the production.

Pay-As-You-Go Scoring

According to HTF (Hire), H.R. 3004 would increase receipts; therefore, it is subject to the pay-as-you-go requirements of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990. This Office has not completed estimates, but expects that the effect will be marginal.

DRAFT -- NOT FOR RELEASE

October 16, 2001
(House)

H.R. 3004 - The

Financial Anti-Terrorism Act of 2001

(Rep. Oxley (R) Ohio

and 24 cosponsors)

The Administration supports House passage of H.R. 3004 and welcomes the anti-money laundering proposals that are included in this bill. In particular, the Administration welcomes the incorporation of due process into the regulations, orders, actions, and definitions that would be established under this legislation. In addition, the Administration supports the inclusion of relevant Administration representatives and banking regulators in decision-making that impacts the financial services industry and its conduct around the world.

The Administration does have some concerns with H.R. 3004. The Administration believes that the jurisdictional factors provided in Section 301 of the bill for determining whether a jurisdiction, financial institution, or class of transactions is "of primary money laundering concern" may not constitute definitive proof of money laundering. In that regard, the Administration especially appreciates the elimination in the House bill of references to tax havens and lower tax rates as possible indications of money laundering concern. In addition, the Administration expects that a small but financially efficient economy would not find itself targeted under this bill on the grounds of these jurisdictional factors alone.

Despite these concerns, the Administration applauds the overall efforts reflected by this legislation to equip enforcement officials with the new anti-money laundering tools needed to successfully conduct the war on terrorism. The Administration appreciates the opportunity to work with the Financial Services Committee on this legislation and looks forward to continuing to work with Congress as these proposals move through the legislative process.

The following did not respond to our request for views: CIA and NSC

OMB/LA Clearance: _____.

We understand that a manager's amendment to H.R. 3004 is under development, for consideration as early as this evening under suspension of the rules, that makes significant changes to the introduced version of the bill and the manager's amendment ordered reported by the House Financial Services Committee on October 11, 2001. However the text of the new manager's amendment was not available when the description of the bill below was prepared.

Administration Position to Date

The Administration has not taken a position on H.R. 3004.

Summary of H.R. 3004

The description below is based on the introduced version of H.R. 3004.

Title I - Strengthening Law Enforcement

Title I of H.R. 3004 would enhance the ability of law enforcement agencies to identify the financial infrastructure of terrorist and other criminal organizations, by requiring interagency coordination and information exchange.

Specifically Title I of H.R. 3004 would:

- make it a Federal crime, punishable by up to 5 years in prison, for anyone to knowingly conceal more than $10,000 in currency or other monetary instruments on his person or in any conveyance, article of luggage, merchandise or other container, and to transport or attempt to transport that currency across the border with the intent to avoid the requirement that such currency be declared to Customs inspectors;

- make it an offense to transport more than $10,000 in criminal proceeds in interstate commerce, if the courier knows the money came from an illegal source or that it was intended to be used for an unlawful purpose;
- provide that the government need not establish that the defendant was familiar with the Federal statute making the operation of an unlicenced money remitter a criminal offense;

- give district courts "long-arm" jurisdiction over a foreign bank that commits a money laundering offense in the United States, and authorizes the restraint of assets found in the United States that may be used to satisfy a civil judgment against such a bank;

- expand the number of foreign offenses that are predicated for money laundering to include fraud, corruption, smuggling and other offenses, including crimes of violence perpetrated by terrorists;

REV_00133654

- add "material support for terrorism" to the list of predicate offenses that can give rise to a money laundering prosecution;

- provide for the inadmissibility of any individual seeking entry to the U.S. who a consular officer has reason to believe has engaged in certain money laundering offenses, or any criminal activity in a foreign country that would constitute such an offense if committed in the U.S., as well as the spouse, son or daughter of such persons under certain circumstances;

- authorize the seizure of laundered funds from correspondent accounts (accounts of foreign banks maintained in the U.S.);

- authorize the U.S. Customs Service to conduct limited warrant-less searches of outbound international mail when there is a reasonable suspicion that the mail contains bulk cash or other illegal contraband. The bill would extend authority to outbound international mail sent via the U.S. Postal Service. The bill also includes a provision that would prohibit U.S. Customs Service inspectors from reading, copying, or seizing any correspondence without a search warrant or the written consent of the sender;

- make it a Federal crime, punishable by up to 5 years in prison, to knowingly falsify or conceal a customers true identity in a transaction with a financial institution (including a bank, securities firm, or insurance company);

- require the Secretary of the Treasury to utilize already existing statutory authority to prescribe regulations requiring financial institutions to verify the identity of all persons who open and maintain accounts, and to keep records of the information used to verify such identification;

Title II - Public-Private Cooperation

This title would encourage cooperation and information exchange between the government and the financial services sector, to ensure that suspicious financial activities that may be related to terrorism are identified and investigated.

Specifically, Title II of H.R. 3004 would require the Secretary of the Treasury to:

- establish a secure website dedicated to receiving electronic filings of Suspicious Activity Reports by financial institutions and provide financial institutions with alerts and other information regarding suspicious activity that warrants enhanced scrutiny.

- disseminate quarterly reports to the financial services industry identifying and analyzing patterns of suspicious financial activity disclosed by the reports filed by the industry pursuant to the Bank Secrecy Act.

REV_00133655

- publish by no later than December 31, 2001, a proposed regulation requiring securities broker-dealers to file Suspicious Activity Reports.

Title II of H.R. 3004 would also:

- clarify the Bank Secrecy Act's "safe harbor" provision, which protects financial institutions that disclose possible violations of law or regulation from civil liability for reporting their suspicions and for not alerting those identified in the reports.

- permit a bank, upon request by another bank, to share information in a written employment reference concerning the possible involvement of a current or former officer or employee in potentially unlawful activity without fear of civil liability for sharing the information.

Title III - Combating International Money Laundering.

Title III of H.R. 3004 would address money laundering associated with off-shore secrecy havens and other countries that generally do not cooperate with U.S. law enforcement efforts to track terrorist assets and the proceeds of other criminal activity.

H.R. 3004 would give the Secretary of the Treasury discretionary authority to impose one or more of five special measures against foreign jurisdictions, financial institutions operating outside the United States, and international transactions that are determined to be of primary money laundering concern. Those measures include: (1) additional record keeping and reporting requirements; (2) identification of beneficial ownership of accounts held by foreign persons; (3) identification of persons permitted to use a payable-through account with an institution outside the U.S.; (4) identification of persons permitted to use a correspondent account with an institution outside the U.S.; and (5) prohibition of, or imposition of conditions on, correspondent or payable-through accounts with institutions outside the U.S.

The bill would require the Secretary to consult with the Secretary of State and the Attorney General to determine whether a foreign jurisdiction is of "primary money laundering concern," by taking into consideration: (1) whether a jurisdiction offers bank secrecy and special tax advantages; (2) the quality of its bank supervision and anti-money laundering laws; (3) the volume of transactions relative to the size of its economy; and (4) the experience of U.S. law enforcement officials in receiving cooperation from the jurisdiction.

H.R. 3004 would prohibit a gambling business from accepting bank instruments in connection with unlawful Internet gambling. Covered instruments include credit cards, electronic fund transfers, and checks.

H.R. 3004 would define the term "bets or wagers" as the staking or risking by any person of something of value upon the outcome of a contest of others, a sporting event, or a game predominantly subject to chance with the agreement that the winner will receive something of greater value than the amount staked or risked. The bill would clarify that bets or wagers do not include a bona fide business transaction governed by the securities laws; a transaction subject to the Commodity Exchange Act; an over-the-counter derivative instrument; a contract of indemnity or guarantee; a contract for life, health, or accident insurance; a deposit with a depository institution; or certain participation in a simulation sports game or education game. The bill would also clarify that businesses of betting or wagering do not generally include any financial intermediary (creditor, credit card issuer, insured depository institution, transmitter of an electric fund transfer, money transmitting business, or network used to effect a credit transaction, electronic fund transfer, stored value product transaction, or money transmitting service, or any participant in such network).

H.R. 3004 would authorize civil penalties, including a preliminary injunction or injunction, against any person to prevent or restrain a violation of this section, including expedited proceedings in exigent circumstances, to be brought by the U.S. Attorney General, or the attorney general of a State or other appropriate State official. The bill would also clarify that the bill is not intended to alter, supercede, or otherwise affect the application of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act.

H.R. 3004 would authorize criminal penalties, including fines or imprisonment for not more than five years, or both. The bill would also authorize a permanent injunction against a person convicted under this subsection, enjoining such person from placing, receiving, or otherwise making bets or wagers or sending, receiving, or inviting information assisting in the placing of bets or wagers.

H.R. 3004 would provide that the "safe harbor provided" to a financial intermediary (creditor, credit card issuer, financial institution, operator of a terminal at which an electronic fund transfer may be initiated, money transmitting business, or national, regional, or local network) does not apply to a financial intermediary that operates, manages, supervises, or directs an Internet website at which unlawful bets or wagers are or may be placed, received, or otherwise made; or is owned or controlled by any person who operates, manages, supervises, or directs such an Internet website.

H.R. 3004 would authorize the appropriate Federal banking agency to prohibit an insured depository institution from extending credit, or facilitating an extension of credit, electronic fund transfer, or money transmitting service, or from paying, transferring, or collecting on any check, draft, or other instrument drawn on any depository institution, where the institution has actual knowledge that a person is violating this section in connection with such activities. The bill would provide that a financial intermediary is not held liable for a violation of this act solely based on the unknowing and unintentional involvement of the intermediary through the use of the facilities of such intermediary in an unlawful Internet gambling transaction, unless the intermediary acted as an agent of a gambling business and had: (1) actual knowledge that the specific transaction is an unlawful Internet gambling transaction; and (2) the intent to engage in the business of submitting into the payment system Internet gambling transactions prohibited by this section.

H.R. 3004 would provide that, in deliberations between the U.S. Government and any other country on money laundering, corruption, and crime issues, the U.S. Government should encourage cooperation by foreign governments in identifying whether Internet gambling operations are being used for money laundering, corruption, or other crimes, advance policies that promote the cooperation by foreign governments in the enforcement of this Act, and encourage the Financial Action Task Force on Money Laundering to study the extent to which Internet gambling operations are being used for money laundering.

Title IV - Currency Protection

Title IV of H.R. 3004 would make it a criminal offense to possess an electronic image of an obligation or security document of the United States with intent to defraud, also increasing maximum sentences for a series of counterfeiting offenses. This title would also conform the legal prohibition on counterfeiting foreign security documents or obligations within the U.S. to that of counterfeiting U.S. security document or obligations.

~~DRAFT: 9/27/01~~

Testimony of
R. Glenn Hubbard
Chairman
Council of Economic Advisers
Before the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs
U.S. Senate~~on the Budget~~
~~United States Senate~~

October 24, 2001
10:00 a.m.

Mr. Chairman, Senator Gramm~~Senator Domenici, and~~, and members of the Committee, it is a pleasure to appear before you today to discuss the situation facing insurance markets in the aftermath of the current terrorist threat. ~~outlook for the U.S. economy. The terrible~~ The terrible tragedy associated with the terrorist attacks on New York and Washington exacted an economic toll on the United States as well as a human toll, and the Administration is working with Congress to address both losses.

Among the direct repercussions of these attacks has been an increased appreciation of the need to focus public policy on s~~.~~

~~Growth in the U. S. Economy and the Outlook Prior to September 11~~

~~It is useful to begin with the backdrop to these events. Prior to the tragedy on September 11, the United States was experiencing a growth slowdown: real GDP growth slowed to only an average 1.2 percent annual pace during the past four quarters, with a low of 0.2 percent in the second quarter, and 0.0 percent in the third quarter.~~ ~~NOTE: Change the numbers after GDP is released.~~ ~~While the probability of an outright recession was low, the fact that the economy was~~ growing slower that its potential rate of growth dictated that unemployment rate was likely to rise in the near term. Economic disruptions emanating from the bombings in New York and Washington almost certainly worsen the short-run growth prospects.

Growth rates this much below their potential levels are not acceptable. Accordingly, monetary and fiscal policy moved decisively to reverse pre-September 11 recessionary pressures. The Federal Reserve cut the target federal funds rate by 300 basis points from the beginning of the year through, September 11, and $41 billion was returned to taxpayers during the third quarter as a downpayment on a large permanent tax cut.

Looking outside the nation, the United States had an interest in the resumption of economic growth in Japan and accelerated growth in Europe. During the first half of 2001, GDP declined in Japan, and the rate of decline accelerated. In Europe, the rate of GDP growth remains positive, but has decelerated. Moreover, European Commission surveys of the outlook for new manufacturing orders, industrial production, and consumer confidence indicate recent declines. More rapid growth in the major economies will in turn enhance the likelihood of stability and progress in the rest of the world, such as developing Asia and Latin America. In the absence of resumption of global growth, trends in output and asset prices may force painful adjustments.

Economic Consequences of the Events of September 11

To analyze the effects of the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, it is instructive to consider two steps. First, the collapse of the World Trade Center and surrounding buildings acted as an adverse supply shock to the economy. The physical damages from the attacks likely were not sufficiently consequential to affect the underlying potential growth rate of the economy. However, the destruction of the World Trade Center, the damage to the financial sector, and the interruption of commercial aviation temporarily restricted the economy's ability to supply goods and services in the short run. These "supply shock" consequences of the attacks substantially reduce the growth rate of GDP over the next two quarters and increase significantly the likelihood that the economy is in a recession. These consequences also imply a greater gap between the economy's actual and potential growth rate, with adverse consequences for employment.

This first step treats -- for strictly analytic purposes -- the attacks as a contained physical event. Of course, there is a second, and more important, effect. Because the destruction on September 11 arose as a result of terrorism, the economic aftermath includes shocks to household and business confidence, and increased uncertainty regarding the overall environment. The effects on confidence and uncertainty give rise to a number of additional supply-side costs of transacting business -- ranging from enhanced security to more costly insurance -- which reduce output growth.

On the demand side, the attacks and their potential repercussions lowered household and business confidence about the future, and along with it their willingness to spend and invest. Prior to the attacks, a focus of policy was to ensure a continued flow of resources -- incomes, cash flow, and so forth -- to households and businesses to provide a base for sustained growth in aggregate demand. If confidence effects are substantial, the attacks must necessarily shift our focus somewhat -- away from simply providing dollars to households, for example, and toward buttressing the confidence of households to make purchases out of those dollars.

What is the outlook for consumer confidence? To gain a sense of the magnitudes involved, one can derive estimates of the expected decline in confidence by utilizing the changes to the Blue Chip consensus forecast due to the terrorist attacks. The implied drop in confidence is substantial and likely incorporates effects of recent equity price declines. Using the most recent Blue Chip consensus forecast as a guide, the implied decline in confidence is temporary — following roughly the path of the confidence decline and recovery during the Gulf War — and is essentially eliminated by the second half of 2002. The Blue Chip Consensus forecast is, of course, only an estimate. More shallow declines in confidence would permit a more rapid recovery. Larger and more sustained declines in confidence would suggest a longer downturn and slower recovery, particularly if accompanied by prolonged weakness in equity prices.

To be concrete, the consensus economic forecasts by private sector economists (as reflected in the September 20, 2001 release of the Blue Chip Economic Indicators) indicates a modest recession, again fueled by a decline in confidence and equity values. (While a recession is defined by the National Bureau of Economic Research, we use the term in its common association with two quarters of negative GDP growth.) The consensus estimate is for a decline in real GDP of 0.5 percent and 0.7 percent in the third and fourth quarters, respectively, of this year. Consensus estimates of GDP growth rebound in 2002, with growth of 1.4 percent and 2.8 percent, respectively, in the first two quarters of 2002, and 3.7 percent in the second half of 2002. Even with this recovery, the unemployment rate is likely to rise through 2002 [True?: More details?]

A range of estimates underlies the Blue Chip forecasts, and that range reflects a divergence of views about the depth of the initial decline in confidence and the persistence of that decline. For example, the range between the top ten and bottom ten estimates is 0.4 percent to -1.5 percent for the third quarter of 2001, 1.5 percent to -2.4 percent for the fourth quarter of 2001, 3.3 percent to -0.8, percent for the first quarter of 2002, 4.0 percent to 1.0 percent in the second quarter of 2002, and 3.8 percent to 1.8 percent for growth during 2002 as a whole.

[Insert comment on implied range for unemployment rate]. This range suggests the need to think seriously about downside risks and policies that address the source of the economy's vulnerability in the quarter ahead.

Existing public policies also continue to buffer the downward pressure on aggregate demand. On the monetary side, the Federal Reserve reduced its federal funds rate target on September 17 by 50 basis points. From a fiscal perspective, the $40 billion emergency appropriation will provide additional stimulus later this year and throughout 2002. These policy moves will mitigate somewhat the effects of the terrorist attack on output growth and unemployment, and should aid a recovery in 2002, though again downside risks remain.

Implications for Public Policy

This simple analysis of the short-term economic consequences of the events of September 11 suggests important lessons for public policy. Consumer and business confidence is the key factor in calibrating the depth of any downturn occurring as a result of the terrorist attacks and the pace of the subsequent recovery. Indeed, improvements in confidence are themselves a potent stimulus; a rapid rebound of household and business sentiment will hasten the arrival and pace of recovery in 2002. A longer decline in confidence could lead to a significant period of mediocre output growth and rising unemployment, as I noted earlier.

Hence one way to evaluate policy responses is by their effect on household or business confidence. What is the framework for policies?

First, the tragedy of September 11 is a seminal event and policies should be forward-looking, not attempting to simply replicate the world of September 10. Policies should provide consumers and businesses with confidence that the policy infrastructure is in place to ensure the ~~conduct of economic activity in this new environment. As an example, consider the response of the Administration and the Congress to the immediate problems in commercial aviation.~~

~~The problem is not simply one of keeping commercial aircrafts in the air. Instead a key feature of the policy response is the provision of funding for enhanced security, thereby addressing the root cause of the airline industry downturn – diminished confidence by travelers. This funding should address aircraft security, security personnel and screening of passengers and baggage.~~

~~Prudent investment in aviation security restore confidence in air travel, and the hardened infrastructure in this economic sector will also support the numerous industries related to the travel and tourism sectors of the economy~~

~~On a broader scale, a policy focus on~~ Security, including efforts toward defending American economic activity against terrorist intrusions. The need for security in economic activity – whether in such visible forms as Federal Air Marshals or more mundane needs like additional backup computer systems – raises the overall cost of transacting business. In this sense, the attacks acted as a shock to the costs of supplying goods and services in the economy. It is in our economic interest to contain these transactions costs as much as possible.

The attacks also raised the degree of uncertainty in the economic environment – from the state of aggregate demand, to the demand for particular goods and services (air travel, for example), to a myriad of other areas.

Commercial insurance lies at the intersection of these two forces. Property and casualty insurance is one mechanism by which economies respond efficiently to risks in the environment. Risks are spread, converting for each business a potential cost of unknowable size and timing into a set of smaller, known premium payments. The events of September 11 induced a dramatic revision in perceived risks. In normal circumstances, increased risks are translated into higher premiums. This serves the useful economic function of pricing risk, leading the private sector toward those activities where the risk is "worth it" -- there might be losses now and then, but on average society will benefit – and away from foolhardy gambles.

At the moment, however, the entire nation is unsure of the genuine likelihood of additional terrorist events. For insurance markets, unfortunately, the distinction between risk – not knowing when an event will happen, but having solid knowledge of the odds of an occurrence – and genuine uncertainty about the frequency of an insured event is the key to being able to price efficiently. Experience with our new security environment will mitigate this difficulty over time. In the near term, however, it would not be terribly surprising to experience disruption of the property and casualty market. In the extreme, customers may not be able to renew policies until the market resolves pricing difficulties.

An interruption of coverage is a particular, and extreme, version of an increase in transactions costs as a result of terrorist-associated risks. Still, there is the possibility that existing lines of coverage will be renewed only with quite substantial increases in premiums. I believe we are all now familiar with the difficulties facing aviation; disproportionate rises in insurance coverage or, in the extreme, withdrawal of insurance coverage, would hinder transition to a new operating environment. This phenomenon is more widespread, however. Lenders usually require businesses to insure any property they use to secure loans. The terms of terrorism coverage could diminish bank lending for new construction projects. It could as well act as a sharp impediment to transactions that permit existing commercial properties – skyscrapers, pipelines, power plants, and so forth – to change hands. It is important to point out that this "changing hands" is an important economic function. The relative efficiency with which our economy reallocates capital from less productive to more productive uses sets it apart from many other nations.

In short, a well-functioning insurance market is part of the financial infrastructure that underpins our economy. The Administration and Congress worked together to restore the institutional underpinnings of the financial markets in the week after September 11. In the same way, the Administration looks forward to working with the Congress to bolster the capacity of private insurance markets to provide the risk-sharing services that benefit commerce and consumers.

Principles for Government Involvement

To this end, the Administration believes that any federal intervention in the insurance market should adhere to four key principles:

1. Intervention should encourage, not discourage, private market incentives to expand its capacity to absorb and diversify risk.
2. Intervention should be temporary, permitting us to review in the future the ability of the insurance industry to price these risks and absorb losses.
3. Private market actors should face appropriate price incentives to encourage efforts to minimize the probability of a terrorist event and to limit losses should such an event occur.
4. Private sector uncertainty about liabilities that arise from litigation should be reduced.

The Administration's approach to Terrorism Insurance adheres to each of these four principles. In order to see this, please allow me to first explain the basic outlines of how this approach would work.

The Administration Proposal

Upon enactment of this legislation, if the United States were the victim of a terrorist attack before the end of 2002, the federal government would pay for 80 percent of the first $20 billion of insured losses, and 90 percent of insured losses in excess of this amount. The private insurance industry would pay for the remaining insured losses.

In the year 2003, the industry would be responsible for the first $10 billion in insured losses, and 50 percent of insured losses between $10 billion and $20 billion. Above $20 billion, the federal government would continue to pay 90 percent of all losses.

In the year 2004, the third and final year of this program, the industry would be responsible for 100 percent of the first $20 billion in losses, and 50 percent of insured losses between $20 billion and $40 billion. Above $40 billion, the federal government would continue to pay 90 percent of all losses.

In the event that total insured losses exceed $100 billion in any calendar year, Congress would determine the procedures for and source of any such payments.

In addition to this insurance component, the Administration approach would also consolidate all claims arising from a terrorist incident in a single federal forum. In addition, it would prohibit claims for punitive damages (other than those directed at the perpetrators), and require that non-economic damages be proportional to a defendant's responsibility (for economic losses, ordinary rules of joint and several liability would apply).

Consistency of Approach with Prinicples

This proposal is consistent with the Administration principles outlined above.

This proposal encourages private sector capacity building in several ways. First, it is forward-looking. It respects the insurance industry's proven ability to develop the capacity to price, market, and service products for new types of risks. In the past, naysayers deemed reinsurance against the risks of natural catastrophes such as hurricanes as beyond the reach of private insurance markets. Experience has proven them wrong. By providing a temporary bridge of three years, a steadily receding Federal presence, and an explicit sunset, we will permit the industry to grow into this new market.

Second, the Administration's proposal recognizes that a limitation facing the insurance and reinsurance industry is its total capacity to absorb risk. For this reason, we provide the economic function of limiting its maximum exposure in order to provide a backstop against catastrophic losses, which could generate large increases in transactions costs for businesses and, ultimately, for consumers.

Third, because the industry shares in the losses – up to a maximum loss – and the share it shoulders rises over time, there will be a profit motive for insurance companies – and actuaries and economists – to begin now to refine pricing models. As I noted earlier, there are economic benefits to the efficient pricing of risks. While no covered individual company can control whether terrorists strike, efficient pricing can lead every covered company to take actions lessen the damage that results from terrorist incidents. After the approach sunsets, the industry will have made progress toward efficient pricing of risks. At that time, issues of pricing and the industry's capacity to absorb losses can be revisited.

In addition, having the industry participate will control costs after any event. If the government agrees to pick up 100 percent of all claims, the insurance industry has no incentive to do careful claims adjustments.

The potential losses facing insurers depend not only upon the security and economic environment, but on the legal setting as well. That is why the Administration approach would also includes elements of legal reform. These reforms to the tort process will bring damage claims closer to their economic foundation and reduce the uncertainty about the magnitude of potential claims. The consolidation of claims in a single federal forum, for example, helps to ensure that the claims will be treated in a consistent manner and eliminates the redundancy costs of litigating similar claims in multiple courts. In addition, consolidation tends to expedite the claims process, reducing the uncertainty about the length of the litigation. Limitations on punitive damages (other than those directed at perpetrators or abettors) and proportional liability for non-economic harms (except those caused by perpetrators or abettors) reduces the potential for open-ended claims. Such reforms are essential for economically enhancing the efficiency of the insurance market by increasing the ability of the insurance industry to price and absorb the risks associated with terrorism.

To conclude, the U. S. economy is very resilient, and, through the combined efforts of the Administration and Congress it is possible to provide transitional public policy to support the needs of purchasers of property and casualty insurance. Thank you again, Mr. Chairman, for the opportunity to appear before you today. I am happy to answer your questions.

Claire suggested I talk to you about this Brett.

I'm getting a lot of calls from reporters on this. Deadlines are today.

The issue is a letter the President sent supporting an exception to FOIA to encourage companies to come forward and discuss breaches of network security.

AP has put a story out on it (attached). What can you tell me about it?

Claire told me you were working on this.....

Bush Supports Disclosure Limits
By TED BRIDIS, Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The White House will support proposals to withhold details about electronic attacks against the nation's most important computer networks, an administration expert in computer security confirmed Thursday.

The proposed changes, meant to encourage corporate victims of hackers to report crimes, would restrict government agencies' disclosures about attacks under the Freedom of Information Act. The proposal seeks to overcome traditional reluctance by industries, especially technology, to reveal potentially embarrassing details without fear of disclosure.

In a letter to the chairman of the National Security and Telecommunications Advisory Committee, President Bush (news - web sites) said he will ``support a narrowly crafted exception ... to protect information about corporations' and other organizations' vulnerabilities to information warfare and malicious hacking.''

Bush sent the letter three weeks ago to Daniel Burnham, chairman of Raytheon Co., who heads the advisory committee. The Associated Press obtained the letter Thursday.

John Tritak, director of the federal Critical Infrastructure Assurance Office, confirmed during a Thursday speech to technology executives the administration's support for such a ``narrowly crafted'' exemption to the information act. Tritak cautioned that any change must be ``fully protective of open government and privacy.''

Other officials, including Ron Dick, director of the FBI (news - web sites)'s National Infrastructure Protection Center, privately have expressed support for an FOIA exemption to encourage broader sharing of threat information between industries and the government.

``This is a much stronger, more-clear message from the administration,'' said Harris Miller, head of the Information Technology Association of America, a trade group that supports the new limits.

Support by President Bush marks a shift from the Clinton administration, which said existing restrictions on FOIA disclosures were adequate for protecting sensitive corporate information.

In a different move to limit information available under the U.S. information law, Attorney General John Ashcroft (news - web sites) ordered federal agencies this week to review more closely which documents they release. Ashcroft's new policy allows officials to withhold information on any ``sound legal basis.'' Under looser policies issued in 1993, agencies could hold back information to prevent ``foreseeable harm.'' Ashcroft cited the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks against New York and Washington as reasons for the change.

Currently, Sens. Robert Bennett, R-Utah, and Jon Kyl, R-Ariz., and Reps. Tom Davis, R-Va., and James Moran, D-Va., have introduced bills to limit government disclosures about hacking attacks.

``If you do not pass this bill, industry will not tell government'' about hacking incidents against important networks, Bennett said Thursday.

President Bush responded with support for the new FOIA exemption after a request from Raytheon's Burnham over the summer on behalf of the telecommunications advisory committee. Burnham wrote that ``barriers to sharing (information) must be removed'' and asked the president also to limit legal liabilities facing companies that make such disclosures.

Burnham's letter to Bush was originally obtained this week by the Washington-based Electronic Privacy Information Center, which contends that existing limits under the information law are adequate to protecting disclosures about hacking attacks.

EPIC lawyer David Sobel charged Thursday that technology companies want liability protections for hardware and software products that might be flawed in ways that could allow security breaches. ``Most of us have concluded that companies really want the ability to unload this information on the government, then wash their hands of it,'' Sobel said.

A White House official, who asked not to be identified, said Bush has not committed to supporting any liability limits.

The Honorable Max S. Baucus
United States Senate
Washington, D.C. 20510-6200

Dear Senator Baucus:

Earlier this year I asked agencies within the Department of Treasury to identify roadblocks to their achieving improved efficiencies and performance within the limits of their current resources. Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Rossotti responded with several legislative proposals. Some would improve the IRS's ability to administer provisions of the Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998. Others would result in significant cost savings to the IRS. A list of these proposals is enclosed.

I support including these proposals in the earliest appropriate legislation.

Sincerely,

Paul O'Neill

RRA Proposals

1. Modify Section 1203
2. Curb Frivolous Submissions
3. Authorize Partial Pay Installment Agreements
4. Terminate Installment Agreements for Failure to File Returns and Failure to Make Tax Deposits
5. Grant Tax Court Full Jurisdiction in Collection Due Process Cases
6. Remove Monetary Threshold for Counsel Review of Offers-in-Compromise

Cost Savings Proposals

1. Permit Certificates of Mailing as Alternative to Certified Mail
2. Modify Certified Mail Return Receipt Requested Requirement
3. Clarify Dual Notice Requirement
4. Treat "False Returns" as Nullities, Not Subject to Deficiency Procedures
5. Permit Collection of Federal Payment Levy Program Fees from Amounts Levied

Administration's Anti-Terrorism Proposals

The Administration's proposals represent a measured, careful, responsible, and constitutional approach to the threat of terrorist activities conducted in the United States and directed against United States citizens. The proposals seek to enhance the government's ability both (i) to detect and prevent terrorist acts; and (ii) for those terrorists who are brought to justice through a criminal process rather than a military process, to severely punish terrorists and those who support and harbor them.

- The Administration's primary legislative proposals seek to achieve four main goals:

  - First, the legislation would ensure that information that is important to both intelligence and criminal investigations can be easily shared so that vital information is available to all relevant federal agencies. The legislation will begin to break down the walls between law enforcement and intelligence agencies and thereby help both to prevent terrorist acts before they happen and to severely punish terrorists and those who harbor and support terrorists.

  - Second, the legislation would update laws authorizing government surveillance. These laws were enacted decades ago by Congress in an era of rotary telephones. These laws must be updated to account for e-mail, Internet usage, cellular phones, and other forms of modern communication.

    - The government is currently fighting a modern war -- a war that threatens our people and our way of life -- with antique weapons. Terrorists are taking advantage by using the Internet, e-mail, and multiple cellular telephones to escape and evade detection by United States agents.

    - The proposed legislation does not purport to change the legal standards that govern when and under what circumstances the government can seek such information. Rather, the proposed legislation merely seeks to ensure that the same legal standards that govern wiretaps on telephones, for example, also apply to modern forms of communication such as e-mail.

    - Consistent with the Constitution, the Administration believes that the law of search and surveillance should be technology neutral. The government's ability to detect and prevent crime should not depend on the technology used by the suspect. To do otherwise is a prescription for failure.

  - Third, the legislation would ensure that certain categories of federal search warrants and surveillance orders are valid throughout the United States so that federal prosecutors and federal agents need not pointlessly seek re-authorization in multiple districts throughout the country. Eliminating these kinds of administrative burdens, which serve no discernible purpose, will allow federal agents to respond rapidly in fast-moving intelligence and criminal investigations so that agents can track and follow potential terrorists.

- Fourth, the legislation would establish tough new penalties and sanctions on terrorists and those who harbor and support terrorists. In many instances, these changes would simply ensure that terrorism offenses are subject to the same kinds of penalties as other serious criminal offenses, such as drug trafficking.

    - For example, the legislation would:
        - impose new penalties for possession of biological weapons;
        - enhance the government's ability to seize assets of terrorists;
        - assist the government's ability to exclude and remove from the United States both terrorists and those who support and harbor terrorists;
        - extend the statute of limitations on terrorist crimes; and
        - ensure lengthy sentences for terrorist crimes, including on those who harbor and support terrorists.

Our sympathies and prayers for all the anxiety sweeping the mail. We appreciate the leadership and statesmanship of our President and his Administration in these times. Heritage has, obviously, suspended distribution of anything by mail and we encourage you to share these URL sites with your colleagues who will not be getting these publications for some time. We hope to be of service. Thanks, Ginni

Lowey Blow - A Democrat's uncivil words.
By John J. Miller & Ramesh Ponnuru

"To have Tom DeLay delay an airport security bill is immoral, is wrong, and it just doesn't make any sense," blustered Nita Lowey, a Democratic congresswoman from New York, in yesterday's Washington Post. It's immoral?
DeLay opposes a Senate-approved plan that would turn the nation's 28,000 airport baggage screeners into federal employees. His opposition may be wise or unwise - we happen to think it's wise, on the grounds that private companies won't handle security the way the Post Office handles the mail - but it certainly isn't immoral.
(http://www.heritage.org/views/2001/ed101901b.html for an argument in favor of DeLay's position).

Our sympathies and prayers for all the anxiety sweeping the mail. We appreciate the leadership and statesmanship of our President and his Administration in these times. Heritage has, obviously, suspended distribution of anything by mail and we encourage you to share these URL sites with your colleagues who will not be getting these publications for some time. We hope to be of service. Thanks, Ginni

Lowey Blow - A Democrat's uncivil words.
By John J. Miller & Ramesh Ponnuru

"To have Tom DeLay delay an airport security bill is immoral, is wrong, and it just doesn't make any sense," blustered Nita Lowey, a Democratic congresswoman from New York, in yesterday's Washington Post. It's immoral?
DeLay opposes a Senate-approved plan that would turn the nation's 28,000 airport baggage screeners into federal employees. His opposition may be wise or unwise - we happen to think it's wise, on the grounds that private companies won't handle security the way the Post Office handles the mail - but it certainly isn't immoral.
(http://www.heritage.org/views/2001/ed101901b.html for an argument in favor of DeLay's position).

Our sympathies and prayers for all the anxiety sweeping the mail. We appreciate the leadership and statesmanship of our President and his Administration in these times. Heritage has, obviously, suspended distribution of anything by mail and we encourage you to share these URL sites with your colleagues who will not be getting these publications for some time. We hope to be of service. Thanks, Ginni

Lowey Blow - A Democrat's uncivil words.
By John J. Miller & Ramesh Ponnuru

"To have Tom DeLay delay an airport security bill is immoral, is wrong, and it just doesn't make any sense," blustered Nita Lowey, a Democratic congresswoman from New York, in yesterday's Washington Post. It's immoral?
DeLay opposes a Senate-approved plan that would turn the nation's 28,000 airport baggage screeners into federal employees. His opposition may be wise or unwise - we happen to think it's wise, on the grounds that private companies won't handle security the way the Post Office handles the mail - but it certainly isn't immoral.
(http://www.heritage.org/views/2001/ed101901b.html for an argument in favor of DeLay's position).

Tort Law and Terrorist Activity

I. The tort system is neither designed nor equipped to deal with terrorism.

- The risks of terrorist activities are not measurable and manageable by potential defendants.
  - Even insurance actuaries cannot quantify and price the risk, because terrorist events, their victims, and potential defendants are unknowable.
- There is no need to impose an incentive for due care, the traditional justification for regulation through tort liability.
  - Citizenry already vigilant against terrorist activity.
  - Entities already motivated to protect their property from catastrophic loss.
- There are many more potential defendants in a terrorist incident than traditional torts, including mass torts.
  - In traditional tort, risk of liability extends to those who designed, built, or operated the harm-causing instrumentality.
  - In terrorist acts, risk of liability extends to all those connected with the terrorists, their activities, their instrumentality, or their target.
  - For example, potential defendants for Sept. 11:
    - Managers of the World Trade Center (which could have expedited departures); designers and builders of WTC (who could have designed it to withstand attacks by fully fueled jet liners); bar owners in Florida (allegedly threats); state and local police agencies (which did not arrest terrorists involved in petty crimes to support themselves prior to the attacks); airlines (hijack); airline contractors (security at airports); New York City (reaction and response).

II. At least features of the tort system should be altered for terrorism claims.

- Eliminate joint and several liability and apportion damages.
  - Potential for catastrophic damages from a finding of minimal fractional liability imposes incredible pressure to settle, thereby incentivizing further claims and exacerbating the insurance crisis.
- Increase the standard for legal liability to gross negligence or recklessness.
  - Simple negligence is sufficient to protect defendants who cannot anticipate the risk of terrorist incidents.

- Simple negligence would discourage normal economic activity and encourage excessive risk-avoidance because loss is catastrophic.

- Eliminate punitive damages.
  - Punitives are predicated on fault, which does not apply except to the terrorists themselves.

Mr. Kavanaugh,

You will recall that the Centers for Faith-Based & Community Initiatives at HHS, HUD, DOJ, Labor and Education have received FOIA requests from the People for the American Way Foundation (PFAW) and the ACLU. Because of concerns that the various Departments would respond in different ways to the requestors, White House Counsel was asked to get involved, and you then accepted our offer of assistance in this matter. The following is a status report and an action plan.

Since the assignment, I have contacted the various departmental FOI offices to determine what they have received, what communication they have had with the requestors, what promises they have made, and what (if any) strategy they have developed for dealing with these requests. I have also reviewed the Freedom of Information Act and have spoken with two trained and experienced people regarding the applicable exemptions under the Act. I have learned the following to date:

DOJ/DOL/HUD/DoED - DOJ, DOL and HUD have received the same requests from the ACLU and the PFAW. The ACLU has asked that each department provide a copy of the report which the department sent to the "White House Office of Faith-Based and Community Initiatives submitted in response to Section 5 of Executive Order 13198..." ACLU also asked for "any and all documents in your possession which formed the basis, in whole or part, of any statements or fats (sic) contained in the report."

PFAW asked for "all reports and other documents generated by [the department] in response to, or otherwise containing the information sought by, the directive of Executive Order 13198 (Jan. 29, 2001) that [the department] conduct 'a department wide-audit to identify all existing barriers to the participation of faith-based and other community organizations in the delivery of social services by the department...' " PFAW expressly excluded from its request the documentation generated for the OMB "faith-based" survey which was completed in relatively close proximity to the departmental audit.

DoED received a request only from the ACLU, and it has already responded with a copy of its redacted report (see below on this issue). Other departments have been in verbal and/or written communication with the requestors, but have not provided a copy of the reports or any other documents. DOJ, DOL, and HUD are inclined only to give the requestors a copy of the report, and nothing else (including no supporting documentation). The FOI offices at Justice and Labor have informed me of their impression that sending their respective reports will satisfy the requestors.

HHS - On June 22, 2001, during the time HHS's Center was working on its audit, Elizabeth Seale, the Director of HHS' Center for F-B & CI, wrote a Memo to "All Involved in the recent OMB Survey Request." In this Memo, Ms. Seale stated that "[b]esides responding directly to detailed survey questions, your divisions provided a tremendous amount of supporting documentation." This Memo was leaked to PFAW, which then requested the "tremendous amount of supporting documentation." To date, Ms. Seale's staff has segregated 7-8 boxes of material, and HHS's FOI Office wants to invite PFAW to HHS's offices to review this material with an HHS FOI employee present. The process of establishing a date for this review was interrupted by my new involvement in this matter. HHS has not received an FOIA request from the ACLU.

Issues and Action Plan: On the due date for the audit reports, ED and HUD submitted to the White House their reports in draft form, since they had not yet been approved internally by the Departments. These reports, similar to the other departmental reports, contained certain recommendations for removing the barriers to participation in federal grant programs by faith-based organizations. The ED report was approved by the Department after modifications were made, and the recommendations initially included in the draft report were removed at the request of the White House (as part of its legislative strategy to promote HR 7 through a separate roll-out of the recommendations). I understand that this form of the report (modified for Departmental approval and stripped of recommendations) was the one provided to the requestor.

I have not seen the letter transmitting the ED report to the ACLU, and I am inclined not to request a copy or otherwise interfere with the progress made by Education on this matter. With respect to the request of HUD, I am inclined to provide the draft report which was submitted to the White House (rather than the "stripped" model). Regarding DOJ and DOL, I am also inclined to provide copies of the reports directly submitted to the WH on July 27 (due date).

We have given considerable thought as to the wisdom of interjecting ourselves directly into this process at this time. On the one hand, the dissemination of documents would be much better controlled if we did the disseminating, but on the other hand, taking this matter out of the hands of the FOI staff would certainly raise questions with the requestors (why are we involved, and what are we trying to hide). Given the facts that the DOJ and DOL offices are inclined to only give the reports and not any underlying documents, that the ACLU sent out "form" requests, and that the faith-based initiative is currently less important to the requestors than the "threat" to civil liberties posed by the anti-terrorism legislation, our thought now is to simply allow the FOI offices to proceed to answer the requests. These answers (other than HHS) will provide the reports but not any further documentation. For HHS, we will review the 7-8 boxes of documents and, if we find nothing harmful, we will authorize the HHS FOI office to proceed as it had planned.

After your review of this matter, please provide me with your direction. Thanks.

As I mentioned on the conf. call, the language Treasury proposed on insured losses doesn't make sense.

Imagine a terrorist incident nearly identical to the WTC. An injured party sues his employer and the bldg. owner for inadequate evacuation procedures, the airline for negligent security procedures, a flight school, the Virginia DMV, the Boston Airport Authority and Osama Bin Laden. The plaintiff seeks punitive damages against all of the plaintiffs. He alleges criminal actions by Bin Laden and by an agent of the airport authority. If the Treasury language is enacted, would this be a "civil action for insured losses." In other words, would any of our liability provisions apply?

First, there is no way to tell prior to litigation whether the case is one for "insured losses" b/c whether the damages would be insured depends, among other things, on whether the jury assigns liability to any insured party. A jury might reject claims against all of the defendants except Bin Laden, in which case there would be no "insured losses" at issue. Or, Bin Laden and the Airport Authority could be liable, but based on evidence that fits within a standard policy exclusion (i.e. criminal activity). The issue of whether damages awarded against any deft would be covered by an insurance policy would itself be a hotly litigated issue that would depend in part on evidence produced in the underlying case. The Treasury language, nonsensically, requires a judge to make this determination before he determines what law applies in the underlying case and before of the parties have presented the evidence at issue.

Second, the language would require a procedurally bizarre set of steps. The plaintiff would file in state ct. The deft would remove even though nothing in plaintiff's complaint would indicate whether they were insured losses or not (violating black letter rule that generally fed Q jurisdiction is available only on basis of plaintiff's affirmative case). On motion to remand, the plaintiff would argue that this isn't a case for an insured loss b/c the deft's conduct falls within an exclusion to its insurance policy (even though the parties haven't engaged in discovery and the plaintiff probably doesn't have the deft's insurance policy). The insurance company would be stuck in a terribly uncomfortable position b/c it would be forced to either 1) concede that the damages would be covered in order to keep the case in fed ct or 2) assert its rights under the policy which would increase the chances that the case would stay in state ct.

Third, even if it were possible to determine that the claims against some of the defts were action "for insured losses," how would you consolidate those claims and leave the plaintiff's remaining claims in state court? There is no logic for mandating procedures that would encourage a single plaintiff to litigate the same facts in two fora simultaneously. The entire point of consolidation is to ensure that one court handles all the cases.

Fourth, any punitive damages assessed against parties would by definition not be "insured losses" in any state in which punitives are not insurable. Many states mandate exclusions for particularly willful behavior b/c allowing defts to insure violates public policy). In these states, the Treasury language would allow the punitive damages limitation to apply only in cases in which it by definition could not apply.

Anyway -- you get the point.

Also, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation language is in brackets. Do we know why?

S. _____

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2001."

SEC. 2. CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS AND PURPOSE

(a) FINDINGS. The Congress finds that:

(1) The September 11 terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon have created widespread market uncertainties with regard to the risk of losses arising from future terrorist attacks;
(2) These market uncertainties have disrupted the current ability of private insurance companies to price insurance coverage for losses resulting from future attacks, thereby threatening the continued availability of affordable insurance for such losses;
(3) The unavailability of affordable insurance for terrorist acts in turn threatens the growth and stability of the U.S. economy, including impeding the ability of financial services providers to finance commercial and residential property acquisitions and new construction;
(4) In the past, the private insurance markets have shown an ability to expand their capacity in response to changed circumstances;
(5) In as much as terrorism is a national concern and terrorist attacks are attacks on the government and people of the United States, the federal government should provide financial assistance to limit immediate market disruptions, encourage economic stabilization and facilitate a transition to a viable market for private terrorism risk insurance.

(b) PURPOSE. The purpose of this Act is to provide for a temporary federal program of shared public and private compensation for insured losses resulting from future acts of terrorism in order to:

(1) address current market disruptions and ensure the continued widespread availability and affordability of such insurance; and
(2) allow a transitional period for the private markets to stabilize, resume pricing of such insurance and build capacity to absorb futures losses.

TITLE I – COMPENSATION FOR INSURED LOSSES FROM ACTS OF TERRORISM

SEC. 101. DEFINITIONS AND CERTIFICATION

For purposes of this Act –

(a) ACT OF TERRORISM –
The term "act of terrorism" means any act, jointly certified by the Secretary, the Secretary of State and the Attorney General, as a violent act or act dangerous to human life, property or infrastructure, within the United States, that appears to be committed by an individual or individuals acting on behalf of foreign agents or foreign interests as part of an effort to coerce the civilian population of the United States or to influence the policy or affect the conduct of the U. S. government by coercion. No act shall be certified as an act of terrorism if (1) the act is committed in the course of a war declared by the Congress of the United States or (2) if property damage resulting from the act does not exceed $25 million. Any joint certification under this subsection shall be final and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(b) INSURANCE COMPANY –
The term "insurance company" means any primary insurance company, licensed to do business in the United States, that has issued a policy covering an insured loss from an act of terrorism and that meets any other criteria the Secretary may prescribe. The term "insurance company" shall not include a reinsurer or provider of retrocessional insurance.

(d) INSURED LOSS –
The term "insured loss" means any loss in the United States covered by any type of property and casualty insurance policy or endorsement for commercial property, commercial liability, commercial automobile, workers' compensation, private passenger automobile and homeowners insurance. The term "insured loss" does not include any loss covered by any type of business interruption or life or health insurance policy.

(e) NON-ECONOMIC DAMAGES –
The term "non-economic damages" means damages for losses for physical and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigurement, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium, hedonic damages, injury to reputation, and all other non-pecuniary losses of any kind or nature.

(f) PERSON –
The term "person" means any individual or business or non-profit entity (including a partnership, limited liability company, corporation or association) or a trust or estate or a state or political subdivision of a state.

(g) PROGRAM –
The term "Program" means the Terrorism Insured Loss Shared Compensation Program established by this Act.

(h) PROPERTY DAMAGE –
The term "property damage" means physical injury to or destruction of tangible or intangible property, or loss of tangible or intangible property that has not been physically injured or destroyed but has been evacuated, withdrawn from, or otherwise rendered inaccessible.

(i) SECRETARY –
The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of the Treasury.

(j) STATE –
The term "State" shall mean any State of the United States and the District of Columbia, [the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, American Samoa, Guam, or any of the U.S. Virgin Islands].

(k) UNITED STATES –
The term "United States" means all States of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, American Samoa, Guam and the U. S. Virgin Islands.

SEC. 102. TERRORISM INSURED LOSS SHARED COMPENSATION PROGRAM

(a) IN GENERAL. A Terrorism Insured Loss Shared Compensation Program is hereby established in accordance with this Act. Notwithstanding any other provision of state or federal law, the Secretary is authorized to pay compensation in accordance with this Act to any person or persons for insured losses resulting from an act of terrorism.

(b) REQUIREMENTS FOR FEDERAL PAYMENT. Conditions for compensation under this Program for insured losses arising from an act of terrorism are as follows:
(1) [the insurance company must provide property and casualty insurance for acts of terrorism for insured losses covered by this Program and a person's insurance coverage for acts of terrorism may not be materially different from the terms, amounts, and other coverage limitations in the person's policy that apply to insured losses arising from non-terrorist acts];
(2) a person that suffers an insured loss as a result of an act of terrorism must file a claim with the person's insurance company;
(3) at the time of purchase and renewal of each policy, the insurance company must provide clear and conspicuous disclosure in the policy to the policy holder of the federal government's share of compensation payments for insured loss under the Program;
(4) the insurance company must process the claim according to its standard business practices and any procedures that the Secretary may prescribe; and
(5) the insurance company must pay the portion of the losses not covered by the Program under the schedule established in subsection (c) and must submit verification and certification of that payment, and must certify compliance with the conditions of this subsection, at the time the company files a claim with the Secretary.

(c) SHARED INSURED LOSS COVERAGE.

(1) The Secretary shall pay compensation [directly to or on behalf of the policyholder] for insured losses that result from an act of terrorism, in accordance with the following schedule and limitations:

(A) for acts of terrorism occurring on the date of enactment of this Act through December 31, 2002, 80 percent of the first $20 billion in insured losses and 90 percent of insured losses in excess of $20 billion;

(B) for acts of terrorism occurring on January 1, 2003 through December 31, 2003, 50 percent of the insured losses between $10 billion and $20 billion and 90 percent of insured losses in excess of $20 billion; and

(C) for acts of terrorism occurring on January 1, 2004 through December 31, 2004, 50 percent of insured losses between $20 billion and $40 billion and 90 percent of insured losses in excess of $40 billion.

(2) The Secretary shall announce the applicable percentage of insured losses to be paid by insurance companies, and may adjust as appropriate the applicable percentages, in accordance with the schedule and limitations contained in paragraph (1).

(3) If claims for insured losses from acts of terrorism exceed any of the threshold levels contained in paragraph (1), the Secretary shall reimburse or seek repayment, on a pro rata basis, from insurance companies that have submitted claims for insured losses on behalf of policy holders to ensure that, as of the end of each applicable time period referenced in paragraph (1), each such insurance company pays the applicable percentage of insured loss incurred during the applicable time period, in accordance with the schedule and limitations contained in paragraph (1) of this subsection.

(4) The Secretary, in his sole discretion, may determine the timing of any final netting of payments for insured losses under the Program, including payments due to the Secretary and to any insurance company, to effect the insured loss sharing established by this subsection.

(5) Any decision of the Secretary under this subsection shall be final.

(d) CAP ON ANNUAL LIABILITY. Notwithstanding section 102 (c) of this Act or any other provision of federal or state law -

(1) the Secretary shall not pay compensation under this Act in excess of $88 billion for insured losses occurring by December 31, 2002; $77 billion for insured losses occurring in 2003, and $64 billion for insured losses occurring in 2004;

(2) the Secretary shall notify Congress if claims under the Program exceed the Secretary's authority to pay and Congress shall determine the procedures for and source of any such payments; and

(3) no insurance company or companies shall be liable for more than $12 billion of insured losses incurred by December 31, 2002; $23 billion for insured losses incurred in 2003, and $36 billion for insured losses incurred in 2004.

(c) FUNDING – Necessary amounts are appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for 1) the Secretary to pay compensation to any person or persons pursuant to sections 102 or 106 and [2) for reasonable costs of administering the Program, not to exceed 1% of compensation paid under the Program].

SEC. 103. ADMINISTRATION OF CLAIMS FOR FEDERAL INSURED LOSS COMPENSATION UNDER PROGRAM

(a) GENERAL AUTHORITY. The Secretary shall have the powers and authorities necessary to carry out this Program, including authority to prescribe regulations and procedures establishing the manner in which insurance companies may file and certify claims for insured losses; to investigate, audit, adjust or settle claims under the Program and otherwise to implement the Program.

(b) SUBROGATION RIGHTS. The U.S. government shall have the right of subrogation or salvage at law or in equity to any payment made by the United States in connection with this Program.

(c) CONTRACT FOR SERVICES. The Secretary may employ persons or contract for services with third parties, as may be necessary to implement the Program.

(d) [CIVIL PENALTIES. The Secretary may assess civil penalties for failure to meet any required claims conditions. [Alternative: LIABILITY UNDER FALSE CLAIMS ACT. The provisions and penalties of the federal False Claims Act, 31 U.S.C. 3729 et seq shall apply to all claims for payment under this Program, including required conditions for payment].

SEC. 104. RELATIONSHIP OF INSURANCE PROGRAM WITH OTHER LAWS

(a) EXCLUSIVE DEFINITION. The definition of "act of terrorism" contained in section 101 of this Act shall be the exclusive definition for purposes of compensation for insured losses under this Act and shall preempt any inconsistent state law to the extent such law applies to any insurance policy relating to terrorism risk in the United States.

(b) [If a person receives compensation for an insured loss under this Program, the person shall not also receive a benefit for substantially the same loss under

1) chapter 443 of title 49, United States Code;
2) Title XII of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936 (46 U.S.C. 1281, et seq) and

3) section 201(b)(2) of Public Law 107-42 (September 22, 2001)]

SEC. 105. LIMITATION ON CIVIL ACTIONS.

(a) SUBJECT MATTER JURISDICTION. Notwithstanding any other law, [the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation] shall assign a single federal district court to conduct pre-trial and trial proceedings in all civil actions [for insured losses/ for property damage, personal injury or death] arising out of or resulting from a single act of terrorism as defined in section 101, and shall transfer all such pending civil actions to that district court. The district court [assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation] shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction over all such actions. For purposes of personal jurisdiction, the district court [assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation] shall be deemed to sit in all judicial districts in the United States.

(b) TRANSFER OF CASES FILED IN OTHER FEDERAL COURTS. Any civil action [for insured losses/ for property damage, personal injury, or death] arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a federal district court other than the federal district court [assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation] shall be transferred to the federal district court [assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation].

(c) REMOVAL OF CASES FILED IN STATE COURTS. Any civil action [for insured losses/ for property damage, personal injury, or death] arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a state court shall be removable to the federal district court [assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation].

(d) FEDERAL CAUSE OF ACTION. There shall exist a federal cause of action [for insured losses/ for property damage, personal injury, or death] arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism as defined in section 101. This cause of action shall be the exclusive remedy for claims for [insured loss/ property damage, personal injury, or death] arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism as defined in section 101. This [title] preempts all state causes of action of any kind otherwise available arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism as defined in section 101.

(e) SUBSTANTIVE LAW. The standard of care for the federal cause of action in subsection (d) of this section shall be gross negligence. Unless otherwise specified in this [title], the district court shall derive other substantive principles of liability for the federal cause of action from the common law.

(f) NON-ECONOMIC DAMAGES. Each defendant shall be liable only for the amount of non-economic damages allocated to the defendant in direct proportion to the percentage of responsibility of the defendant for the harm to the claimant. No plaintiff may recover non-economic damages unless the plaintiff suffered physical harm.

(g) OFFSET. In determining the amount of any money damages available under this [title], the court shall offset any compensation or benefits received or entitled to be received by the plaintiff or plaintiffs from the United States or any federal agency thereof in response to or as a result of the act of terrorism.

(i) PUNITIVE DAMAGES. Punitive damages, exemplary damages, and other damages not intended to compensate the plaintiff for actual losses shall not be available in any civil action subject to this [title].

(j) STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS. Any claim [for an insured loss/ for property damage, personal injury, or death] arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism as defined in section 101 shall be filed within one year. This period shall be computed from the date of discovery of the injury by the plaintiff or the date such injury should have been discovered by the plaintiff through the exercise of reasonable diligence, whichever is earlier.

(k) CLAIMS AGAINST TERRORISTS. Nothing in this section shall in any way limit the ability of any [person, government or other entity] to seek any form of recovery from [any person, government or other entity] that was a participant in, or aider and abettor of, any act of terrorism as defined in section 101.

SEC. 106. TERMINATION OF FEDERAL TERRORISM LOSS COMPENSATION

(a) The Program established by this Act shall terminate on December 31, 2004.

(b) Nothwithstanding subsection (a), the Secretary may take any actions necessary to ensure payment, reimbursement, or adjustment of compensation for insured losses incurred within the time periods referenced in section 102(c) of this Act.

The Free Congress Commentary Obedient Democrats
By Thomas L. Jipping

Senate Democrats are playing hardball in their obstruction campaign against President Bush's judicial nominees.

Mind you, Republicans thought they were the ones playing hardball recently by blocking appropriations bills to force confirmations. But most people equate government spending with government activity and, even more since Sept. 11, people want to see government activity. According to the Washington Times, Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle met with President Bush on Oct. 22 and said simply that "Mr. Bush needed the spending bills more than Senate Democrats did." Hence that article's title: "Daschle Wins Struggle Over Judicial Nominations."

The judiciary must be an important front in the war against terrorism. President Bush has nominated highly qualified individuals to the U.S. District Court in jurisdictions such as Washington, D.C., where they will be particularly needed in this effort. These include Richard Leon, a former deputy assistant attorney general and special assistant U.S. attorney, who is still waiting for a hearing. The judiciary cannot play this important role when more than 100 full-time positions sit vacant.

Even so, Senate Democrats are simply doing what they're told by their far-left constituencies. Groups such as the leftist Alliance for Justice have switched from demanding confirmations when vacancies were low under President Clinton to now opposing confirmations when vacancies are high under President Bush. Hypocrisy, however, is a small price to pay for a judiciary that will deliver your political agenda.

Just look at AFJ's complaints over the last few years compared to the current situation. In their 2000 judicial selection report, AFJ complained that "only eight of Clinton's 26 appellate nominations" were confirmed.

This year, the Senate has confirmed just four of President Bush's 25 appellate nominations. One of those, Roger Gregory, was originally a Clinton nominee and another, Sharon Prost, a former Judiciary Committee staffer.

AFJ complained that "the Republican-controlled Senate confirmed only 39 judges" last year. This year, the Democrat-controlled Senate has confirmed just 12 of President Bush's 60 nominees.

In their 1999 judicial selection report, AFJ complained that "the year ended with more circuit nominees still waiting for a Senate vote than were confirmed." This year, the Senate has confirmed four circuit nominees while 21 still wait for a Senate vote.

AFJ complained that judicial vacancies only declined from 64 to 58 during 1999. This year, judicial vacancies have increased from 80 to 105.

AFJ complained that "nearly a quarter of all seats [on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit] were vacant at year's end." By the end of this year, half the seats on the Sixth Circuit, one-third the seats on the D.C. and 10th Circuits, and four of 15 seats on the Fourth Circuit will be vacant.

In its 1998 judicial selection report, AFJ complained that "the Judiciary Committee failed to process or take a vote on 17 nominees and the Senate failed to vote on four others." This year, the Judiciary Committee has held a hearing on just 14 of President Bush's 60 nominees. Though the Senate has confirmed an average of 39 nominees by November 1 over the past 20 years, this year the Senate has confirmed just 12 nominees.

AFJ complained that there were "50 vacancies on the federal bench" at adjournment. Vacancies today are 108 percent higher.

In July 1999, with just 66 judicial vacancies, AFJ president Nan Aron wrote in the San Francisco Chronicle that the president "has a duty to fill judicial vacancies and appoint jurists who share his views." President Bush is attempting to do just that. Now, however, these same left-wing activists are singing a different tune and their obedient Senate Democrats are standing in the courthouse door.

Thomas L. Jipping is vice president for legal policy at the Free Congress Foundation.

Re: CFA Plan Talking Points

Plan Summary

- If an insurer experiences losses due to a terrorist attack greater than 5 percent of its surplus (as of December 31, 2001), then the insurer would be eligible for federal low or no interest loans with a term up to 30 years.

- Repayment of any such loans would be through a surcharge on all property-causality insurers, thereby spreading the repayment burden industry-wide.

Analysis

1) Entails Long-term Federal Government Involvement

- In contrast to the administration's view that any Federal involvement should be temporary and should help to build private sector capacity to absorb risks, this approach may keep the Federal Government involved in the insurance industry for 30 years.

2) Provides a Disincentive for Insurance Companies to Accumulate Surplus

- Since the low or no interest loan becomes available only when losses are greater than 5 percent of an insurer's surplus, each insurer will face an incentive to keep a smaller surplus;.
  - In other words, the lower is your capital relative to your risks, the more likely you are to receive a low or no interest loan.
- Ultimately, this weakens the capacity of the industry to absorb risk.

3) Provides an Incentive for Insurers to Take High Risks and Disincentive to Be Prudent

- Since the industry as a whole is assessed a surcharge in order to pay for the loans to the weak companies, the strong are taxed through the surcharge to pay for the weak. Insurers will realize this and that give them an incentives individually to reduce their capital and take more risks.
- These types of ex-post assessment schemes were used in the 1920s for state deposit insurance systems and each such system went bankrupt.

Bottom Line: The CFA plan is likely to undermine rather than strengthen the private sector's ability to absorb risk and provide terrorist risk insurance.

SEC 807. LIMITATIONS ON CIVIL ACTIONS.

(a) SUBJECT MATTER JURISDICTION. Notwithstanding any other law, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall assign a single federal district court to conduct pre-trial and trial proceedings in all civil actions for property damage, personal injury or death arising out of or resulting from a single act of terrorism as defined in section 803, and shall transfer all such pending civil actions to that district court. The district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction over all such actions. For purposes of personal jurisdiction, the district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall be deemed to sit in all judicial districts in the United States.

(b) TRANSFER OF CASES FILED IN OTHER FEDERAL COURTS. Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a federal district court other than the federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall be transferred to the federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation.

(c) REMOVAL OF CASES FILED IN STATE COURTS. Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a state court shall be removable to the federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation.

(d) FEDERAL CAUSE OF ACTION. There shall exist a federal cause of action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism as defined in section 803. This cause of action shall be the exclusive cause of action and remedy for claims for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism as defined in section 803. This title preempts all state causes of action of any kind otherwise available arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism as defined in section 803.

(e) SUBSTANTIVE LAW. The standard of care for the federal cause of action in subsection (d) of this section shall be gross negligence. Unless otherwise specified in this title, the district court shall derive other substantive principles of liability for the federal cause of action from the principles of the common law.

(f) NON-ECONOMIC DAMAGES. Each defendant shall be liable only for the amount of non-economic damages allocated to the defendant in direct proportion to the percentage of responsibility of the defendant for the harm to the claimant. No plaintiff may recover non-economic damages unless the plaintiff suffered physical harm.

(g) OFFSET. In determining the amount of any money damages available under this title, the court shall offset any compensation or benefits received or entitled to be received by the plaintiff or plaintiffs from any collateral source, including the United States or any federal agency thereof, in response to or as a result of the act of terrorism.

(i) PUNITIVE DAMAGES. Punitive damages, exemplary damages, and other damages not intended to compensate the plaintiff for actual losses shall not be available in any civil action subject to this title.

(j) STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS. Any claim for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism as defined in section 803 shall be filed within one year. This period shall be computed from the date of discovery of the injury by the plaintiff or the date such injury should have been discovered by the plaintiff through the exercise of reasonable diligence, whichever is earlier.

(k) CLAIMS AGAINST TERRORISTS. Nothing in this section shall in any way limit the ability of any plaintiff to seek any form of recovery from any person, government or other entity that was a participant in, or aider and abettor of, any act of terrorism as defined in section 803.

Proposed Legal Procedures for Future Mass Tort Terrorism Incidents

- The American legal system has long employed special procedures for mass tort cases that otherwise threaten to overwhelm the legal system.

- Fair and expeditious procedures are especially important in mass tort situations arising from terrorist incidents because the federal government is likely to have significant incentives to relieve businesses of the consequences of liability resulting from a terrorist attack. In many cases, the government will have no practical options other than to only accept liability on behalf of the private sector, as it did following the September 11 attacks. In these cases, the price for the government's failure to provide fair and reasonable procedures before the attack will be paid by the federal taxpayer.

- The potential risk to the federal fisc is particularly high if the federal government agrees to provide a federal backstop for purposes of insurance coverage. In these cases, the federal government is agreeing to directly accept the risk of unmanageable or overzealous litigation.

- The Administration has proposed modest and reasonable procedures for future mass tort terrorism cases that would help resolve such cases in a fair and equitable manner.

  - First*, all tort cases arising out of a terrorism incident would be consolidated in a single federal court and decided under a uniform federal cause of action.

    - A single federal court and a uniform standard of liability are necessary to ensure that the legal system is not overwhelmed by multiple cases in multiple courts in multiple states -- with similar claims in multiple forums decided under widely varying standards for liability, causation, defenses, and damages.

    - Consolidation of cases in a single court is a common procedure in mass tort cases and was a central feature of the legislation recently enacted by Congress for the tort cases arising out of the September 11 attacks.

  - Second, punitive damages would be unavailable and non-economic damages would be allowed only in proportion to the percentage of the defendant's responsibility.

    - In most mass tort cases, only a limited pool of resources will be available to plaintiffs who prove liability (whether because of settlement or bankruptcy).

    - Because of the limited pool of resources, it would be grossly inequitable and unfair to allow one plaintiff or class of plaintiffs to receive an excessive award that may preclude (or greatly limit) recovery by other similarly situated plaintiffs.

- Even for defendants who face no possibility of bankruptcy, the possibility of massive punitive or non-economic damages creates a pressure on solvent defendants to settle even unmeritorious cases.

- Provisions for proportional liability are less restrictive than the provisions that would apply in many state courts and are essential to ensuring that American businesses are not liable for non-economic harms caused by the terrorists themselves.

Third, the amount of a plaintiff's award would be reduced by the amount of compensation the plaintiff has received or is entitled to receive from the government and from first-party insurers, including property and health insurers, for injuries arising out of the terrorism incident.

- This procedure, which Congress adopted for the victims claims process applicable to individual cases arising out of the September 11 terrorist attacks, will (i) ensure that plaintiffs are compensated for their losses, yet also prevent double recovery by plaintiffs and (ii) protect legitimate businesses and liability insurers from massive class judgments. This procedure thus would help preserve the limited pool of defendant resources available for uninsured damages suffered by plaintiffs in mass tort cases.

- The procedure again is consistent with the principle that first-party private insurance and, where necessary, standard government benefits have been (and should be) the primary means for promptly and appropriately compensating the parties injured in a terrorism attack.

- Even in ordinary tort cases, many states offset past and prospective insurance benefits paid or payable to the plaintiff against the plaintiff's recovery.

Fourth, the standard for liability in such cases would be gross negligence.

- That standard of care is appropriate because the wrongdoers in mass terrorism incidents are, by definition, the terrorists themselves, not the legitimate bystander property and business owners. A simple negligence standard would generate hydraulic pressure towards a massive settlement and/or bankruptcy, yet legitimate businesses should not be forced to bankruptcy as a result of damage and injuries caused by terrorists, at least absent serious wrongdoing on the part of these legitimate businesses.

- This standard is consistent with the principle that first-party private insurance and, where necessary, standard government benefits have been (and should be) the primary means for promptly and appropriately compensating the parties injured in a terrorism attack. Through these resources, injured parties will receive appropriate care and compensation without resort to an unwieldy and inefficient judicial process that would trigger widespread bankruptcies.

- Because of the devastating effect that a liability judgment would cause for defendants in a mass tort case, a simple negligence standard for terrorism cases would inevitably discourage normal economic activity, particularly in locales that are susceptible to terrorist attacks.

- Taken together, these procedures will help avoid bankruptcies and the widespread economic uncertainty that otherwise would result from potentially unlimited liability in the wake of a mass tort terrorism incident. The procedures will ensure an equitable and orderly litigation process for mass tort cases that is fair for plaintiffs and defendants alike. And the procedures will help provide economic stability and predictability to businesses and insurance companies that must attempt to forecast the risks and potential costs of future terrorism incidents.

The Senate staffers requested a document that would compare the liability proposals with the provisions of the Airline Act. Unless anyone suggests changes to the attached, we will plan to send it to Senate staffers later this afternoon (around 5:00). Thanks.

Section 809
("Procedures for Civil Actions")

Analogues to Air Transportation Act Provisions

- Consolidation
  - Section 408(b) of the Air Transportation Act consolidates all cases arising out of the September 11 attacks in a single federal court.
  - Section 809 (a)-(c) of the proposed bill would consolidate all cases arising out of a mass terrorism incident in a single federal court.
- Punitive Damages
  - Section 405(b)(5) of the Air Transportation Act precludes recovery of punitive damages in the victims' claims process, and Section 408(a) limits any recovery against air carriers to the limits of their liability policies.
  - Section 809(e) of the proposed bill would preclude recovery of punitive damages, and would not cap damages against any defendant.
- Offset
  - Section 405(b)(6) of the Air Transportation Act requires that recovery by a claimant in the victims' claims process be reduced by the amount of collateral source compensation the plaintiff has received or is entitled to receive.
  - Section 809(f) of the proposed bill would require that a plaintiff's recovery be reduced by the amount of collateral source compensation the plaintiff has received or is entitled to receive.
- Non-Economic Damages
  - Section 408(a) of the Air Transportation Act limits recovery against air carriers to the limits of their liability policies.
  - The proposed bill would not limit or cap the liability of any particular defendant. Rather, as a more limited measure to help preserve the pool of defendants' assets in a mass tort incident and allow for an equitable distribution to successful plaintiffs, Section 809(g) of the proposed bill would require that non-economic damages be awarded in proportion to the percentage of the harm caused by the defendant and only to plaintiffs who have suffered physical injury. (The proposed bill is more modest than many proposals: It would not eliminate non-economic damages entirely, nor would it impose proportional fault for economic damages.)

- Substantive Standard for Liability

  - Section 408(b) of the Air Transportation Act provides that the substantive standard for liability is to be derived from the law of the State where the incident occurred.

  - Because the procedure in Section 408(b) of the Air Transportation Act could be unwieldy and unfair in a mass terrorism incident that occurs in multiple states, Section 809(h) of the proposed bill would establish a single federal standard of gross negligence. The gross negligence standard is a middle-ground standard between simple negligence and intentional wrongdoing and is particularly appropriate in tort cases where, by definition, the injury has been caused by the criminal acts of an intervening third party, not by legitimate bystander property and business owners.

Subject: legal advice requested

As I mentioned to Brad, the New York group (Bridge, Gary, Austin et al) needs some fairly urgent legal guidance and has asked me to "translate" the question to WHC. Tim said that you were the appropriate contacts.

I'll provide the background my email -- we can discuss in greater detail when Brad gets back from his meetings.

The contractors cleaning up the WTC debris site have not yet signed contracts with the city. They were called in on an emergency basis and have been removing debris without any formal agreements. They are threatening to stop the clean up because their lawyers are advising them that their liability risk could run in the billions of dollars. They are particularly concerned about environmental and professional liability.
(There are hazardous materials on site; the retention wall for the Hudson River is close to the clean up, etc.)

The contractors have demanded indemnification from the city for any liability in excess of whatever insurance they can procure for work on the site. The city is, in turn, attempting to purchase as much insurance as possible for an umbrella policy, but is having difficulty finding willing insurers (even though the fed govt is required to pick up the cost of the premiums).

Schumer and Clinton are threatening to offer legislation that would require the fed govt to indemnify the city for any liability above the amount of available insurance (could be billions of dollars). The Administration obviously is very nervous about this potential exposure and particularly about the wisdom of relieving the city of liability even though the city has effective control over the site.

Several questions came up at a mtg this afternoon, which I can discuss with you in greater detail:

1. Currently, the fed govt's role in the clean up is to write checks, monitor and advise the clean up through FEMA engineers, exercise some control over the site in connection with the criminal investigation, etc. This city, however, has primary control over the clean up and generally FEMA executes agreements with the state that require the state to indemnify the fed govt against any liability.

However, assuming we couldn't/ wouldn't collect from the state, what is the fed govt's potential exposure for any accidents? I assume FEMA's GC could give some good guidance on this.

2. If the fed govt agrees to indemnify the city, what is the govt's exposure? Would indemnification be accomplished through the federal tort claims act or some other mechanism? If the city violated some environmental statute and had liability to the state or fed govt, could the fed govt be on the hook for that amount?

3. If the fed govt assumes effective control for the clean up by effectively making the Corps the general contractor, what is the liability risk? I assume the Corps' GC would know -- to what extent is the fed govt on the hook for any property or environmental damage it might cause when it runs an operation?

I hope that makes sense. Let's talk in greater detail when Brad gets back.

- Punitive Damages
  - Section 405(b)(5) of the Air Transportation Act precludes recovery of punitive damages in the victims' claims process, and Section 408(a) limits any recovery against air carriers to the limits of their liability policies.
  - Section 809(e) of the proposed bill would preclude recovery of punitive damages, and would not cap damages against any defendant.
- Offset
  - Section 405(b)(6) of the Air Transportation Act requires that recovery by a claimant in the victims' claims process be reduced by the amount of collateral source compensation the plaintiff has received or is entitled to receive.
  - Section 809(f) of the proposed bill would require that a plaintiff's recovery be reduced by the amount of collateral source compensation the plaintiff has received or is entitled to receive.
- Non-Economic Damages
  - Section 408(a) of the Air Transportation Act limits recovery against air carriers to the limits of their liability policies and applies state law limits on joint and several liability.
  - The proposed bill would not limit or cap the liability of any particular defendant (the limit in the Air Transportation Act, which is tied to insurance coverage, would not make sense for future incidents, as it would create perverse incentives). Rather, as a more limited measure to help preserve the pool of defendants' assets in a mass tort incident and allow for an equitable distribution to successful plaintiffs, Section 809(g) of the proposed bill would require that non-economic damages be awarded in proportion to the percentage of the harm caused by the defendant and only to plaintiffs who have suffered physical injury. (The proposed bill is more modest than many proposals: It would not eliminate non-economic damages entirely, nor would it impose proportional fault for economic damages.)

- Substantive Standard for Liability

  - Section 408(b) of the Air Transportation Act provides that the substantive standard for liability is to be derived from the law of the State where the incident occurred.

  - Because the procedure in Section 408(b) of the Air Transportation Act could be unwieldy and unfair in a mass terrorism incident that occurs in multiple states, Section 809(h) of the proposed bill would establish a single federal standard of gross negligence. The gross negligence standard is a middle-ground standard between simple negligence and intentional wrongdoing and is particularly appropriate in tort cases where, by definition, the injury has been caused by the criminal acts of an intervening third party, not by legitimate bystander property and business owners.

To ensure that defendants are responsible only for the damages caused by their actions, non-economic damages (i.e. pain and suffering) should be allowed only in proportion to the percentage of the defendant's responsibility.

- Without this provision, a court could apply hold any defendant "jointly and severally" liable for the full amount of the plaintiff's non-economic damages, even for those damages unrelated to the defendant's actions or attributable to the terrorists.

- Non-economic damages frequently comprise __% of the damages assessed in a case. For example, parties have estimated that non-economic damages in the World Trade Center attack could easily exceed $____. If any defendant, even the marginally involved, could be made to pay the full extent of non-economic damages, these damages could easily threaten to bankrupt hundreds of legitimate businesses many times over.

- Limitations on joint and several liability are fairly commonplace. At least thirty-seven states have enacted some form of proportional liability. Indeed, seventeen states have adopted proportional liability even for economic damages. Another eight states have adopted proportional liability for economic and non-economic damages for any marginally-involved defendant (e.g., one found to be less than 50% at fault).[1]

- Reasonable damage limitations have precedent in the airline bill. In that legislation, Congress capped each defendant's damages at the amount of its liability coverage, a provision that will have the effect of effectively eliminating joint and several liability for both economic and non-economic damages.

[1] Many of these limitations were adopted in the mid-1980s in response to an insurance crisis making it difficult for defendants – even those exercising caution in their business dealing – to obtain liability coverage. See 1986 Tort Reform Legislation: A Systematic Evaluation of Caps on Damages and Limitations on Joint and Several Liability, 73 Cornell L. Rev. 628 (1988). In addition, many states provide an absolute cap on the non-economic damages available to any single plaintiff. See, e.g., COLO. REV. STAT. § 13-21-102.5 (1987) ($ 250,000 unless clear and convincing evidence indicates greater damages warranted; in no case more than $ 500,000); FLA. STAT. ANN. § 768.80 (West Supp. 1988) ($ 450,000); HAW. REV. STAT. § 663-867 (Supp. 1987) ($ 375,000 except for specified types of torts such as strict and products liability, intentional torts, and environmental pollution torts); MD. CTS. & JUD. PROC. CODE ANN. § 11-108 (Supp. 1987) ($ 350,000); MONT. CODE ANN. § 2-9-108 (1987) ($ 750,000 for each claim, $ 1.5 million for each occurrence against political subdivision; statute terminates in 1991); N.H. REV. STAT. ANN. § 508:4-d (Supp. 1987) ($ 875,000); S.C. CODE ANN. § 15-78-120 (Law. Co-op. Supp. 1987) (limits total damages to $ 250,000 per plaintiff and $ 500,000 per occurrence against political subdivision).

Explanation of Per Company Payments Cap Based on 10% of Direct Premiums

For the first 12 months of the terrorism risk insurance program, the proposal would provide for an absolute cap on an individual company's exposure to losses resulting from acts of terrorism equal to 10% of direct (gross) premiums collected for all lines of commercial or residential property and casualty coverage during the preceeding 12 months.

The proposal would establish firm parameters for a company's outside losses from underwriting terrorism risk insurance during the early stages of the federal program, thereby providing greater certainty of risk exposure, particularly for those insurers writing P&C policies on high risk properties.

The cap would apply separately to commercial and residential lines. Thus if an insurer's policyholders suffered $100 million dollars of commercial P&C loss from a terrorist act, and had collected $900 million in P&C premia for all commercial lines and $600 million in premia for all residential lines, the cap would be $90 million. The insurer would pay $90 million in claims and the federal government would pay $10 million.

Aggregate industry exposure under this approach would be $32 billion, based on last year's P&C premiums, which totalled $320 billion. ($139 billion for commercial lines and $181 billion for residential.) Aggregate commercial exposure would be $13.9 billion and aggregate residential exposure would be $18.1 billion.

Losses would be calculated net of resinsurance. Thus the cap would maintain incentives for primary insurers to reinsure their exposures up to the cap.

It is possible that the cap would result in an individual company or companies receiving payments even though the $10 billion industry aggregate deductible had not been reached. The cap has been set at a relatively high 10% of premia to mitigate against this happening. Using the 10% benchmark, preliminary analysis indicates that only one of the major P&C insurers would have exceeded the cap as a result of losses on September 11. (see attached chart)

This proposal resulted from a suggestion by Ron Ferguson, CEO of General Re, made during the Banking Committee hearings in response to suggestions by CFA and others that there should be a per company cap based on a percentage of the company's surplus. The problem with a cap based on surplus is that it rewards poorly capitalized companies. The advantages of using premia is that the more a company increases premia, the higher its cap. In addition, premia are readily ascertainable and verifiable.

Office of the Attorney General

28 CFR Part 104

CIV 104P; AG Order No.

RIN: 1105-AA79

"September 11th Victim Compensation Fund of 2001"

AGENCY: Civil Division, Justice.

ACTION: Notice of Inquiry and Advance Notice of Rulemaking

SUMMARY:

Shortly after the September 11, 2001 terrorist attack, the President signed legislation authorizing compensation to any individual (or the personal representative of a deceased individual) who was physically injured or killed as a result of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes on that day. This Notice of Inquiry and Advance Notice of Rulemaking seeks public comment on a range of matters critical to implementing a program that will carry out the intent of the legislation of providing compensation to victims.

DATES:

Comments in response to this notice are due by November __, 2001.

ADDRESSES:

Comments should be submitted by email to: victimcompensation.comments@usdoj.gov, or by telefax to 301-519-5956. Telefaxes should be limited to 15 pages. Comments may also be mailed to Kenneth L. Zwick, Director, Office of Management Programs, Civil Division, U.S. Department of Justice, Main Building, Room 3140, 950 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Washington, DC 20530. However, in view of the short time period for comments and the current delays in the delivery of mail, it is strongly recommended that comments be submitted by email or telefax. Comments received are public records. The name and address of the commenter should be included with all submissions. The text of comments, along with the name and address of the commenter, will be available on the Victim Compensation Fund web site, www.usdoj.gov/victimcompensation. Comments will also be available for public inspection at a reading room in Washington, DC. Arrangements to visit the reading room must be made in advance by calling 888-714-3385 (TDD: 888-560-0844).

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Kenneth L. Zwick, Director, Office of Management Programs, Civil Division, U.S. Department of Justice, Main Building, Room 3140, 950 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Washington, DC 20530, telephone 888-714-3385 (TDD 888-560-0844).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background.

The President signed the "September 11 Victim Compensation Fund of 2001" (the "Fund") into law on September 22, 2001, as Title IV of Public Law 107-42 ("Air Transportation Safety and System Stabilization Act") (the "Act"). The purpose of this Fund is to provide compensation to eligible individuals who were physically injured as a result of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001, and compensation through a "personal representative" for those who were lost in the crashes. Generally, eligibility extends to: a) individuals on the planes at the time of the crashes (other than the terrorists); and b) individuals present at the World Trade Center, the Pentagon or the site of the crash in Pennsylvania at the time of the crashes as well as those present in the immediate aftermath of the crashes.

The Attorney General, acting through a Special Master appointed by the Attorney General, is responsible for the administration of the Fund. By law, regulations addressing certain administrative matters should be issued within 90 days of enactment (i.e., by December 21, 2001). Section 407 of the Act provides that the Attorney General, in consultation with the Special Master, promulgate regulations on four matters by December 21, 2001:

(1) forms to be used in submitting claims;

(2) the information to be included in such forms;

(3) procedures for hearing and the presentation of evidence; and

(4) procedures to assist an individual in filing and pursuing claims under this title.

In addition, section 407 authorizes, but does not require, the Attorney General to issue additional rules to implement the program.

After determining whether an individual is an eligible claimant under the Act and applicable regulations, the Special Master is to determine the extent of harm to the claimant, and then determine the amount of compensation to be awarded based on "the harm to the claimant, the facts of the claim, and the individual circumstances of the claimant." The law also provides that the Special Master is to make a final determination on any claim within 120 days of its receipt and, if an award is made, to authorize payment within 20 days thereafter. The determinations of the Special Master are final and are not reviewable by any court.

The Fund is designed to provide a no-fault alternative to tort litigation for individuals who were physically injured or killed as a result of the aircraft highjackings and crashes on September 11, 2001. Individuals who may have suffered other kinds of losses as a result of those events (e.g., those without identifiable physical injuries but who lost employment) are not included in this special program. However, a claimant who files for compensation must at the time of filing waive any right to file a civil action (or to be a party to an action) in any Federal or State court for damages sustained as a result of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001.

Claims with the Fund must be filed within two years after the initial regulations are promulgated. Payments from the Fund are made by the United States government, which in turn obtains the right of subrogation to each award.

General approach to regulations that must be promulgated by December 21, 2001.

a) The purpose of this notice.

As noted above, the Act requires that the Attorney General promulgate regulations in consultation with the Special Master. The Department is currently considering potential candidates for the Special Master position. In addition, the Department is in the process of seeking information from state and local agencies, as well as many other sources, that may be useful in crafting proposed regulations. In the meantime, however, the Department considers it very important that, to the extent feasible given the time frames involved, the public be fully involved in the development of any rules established under the program -- including, but not limited to, potential beneficiaries of the program, their employers, the legal community, and all those who have stepped up to help those impacted. For this reason, the Department has decided to issue this notice to obtain as much public comment as feasible before issuing those rules that it is required to promulgate by December 21, 2001. This notice describes the issues involved, identifies possible courses of action, and invites comment on a number of points.

b) The Department's plan to issue implementing regulations by December 21, 2001 as "interim final" rules.

Although the Attorney General, in consultation with the Special Master, is to issue certain implementing rules by December 21, 2001, the law does not specifically define how such rules must be issued. Your comments on those procedural plans would be most welcome.

The Department is considering promulgating the initial rules on December 21, 2001 as "interim final" rules. "Interim final" rules are "final" rules which can be relied upon (and challenged) under the law, but which also become the subject of a new round of immediate comment and review – essentially, asking the public for comment on whether the newly-adopted rules should be amended. The Department wishes to begin processing claims as soon as possible. This procedural methodology should permit to program to commence operations as soon as practicable. The Department welcomes comment in this regard.

c) How to comment in response to this notice.

There are a number of issues presented in the course of this discussion, and this notice only provides you 21 days to comment. However, the Department only has a limited time to evaluate the information received in response to this notice. Accordingly, the Department would appreciate comments that are transmitted as soon as possible and in a form that is as succinct as possible. As indicated at the beginning of this notice, we encourage you to use e-mail and telefax for this purpose, particularly given the current problems associated with the delivery of mail to government offices in the Washington, DC area.

While the Department endeavors to review every submission it receives in response to this notice, from handwritten letters to copies of scholarly legal articles and books, it reserves the right under the circumstances to set aside that information which it simply lacks the time to consider before the Department must make its determination, even if that information is received before the end of the comment period. The Department urges commenters to submit materials as early in the comment period as possible.

If the Department cannot fully consider all the comments it receives before it must act, the comments will be retained by the Department for subsequent consideration as appropriate. The Department intends to provide another opportunity for notice and comment after the initial rules are issued in December; any information submitted to the Department in response to this notice which cannot be reviewed before the December rules are issued will be considered during the subsequent review. Similarly, to the extent that any issues addressed in comments are not addressed in this initial regulatory action, those comments will be retained by the Special Master for appropriate consideration as the program is implemented.

d) Will there also be meetings and hearings to gather information before December 21, 2001?

The Department anticipates that it may have many requests for meetings from individuals and groups who wish to provide input on these rules, and is likely going to want to initiate such meetings on its own as well. The Department will endeavor to accommodate any such requests as best it can given its many important obligations, the available time, and any applicable legal requirements.

As a matter of general policy, the Department has declined to take a position prohibiting so-called "ex parte communications" in informal rulemaking proceedings. 28 CFR 50.17. Such a prohibition would inhibit the ability of the Department to obtain valuable information, and would be inconsistent with the nature of informal rulemaking under 5 U.S.C. 553 (as contrasted with so-called "formal" rulemaking under 5 U.S.C. 554, which is handled in a quasi-judicial manner). Consistent with the policy set forth in 28 CFR 50.17, the Department will endeavor to add notes on any relevant meetings or other communications to the record.

e) The effective date of the rules to be promulgated December 21, 2001.

The law generally provides that rules not go into effect for at least 30 days absent "good cause" to waive this requirement, and in some cases even more time is required to permit an opportunity for Congressional review.

The Department is seeking comment on an appropriate effective date for these rules, including whether "good cause" exists to waive the 30 day requirement. Although the Department would prefer not to waive the APA=s requirements for at least a 30 day delay in the effective date, it is prepared to assert that there is good cause for taking such an action should it be warranted in light of your comments. The Department welcomes comments on other alternatives. For example, a 30 day effective date delay might not significantly hinder implementation of the program, and would provide time for some initial counseling and other information dissemination prior to any claims being filed.

f) Issues relating to the rules to be promulgated by December 21, 2001.

The Department welcomes comment on whether the rules that must be issued by December 21, 2001 should cover matters beyond the four that are listed in the statute. One reason for making the set of regulations to be published in December as comprehensive as possible is the possibility that there are some potential claimants who have already filed or will soon be filing tort suits seeking damages arising out of the September 11 incidents. These potential claimants do not have the option of waiting to see the determination of the Special Master in response to a compensation claim as to their eligibility for compensation, or as to the amount of compensation that will be provided, before they must decide whether to withdraw their pending civil litigation. Rather, section 405(c)(3)(B)(ii) of the Compensation Act provides that, if an individual is already a party to a civil action when the regulations enumerated in section 407 are promulgated, the individual cannot submit a compensation claim under this federal program unless he or she withdraws from the legal action within 90 days from the date the rules are promulgated. Without having information about how the compensation program works, such individuals might not view the compensation program as a viable alternative to continuing their litigation, potentially reducing the effectiveness of the program in serving the community of victims.

The Department believes that the number of individuals who have already filed a civil claim, or who have irrevocably committed to doing so in the next few months, may well be very small. The Department would welcome information on this point. The Department would also welcome comment as to whether the statutory requirement that a claimant "withdraws" from such action by 90 days after the date the initial rules are promulgated was intended to preclude such a claimant from refiling or rejoining a civil action: a) should the claimant ultimately elect not to file a compensation claim under the Federal program; or b) if the claimant is determined by the Special Master not to be eligible to file a claim. Also in this regard, the Department would welcome comment on whether the interpretation given to the statute in a particular case would be binding upon a court considering a claim for damages, and whether it would be appropriate or inappropriate for the Department to issue an interpretive rule on this point.

In short, potential claimants have an interest in knowing as soon as possible how the program is likely to operate in their circumstances. Litigation to obtain damages, particularly in a mass tort context, can be a lengthy, uncertain and complex process, with substantial risk and expense. The purpose of this compensation program is to offer all potential claimants a more expeditious, predictable and less complex alternative to that process. The Department recognizes that unless and until it can provide some certainty about how the compensation award program will work, some claimants may be reluctant to commit themselves to the compensation fund as an alternative to tort awards.

Despite this incentive to promptly "flesh out" the details of the program, there are also countervailing concerns. For example, there a number of complex questions that need to be addressed by the Special Master in determining compensation awards for individuals who file claims, and many of those questions cannot be anticipated in advance. The Department would like to obtain as much input as practicable before determining its approach.

We now turn to a set of specific topics on which comment is solicited. The first four topics deal with regulations that must be issued by December 21, 2001; the others discuss key issues which could also be the subject of prompt regulatory action.

Topics #1 & 2: The forms to be used in submitting claims under this program and the information to be included on the claims form.

Section 405(a) of the statute establishes some specific requirements with respect to the claims form and the information to be included. The law requires the Special Master to develop a claim form to use in filing claims for compensation under this program. The Special Master is to ensure that the form can be filed electronically if it is determined to be practicable.

The form must include a statement of the factual basis for eligibility and for the amount of compensation sought. In addition, the form is to request information from the claimant as to: 1) the physical harm suffered by a victim, or information confirming the death of the victim, of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001; 2) any possible economic and non-economic losses that the claimant suffered as a result of the crashes; and 3) any collateral sources of compensation the claimant has received or is entitled to receive as a result of such crashes.

It would appear that these requirements, combined with the statutory time frame for the Special Master to reach a decision once a claim is filed, contemplate a very detailed form and filing, including submission by the claimant of prior tax returns, certifications and documents concerning the eligibility of a claimant as a personal representative of a deceased victim, and relevant medical records. Accordingly, the Department invites comment on whether the Special Master should determine that a claim has not been "filed" in those circumstances in which the Special Master determines that there is insufficient information submitted to permit a reasonably informed determination to be made. Comments are solicited on whether it is advisable to include in the rules a procedure where the time for making a determination could be extended by agreement and any suggestions as to whether such a procedure should, or should not, follow any preliminary action and of any limitations to such a procedure that should be adopted. Along similar lines, the Department invites comments on whether there are actions the Special Master should be required to take before he or she can accept a claim, or deem a claim "filed."

The Department welcomes comment on the design and content of the claims forms in light of the statutory requirements. Specific comments on making the forms and their instructions readable and readily available are welcome.

Topic #3: Procedures for hearing and the presentation of evidence.

Section 405(b)(4) provides that a claimant has the right after the filing of the claim to present evidence to the office of the Special Master. The statute specifically provides that the claimant has the right to present witness statements and documents, the right to be represented by an attorney, and such other due process rights as are determined to be appropriate by the Special Master.

The Department solicits comments on the procedures to be used in taking and evaluating such evidence. In formulating your comments, please keep in mind that the statute appears to provide only a very limited time for the Special Master to evaluate such evidence before making a decision: Section 405(b)(3) of the statute provides that the Special Master must make final decisions on claims within 120 days of the date of filing. Comments as to whether the statute permits the Special Master to temporarily halt the running of this clock, at the initiative of the claimant or otherwise, would be welcome. Also the Department invites comment on whether the Special Master should be permitted to dismiss a claim as not properly filed for lack of adequate supporting information and, if so, whether an individual should thereafter be permitted to refile the claim.

Among other matters, the Department welcomes comment on whether every claimant should be granted an oral hearing or whether paper hearings may be sufficient; and what types of oral hearing may practicable consistent with the statutory time frames. If oral hearings are provided, should the Special Master always use "hearing officers" to hear witnesses and review written evidence? What qualifications and training should those who should perform such tasks have? In addition, the Department welcomes comment on whether there are other specific duties and powers that should be delegated to hearing officers (e.g., to ask questions of the claimant or witnesses, to request submissions of such further information as the hearing officer may deem valuable in reaching a decision, and/or to prepare recommended decisions for the consideration of the Special Master).

The Department welcomes comment on whether claimants should have the right to appeal directly to the Special Master specific "rulings" or "working decisions" of a hearing officer on questions that arise in the course of his or her evaluation of the claim. The Department would welcome comment on whether it is authorized to enforce requests made by the hearing officer to third parties for evidence that is necessary to a proceeding – e.g., evidence that might bear on whether all aspects of the claim file on which the decision will be based are accurate and complete. The Department would welcome comment on whether such proceedings should be recorded, whether such proceedings must be held in a location convenient to the claimant and how to deal with scheduling conflicts, and whether the opportunity for a hearing can be waived by a claimant through inaction or unwarranted delay.

The Department would particularly welcome comments that reference the practices or experience of existing compensation programs with respect to the hearing of evidence.

Topic #4: Procedures to assist an individual in filing and pursuing claims under this title.

The statute does not provide guidance on what actions the Special Master is to take to assist claimants in filing and pursuing claims. However, the Department believes that it is important that claimants be able to proceed without counsel or experts if they elect to do so. Accordingly, the Department welcomes any and all suggestions as to how it can assist claimants, including suggestions for office locations, toll-free phone lines, outreach meetings, newsletters, information about the availability of pro-bono legal or other services that could assist claimants, etc.

In addition, the Department welcomes comments on whether the Special Master has the authority to limit the types and amounts of fees that can be charged by counsel, accountants, experts or others who are retained by claimants to assist them to file and pursue compensation claims, and whether such fees can and should be paid by the Special Master directly out of compensation awards. The Department welcomes information about practices in this regard with respect to other Federal compensation programs, and welcomes specific suggestions on any appropriate fee schedule or policy. The Department also will welcome comments on what limitations, if any, the rules should impose on non-attorney, non-claimant representatives' participation in filing claims and in subsequent proceedings.

The Department is also interested in comments as to whether it needs to take any actions to ensure that individuals who have the option of filing a compensation claim with this program are not improperly solicited or influenced by those with an interest in having them make such an election.

Topic #5: Claimant Eligibility.

Section 405(b) of the statute requires the Special Master to determine whether a claimant is an "eligible individual" under section 405(c). "Eligibility," in turn, is defined to include: (i) victims (other than the terrorists) aboard American Airlines flights 11 and 77 and United Airlines flights 93 and 175; or (ii) victims who were "present at" the World Trade Center, the Pentagon, or the site of the aircraft crash at Shanksville, Pennsylvania at the time or in the immediate aftermath of the crashes, and who suffered physical harm or death as a result of such an air crash. The Department seeks comment on whether a Departmental regulation or a statement of policy by the Special Master would be appropriate to clarify these criteria, and if so, what those criteria should be.

Public commentators have suggested differing interpretations of the statutory terms "present at," "physical harm," and "immediate aftermath." The Department invites comment on the appropriate scope of each of those terms. In particular, should "present at" refer only to persons who were inside the World Trade Center Towers or Pentagon at the time of impact, explosions, fire, and collapse and to those conducting rescue operations, or should the term be construed more broadly? Should the term "physical harm" be limited to serious injuries, as it is under some other no-fault compensation schemes (see, e.g., N.Y. Ins. Law § 5102), or should it be construed more broadly? Further, should "physical harm" be limited to currently identifiable injuries? Can and should the program address latent, but not yet evident, harm? What documentation or other evidence should be required by the Special Master as to the claimant's presence at the World Trade Center or physical harm resulting from the air crash? Moreover, what documentation or other evidence should the Special Master seek to verify the identity of those lost for whom claims are filed? Finally, what duration of time is intended by the statutory phrase "immediate aftermath"?

Section 405(c)(2)(C) provides that the "personal representative" of an eligible decedent is the appropriate person to file a claim on a decedent's behalf. The Department seeks comment on whether a Departmental regulation or a statement of policy by the Special Master would be appropriate to clarify questions concerning personal representatives, for example:

- Whether the Special Master should require that all those who consider themselves to be survivors of someone lost in the crashes be notified of a claim by a "personal representative";
- Whether the Special Master can, within the brief statutory period identified by the statute, determine who among contesting claimants is the appropriate "personal representative";
- Whether the Special Master should, in any matter involving a dispute as to the identity of the "personal representative," require prior adjudication and judgment by a state court of competent jurisdiction; and
- Whether the Special Master should make determinations of compensation for claimants even when the identity of the "personal representative" is in dispute, but escrow payment until such disputes can be resolved by a court of competent jurisdiction.

Topic #6: Nature and Amount of Compensation.

Section 405(b) of the statute indicates that the Special Master shall determine the amount of compensation based on "the harm to the claimant, the facts of the claim, and the individual circumstances of the claimant." Yet each of the perhaps thousands of determinations must be made in a very short time period. Moreover, such determinations should be founded on consistent and clear principles that treat each claimant fairly. The Department invites comments that identify the practical means to achieve these results all within the strict statutory time period. Among other topics, the Department would welcome comment on whether and how statistical methodologies should be developed and used as a starting point for decision, and whether publication of hypothetical or presumptive awards for classes of individuals would assist potential claimants in determining whether to file.

Economic Loss: As indicated above, the Special Master will not require that any claimant employ counsel or any experts on economic or other theories of losses. The Special Master will draw on available information from appropriate specialists in relevant fields to analyze economic losses. The Department invites comment regarding the necessary qualifications for such specialists, the data that should be utilized, the methodologies that should be employed in analyzing economic losses, the documentation that should be required for every claimant, and how state law should bear upon such determinations. In addition, the Department invites comments on how to address the economic losses of individuals whose lost future income streams would have been highly contingent, variable, or unpredictable.

Noneconomic Loss: Section 402(7) lists several types of noneconomic losses that should be considered. The Department invites comments regarding whether, and in what manner, the Special Master can or should draw meaningful distinctions between individuals who died in different locations and, similarly, whether the Special Master can or should draw meaningful distinctions between individuals who suffered similar injuries. The Department also invites comments on whether the Department should, as some have suggested, issue regulations determining the amount of noneconomic loss for classes of similarly situated individuals or whether, instead, the Special Master should determine all noneconomic loss on a detailed claim-by-claim basis. Further, what facts and circumstances should be considered in determining non-economic losses for each individual, and what standards should be employed?

Collateral Sources: Section 405(b)(6) provides that the Special Master shall reduce the amount of compensation by the amount of the collateral source compensation the claimant has received or is entitled to receive as a result of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001. The Department invites comments on how to determine what constitutes a "collateral source" for purposes of this provision, and other related issues. For example, the Department appreciates the strong policy reasons for excluding charitable contributions from the definition of "collateral sources" and invites comment regarding whether the Act indeed permits the Department to exclude such contributions from the definition. Similarly, the Department invites comments on whether "in kind" and/or material contributions could or should be considered collateral sources. Finally, the Department invites comments on how to determine whether potential future collateral source payments are ones which individuals are "entitled to receive" for purposes of Section 405(b)(6).

Fraud Prevention Measures: The Department is committed to preventing and prosecuting any fraudulent attempts to collect from the Fund. The Department therefore invites comments regarding any measures that the Department should take to prevent and detect fraud.

Other topics for comment.

The Department wants to reiterate that your comments are welcome on any and all aspects of the administration of the fund.

Application of various laws and Executive Orders to this rulemaking.

There are a number of laws and Executive Orders whose provisions may have implications for this rulemaking process. Due to the preliminary nature of this notice, this notice does not address these requirements. Nonetheless, the Department welcomes comments that will help it address the applicability of any laws or Executive orders to future rulemaking under the Act.

Subject: POTOCOL QUESTION

Noel, I've been invited to present the President's education agenda to the GA Republican Party. Since it's work-related, can they pay for my ticket? How does that work. I want to make sure everything is done above board, so in the interest of full disclosure, my family lives in GA (I am a former GA resident). Will that affect the ethics of my invitation?

Thanks Brett.
At our meeting, one of the tasks was to check historic records for when decisions have been or need to be made to select a library site. Did we find anything on this?

Presidential Libraries Act -- Primary Legal Provisions
(October 26, 2001)

- The Presidential Records Act requires that the Archivist of the United States take custody and control of all Presidential records and deposit them in a Presidential library (referred to in the statutes as a "Presidential archival depository").

- The Presidential Libraries Act governs the establishment and operation of Presidential libraries. The provisions applicable to President Bush are codified at 44 U.S.C. § 2112.

    - The Archivist, on behalf of the United States, must

        - accept and take title to "land, a facility, and equipment offered as a gift to the United States for the purpose of creating" a Presidential library, id. at § 2112(a)(1)(A); or

        - enter into an agreement with "a State, political subdivision, university, institution of higher learning, institute, or foundation" to use its land, facilities, and equipment for that purpose, and to operate the Presidential library as part of the National Archives system, id. at § 2112(a)(1)(B).

    - The Archivist is required to submit to Congress a report on a proposed establishment of a Presidential library and wait 60 days of continuous session of Congress before taking title or entering into a use agreement for the purpose of establishing the library. Id. at § 2112(a)(3), (5). This process is also required before the Archivist may accept a gift for the purpose of renovating a Presidential library or implementing a statutory requirement to renovate a library. Id. at § 2112(a)(4). The statute specifies the contents of those reports. Id. at § 2112(a)(3)(A)-(G), (4)(A)-(F).

    - The Archivist is authorized to deposit in a Presidential library records not subject to the Presidential Records Act that the Archivist has been authorized to accept for deposit under other statutory authority. Id. at § 2112(b); see 44 U.S.C. § 2111 ("(1) the papers and other historical materials of a President or former President of the United States, or other official or former official[] of the Government, and other papers relating to and contemporary with a President or former President of the United States, subject to restrictions agreeable to the Archivist as to their use; and (2) documents, including motion-picture films, still pictures, and sound recordings, from private sources that are appropriate for preservation by the Government as evidence of its organization, functions, policies, decisions, procedures, and transactions").

        - The authority to deposit additional records extends to agency records covered by the Federal Records Act. Id. at § 2112(b).

- With respect to such additionally deposited papers, the Archivist may exercise "all the functions and responsibilities otherwise vested in him pertaining to Federal records or other documentary materials in his custody or under his control," and in negotiating for the deposit of such papers, "shall take steps to secure to the Government, as far as possible, the right to have continuous and permanent possession of the materials." Id. at § 2112(c).

- With respect to the operation of Presidential libraries, the Archivist is authorized to "cooperate with and assist a university, institution of higher learning, institute, foundation, or other organization or qualified individual to further or to conduct study or research in historical materials deposited in a [Presidential library]," id. at § 2112(d), to charge fees to visitors to the library, id. at § 2112(e), and to provide office space in the library for the personal use of the former President, id. at § 2112(f).

- The Archivist is authorized to solicit and accept gifts or bequests of money and other property, the proceeds of which, along with proceeds from fees or sales of materials by the National Archives, are to be paid into the National Archives Trust Fund and expended for the benefit of the library. Id. at § 2112(g)(1). The Archivist is required to establish separate endowments in the Trust Fund for the maintenance of each Presidential library. Id. at § 2112(g)(2).

  - The Archivist may not take title or enter into an agreement for the purpose of establishing a Presidential library unless he determines that there is available, by gift or bequest for deposit into the library's endowment, an amount for maintenance of the library that meets a statutory minimum, as calculated by a statutory formula. Id. at § 2112(g)(3).

HISPANIC NATIONAL BAR ASSOCIATION ENDORSES APPOINTMENT OF MIGUEL ESTRADA TO THE U.S. COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

McLean-VA- October 12, 2001.

The Hispanic National Bar Association, national voice of over 25,000 Hispanic lawyers in the United States, issues its endorsement of President George W. Bush's nominee, Mr. Miguel Estrada, to the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. Mr. Estrada would be the first Hispanic to sit in the D.C. Circuit, widely regarded as the second most important appellate court in the nation.

Mr. Estrada, who emigrated from Honduras at seventeen, is a partner in the Washington, D.C. office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP. A member of the firm's Appellate and Constitutional Law Practice Group and its Business Crimes and Investigations Practice Group, Estrada clerked for the Honorable Anthony M. Kennedy in the U.S. Supreme Court from 1988-1989, and has argued 15 cases before the U.S. Supreme Court.

A 1983 magna cum laude graduate of Columbia College in New York, Estrada received a J.D. degree magna cum laude in 1986 from Harvard Law School, where he was editor of the Harvard Law Review.

President Bush nominated Mr. Estrada in May of this year. "Mr. Estrada's distinguished and impressive career illustrates the promise and opportunity that America offers to all immigrants, especially Hispanic immigrants. It is encouraging that President Bush has started tapping in the substantial pool of Hispanic legal talent throughout the country. Mr. Estrada's confirmation will break new ground for Hispanics in the judiciary. The time has come to move on Mr. Estrada's nomination. I urge the Senate Committee on the Judiciary to schedule a hearing on Mr. Estrada's nomination and the U.S. Senate to bring this highly qualified nominee to a vote." said Rafael A. Santiago, of Hartford, Connecticut, National President of the Hispanic National Bar Association.

November 2, 2001

Dear Chairman Horn:

I have learned that on November 6 the House Subcommittee on Government Efficiency, Financial Management, and Intergovernmental Relations will hold its previously postponed hearing on the Presidential Records Act. In advance of that hearing, we wanted to inform you of a recent development.

President Bush yesterday signed an executive order implementing section 2204(c) of the Presidential Records Act, the provision of the Act that states: "Nothing in this Act shall be construed to confirm, limit, or expand any constitutionally-based privilege which may be available to an incumbent or former President." That statutory provision is necessary, of course, to the Act's constitutionality, for the Supreme Court held in 1977 that both former and current Presidents retain the constitutional right to assert privileges over the records of a former President, including after expiration of a 12-year period of presumptive non-disclosure. See Nixon v. Administrator of General Services, 433 U.S. 425 (1977). Furthermore, Congress contemplated that such constitutional privileges would be available and could be asserted, even after expiration of the 12-year period: At the time the Act was enacted, Senator Percy stated that if a President "believe[d] that the 12-year closure period does not suffice, that President could object to the release of some document in the 13th or 15th or 20th year." Cong. Record S36844 (Oct. 13, 1978).

The Act and its legislative history, as well as the Supreme Court's decision in Nixon v. Administrator of General Services, obviously necessitate procedures for former and current Presidents to review Presidential records of a former President and, if they choose, to assert constitutional privileges. President Bush's order responds to that need by establishing clear and sensible procedures for former and current Presidents to exercise their rights and responsibilities in a timely manner. The order replaces an earlier executive order (Executive Order 12667 of January 18, 1989) that had established some skeletal procedures for assertion of privileges over Presidential records and had provided that the current President would have the primary responsibility for asserting privileges over the records of a former President. President Bush's new order supercedes that prior order both to set forth clearer procedures and to establish, consistent with the Supreme Court's decision in Nixon v. Administrator of General Services and with what the Administration believes to be sound policy and procedure, that former Presidents are to have the primary responsibility for asserting privileges over their records. Indeed, section 4 of President Bush's order, which is its most critical component, provides that the current President will defer, absent compelling circumstances, to the decisions of the former President regarding the former President's records. In sum, therefore, the new executive order grants the current President less relative authority over the records of a former President than did the prior executive order. We believe this point is critical to a proper understanding of the executive order, and has been largely overlooked in public commentary thus far.

In addition, President Bush's order does not purport to guide former Presidents as to their privilege assertions. Section 9 of the order provides that the order does not purport to indicate "whether and under what circumstances a former President should assert or waive any privilege." Indeed, it would have been improper, if not illegal, for President Bush to attempt to limit or override the constitutional rights and privileges of former Presidents -- rights that have been guaranteed by the Supreme Court. But it also bears mention that Section 2 of the order refers to the historical practice before enactment of the Presidential Records Act by which former Presidents, over time, have released a vast majority of their records even though under no legal obligation to do so. We anticipate that this historical practice will continue. At a minimum, contrary to the claims of some commentators, there is no logical basis for assuming that former Presidents will exercise their constitutional and statutory authority to seek withholding of privileged records more aggressively than earlier Presidents -- from President Washington to President Carter -- exercised their plenary and far broader authority to withhold all records.

Finally, you should know that the Administration consulted extensively with the National Archives and Records Administration, the Department of Justice, and former Presidents' representatives before President Bush issued this order. We benefited greatly from that consultation.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you have any questions about the order.

Sincerely,

Alberto R. Gonzales
Counsel to the President

Hey -

I think Scott is trying to scare up an extra fax machine or two for Counsel's Office.

If at least one can be found and installed sooner rather than later for Brett Kavanaugh in OEOB 156 we would be most appreciative. Brett often works very late nights and on pretty time sensitive and sensitive material tasks so having a fax in his office would be of great help.

Thanks!

Is it a problem for the President to do these solo? If so maybe Tim could

Is there any chance any of these folks will be pulled back?

Brett--
We are set to record the President's welcoming greeting for newly naturalized citizens. This greeting would be played at INS controlled ceremonies and be made available to Judge's if they so desire to play the President's message in their chambers.

DOJ/INS will be letting us know if they can cover the recording expense. Our legal questions are:

Is there any issue we need to be aware of in mass producing this video greeting and payment thereof?

Are there any legal hoop we need to jump through with the contracted recording team and INS/DOJ?

Israel mentioned we may need to use DTR...your guidance is much appreciated.

Thanks

Subject: URGENT: NEED YOUR HELP

At today's 2:00 hearing, Chairman Horn is apparently putting the two Administration witnesses (the Archivist and the Deputy AAG for Office of Legal Counsel at Justice) on the same panel with several historians who are likely to be quite critical of the Administration. (Originally, they had the deputy AAG on a second panel, which was even worse.) Can you help us change this as it is inconsistent with standard practice, we understand. Russell George is staff director at 225-5147, but he is not very sympathetic. We have Justice (Faith Burton) working on this as well. Bottom line is that we, Justice, and Archives all think this is a crazy procedure, and it almost certainly will make Administration witnesses look bad and draw them into a food fight in what could be a contentious hearing. Not sure how to change it, but we need to try. Thanks.

Dear Chairman Horn:

I have learned that on November 6 the House Subcommittee on Government Efficiency, Financial Management, and Intergovernmental Relations will hold its previously postponed hearing on the Presidential Records Act. In advance of that hearing, we wanted to inform you of a recent development.

President Bush yesterday signed an executive order implementing section 2204(c) of the Presidential Records Act, the provision of the Act that states: "Nothing in this Act shall be construed to confirm, limit, or expand any constitutionally-based privilege which may be available to an incumbent or former President." That statutory provision is necessary, of course, to the Act's constitutionality, for the Supreme Court held in 1977 that both former and current Presidents retain the constitutional right to assert privileges over the records of a former President, including after expiration of a 12-year period of presumptive non-disclosure. See Nixon v. Administrator of General Services, 433 U.S. 425 (1977). Furthermore, Congress contemplated that such constitutional privileges would be available and could be asserted, even after expiration of the 12-year period: At the time the Act was enacted, Senator Percy stated that if a President "believe[d] that the 12-year closure period does not suffice, that President could object to the release of some document in the 13th or 15th or 20th year." Cong. Record S36844 (Oct. 13, 1978).

The Act and its legislative history, as well as the Supreme Court's decision in Nixon v. Administrator of General Services, obviously necessitate procedures for former and current Presidents to review Presidential records of a former President and, if they choose, to assert constitutional privileges. President Bush's order responds to that need by establishing clear and sensible procedures for former and current Presidents to exercise their rights and responsibilities in a timely manner. The order replaces an earlier executive order (Executive Order 12667 of January 18, 1989) that had established some skeletal procedures for assertion of privileges over Presidential records and had provided that the current President would have the primary responsibility for asserting privileges over the records of a former President. President Bush's new order supercedes that prior order both to set forth clearer procedures and to establish, consistent with the Supreme Court's decision in Nixon v. Administrator of General Services and with what the Administration believes to be sound policy and procedure, that former Presidents are to have the primary responsibility for asserting privileges over their records. Indeed, section 4 of President Bush's order, which is its most critical component, provides that the current President will defer, absent compelling circumstances, to the decisions of the former President regarding the former President's records. In sum, therefore, the new executive order grants the current President less relative authority over the records of a former President than did the prior executive order. We believe this point is critical to a proper understanding of the executive order, and has been largely overlooked in public commentary thus far.

In addition, President Bush's order does not purport to guide former Presidents as to their privilege assertions. Section 9 of the order provides that the order does not purport to indicate "whether and under what circumstances a former President should assert or waive any privilege." Indeed, it would have been improper, if not illegal, for President Bush to attempt to limit or override the constitutional rights and privileges of former Presidents -- rights that have been guaranteed by the Supreme Court. But it also bears mention that Section 2 of the order refers to the historical practice before enactment of the Presidential Records Act by which former Presidents, over time, have released a vast majority of their records even though under no legal obligation to do so. We anticipate that this historical practice will continue. At a minimum, contrary to the claims of some commentators, there is no logical basis for assuming that former Presidents will exercise their constitutional and statutory authority to seek withholding of privileged records more aggressively than earlier Presidents -- from President Washington to President Carter -- exercised their plenary and far broader authority to withhold all records.

Finally, you should know that the Administration consulted extensively with the National Archives and Records Administration, the Department of Justice, and former Presidents' representatives before President Bush issued this order. We benefited greatly from that consultation.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you have any questions about the order.

Sincerely,

Alberto R. Gonzales

The latest exercise relates to the authors series where authors may be giving away books to WH employees. This issue has come up before. I may have an idea for the appropriate receipt, use, and ultimate personal possession by WH officials of these items, even though they may exceed $20 in value. One question I have is, if the books are received and utilized in the White House workplace on the theory that those who give the books are interested having views (even of history or the arts or other similar fields) considered by administration officials, do the books become Presidential records?

Hey Ash-

Just wanted to let you know that the Judges wants to continue hold off on all calls to nominees.

We'll let you know when to resume calls.

Thanks!

Karl has a trip to CA this weekend. His plan was to return to DC on Mon, 11/12 via commercial carrier. Warren Tichenor would like to use his corporate plane owned by W.W. Tichenor & Co. (TX corp.) to fly Karl and Chris Henick back from San Diego to DC. What do you think?

Thank you for your recent inquiries regarding N765WT, Mr. Tichenor's airplane.

In as much as I've received the same or similar inquiries from each of you this morning, I'm responding to all of you with this correspondence.

N765WT is a Bombardier Challenger 601-3A, owned and operated by W.W. Tichenor & Co., Inc., a Texas based corporation. Under our present and existing ownership, we flew during the campaign, Laura Bush, Barbara Bush, Secretary Evans, Director Allbaugh, Karen and Karl among numerous other campaign officials. For this reason, we believe that we can satisfy any requirements the Counsel's office may have.

Additionally, our lead counsel William D. White at Locke Liddell & Sapp in Dallas is a partner at the firm Ms. Miers headed before assuming her present position as Assistant to the President and Staff Secretary and is available to answer any questions in this regard. If there are any, please call me at 210-375-0765 and we'll endeavor to get them answered for you.

Sincerely,

Adriana Matouk

Dear Chris,

Thank you for your time Monday.

I enjoyed the lunch and the visit. I'll look forward to seeing you in Los Angeles this weekend and to doing everything I can to engage Hollywood in helping to win the war on terrorism.

Thanks again. Please let me know if it works for Karl, you, and me to fly back to Washington Monday, as this would be an ideal time to plan the next steps.

Sincerely,

Warren W. Tichenor

P.S. Please send me the framing remarks via e-mail to am@wwtichenorco.com <mailto:am@wwtichenorco.com> and I"ll add my comments. Thanks.

David: appreciate that very much. probably would have been too much to expect Kamen to distinguish executive privilege generally, as outlined in the EO, from executive privilege in the face of a criminal GJ or trial subpoena, as in US v. Nixon and Clinton/Lindsey cases.

November 2, 2001

Dear Chairman Horn:

I have learned that on November 6 the House Subcommittee on Government Efficiency, Financial Management, and Intergovernmental Relations will hold its previously postponed hearing on the Presidential Records Act. In advance of that hearing, we wanted to inform you of a recent development.

President Bush yesterday signed an executive order implementing section 2204(c) of the Presidential Records Act, the provision of the Act that states: "Nothing in this Act shall be construed to confirm, limit, or expand any constitutionally-based privilege which may be available to an incumbent or former President." That statutory provision is necessary, of course, to the Act's constitutionality, for the Supreme Court held in 1977 that both former and current Presidents retain the constitutional right to assert privileges over the records of a former President, including after expiration of a 12-year period of presumptive non-disclosure. See Nixon v. Administrator of General Services, 433 U.S. 425 (1977). Furthermore, Congress contemplated that such constitutional privileges would be available and could be asserted, even after expiration of the 12-year period: At the time the Act was enacted, Senator Percy stated that if a President "believe[d] that the 12-year closure period does not suffice, that President could object to the release of some document in the 13th or 15th or 20th year." Cong. Record S36844 (Oct. 13, 1978).

The Act and its legislative history, as well as the Supreme Court's decision in Nixon v. Administrator of General Services, obviously necessitate procedures for former and current Presidents to review Presidential records of a former President and, if they choose, to assert constitutional privileges. President Bush's order responds to that need by establishing clear and sensible procedures for former and current Presidents to exercise their rights and responsibilities in a timely manner. The order replaces an earlier executive order (Executive Order 12667 of January 18, 1989) that had established some skeletal procedures for assertion of privileges over Presidential records and had provided that the current President would have the primary responsibility for asserting privileges over the records of a former President. President Bush's new order supercedes that prior order both to set forth clearer procedures and to establish, consistent with the Supreme Court's decision in Nixon v. Administrator of General Services and with what the Administration believes to be sound policy and procedure, that former Presidents are to have the primary responsibility for asserting privileges over their records. Indeed, section 4 of President Bush's order, which is its most critical component, provides that the current President will defer, absent compelling circumstances, to the decisions of the former President regarding the former President's records. In sum, therefore, the new executive order grants the current President less relative authority over the records of a former President than did the prior executive order. We believe this point is critical to a proper understanding of the executive order, and has been largely overlooked in public commentary thus far.

In addition, President Bush's order does not purport to guide former Presidents as to their privilege assertions. Section 9 of the order provides that the order does not purport to indicate "whether and under what circumstances a former President should assert or waive any privilege." Indeed, it would have been improper, if not illegal, for President Bush to attempt to limit or override the constitutional rights and privileges of former Presidents -- rights that have been guaranteed by the Supreme Court. But it also bears mention that Section 2 of the order refers to the historical practice before enactment of the Presidential Records Act by which former Presidents, over time, have released a vast majority of their records even though under no legal obligation to do so. We anticipate that this historical practice will continue. At a minimum, contrary to the claims of some commentators, there is no logical basis for assuming that former Presidents will exercise their constitutional and statutory authority to seek withholding of privileged records more aggressively than earlier Presidents -- from President Washington to President Carter -- exercised their plenary and far broader authority to withhold all records.

Finally, you should know that the Administration consulted extensively with the National Archives and Records Administration, the Department of Justice, and former Presidents' representatives before President Bush issued this order. We benefited greatly from that consultation.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you have any questions about the order.

Sincerely,

Alberto R. Gonzales

Presidential Records Act Executive Order -- Talking Points

- The order establishes procedures for former and current Presidents to review confidential and privileged records of former Presidents and to make appropriate determinations whether to withhold or release privileged documents. The proposed order makes clear that, absent extraordinary and compelling circumstances, a current President will not seek to withhold records that a former President otherwise has authorized for disclosure.

- The Supreme Court has specifically and definitively held (in 1977) that former Presidents retain the right to assert privileges over their records even after they have left office. This order simply establishes procedures for the former Presidents to protect and assert their rights if they so choose. It obviously would be inappropriate, if not contrary to law, for a current President to flout the Supreme Court by unilaterally overriding the constitutional rights of a former President.

- This order expressly states that it does not indicate whether and when a former President should assert privileges. This order is about procedure, not when -- if ever -- privilege should be asserted.

- The Act itself, as well as the legislative history, expressly recognizes that constitutional privileges remain available to a former and current President after expiration of the 12-year-period. (Congress has no authority, in any event, to limit the scope of the constitutional privileges available to a President or former President.)

- Before this Act took effect, former Presidents generally released the majority of their records over time even though they possessed plenary authority over their records. The Act and the executive order give former Presidents less power to withhold records than they possessed before enactment of the Presidential Records Act. There is no reason to think or predict, therefore, that former Presidents would seize upon their authority to withhold only privileged records more aggressively than previous former Presidents seized upon their authority to withhold all records.

- In determining the legal requirements and assessing the policy issues, the Administration has consulted extensively with the National Archives and Records Administration, the Department of Justice, and the former Presidents' representatives and has benefited from the consultation.

President Bush's recent executive order establishes sensible procedures for making public the records of former presidents. The order fulfills the president's statutory obligation to implement the Presidential Records Act, as well as his obligations under a 1977 Supreme Court ruling which held that former presidents continue to have the right to assert privileges over their records even after their term has ended.

Neither President Bush nor Congress has the power or authority to ignore that Supreme Court ruling. President Bush's order therefore allows a former President to assert privileges to protect sensitive documents, such as records that could impact national security. It is clear that virtually all criticism of President Bush's order is actually criticism of the Supreme Court decision guaranteeing the rights of former Presidents to assert privileges over their records.

The Presidential Records Act fails to establish a procedure for former Presidents to assert their constitutionally guaranteed privilege. President Bush's order provides such procedures and sets a reasonable time frame for review of records and assertion of privileges. Importantly, the executive order does not expand or encourage the assertion of any privilege available to the former president.

Under President Bush's order, a large portion of Presidential records, for example those not covered by privilege, will be released no later than 12 years after President's term is over, as established by the Presidential Records Act.

In addition, history has proved that most former Presidents release the vast majority of even their privileged documents. Before the Presidential Records Act took effect in 1981, former Presidents were under no legal obligation to disclose any records, but those who visit the libraries of Presidents Kennedy, Ford or Carter know the valuable array of historical materials that are available. President Bush's executive order preserves this rich tradition.

November 2, 2001

Dear Chairman Horn:

I have learned that on November 6 the House Subcommittee on Government Efficiency, Financial Management, and Intergovernmental Relations will hold its previously postponed hearing on the Presidential Records Act. In advance of that hearing, we wanted to inform you of a recent development.

President Bush yesterday signed an executive order implementing section 2204(c) of the Presidential Records Act, the provision of the Act that states: "Nothing in this Act shall be construed to confirm, limit, or expand any constitutionally-based privilege which may be available to an incumbent or former President." That statutory provision is necessary, of course, to the Act's constitutionality, for the Supreme Court held in 1977 that both former and current Presidents retain the constitutional right to assert privileges over the records of a former President, including after expiration of a 12-year period of presumptive non-disclosure. See Nixon v. Administrator of General Services, 433 U.S. 425 (1977). Furthermore, Congress contemplated that such constitutional privileges would be available and could be asserted, even after expiration of the 12-year period: At the time the Act was enacted, Senator Percy stated that if a President "believe[d] that the 12-year closure period does not suffice, that President could object to the release of some document in the 13th or 15th or 20th year." Cong. Record S36844 (Oct. 13, 1978).

The Act and its legislative history, as well as the Supreme Court's decision in Nixon v. Administrator of General Services, obviously necessitate procedures for former and current Presidents to review Presidential records of a former President and, if they choose, to assert constitutional privileges. President Bush's order responds to that need by establishing clear and sensible procedures for former and current Presidents to exercise their rights and responsibilities in a timely manner. The order replaces an earlier executive order (Executive Order 12667 of January 18, 1989) that had established some skeletal procedures for assertion of privileges over Presidential records and had provided that the current President would have the primary responsibility for asserting privileges over the records of a former President. President Bush's new order supercedes that prior order both to set forth clearer procedures and to establish, consistent with the Supreme Court's decision in Nixon v. Administrator of General Services and with what the Administration believes to be sound policy and procedure, that former Presidents are to have the primary responsibility for asserting privileges over their records. Indeed, section 4 of President Bush's order, which is its most critical component, provides that the current President will defer, absent compelling circumstances, to the decisions of the former President regarding the former President's records. In sum, therefore, the new executive order grants the current President less relative authority over the records of a former President than did the prior executive order. We believe this point is critical to a proper understanding of the executive order, and has been largely overlooked in public commentary thus far.

I have some concern w/ how it meshes with act of terrorism in main bill which is a source of major concern for Treasury. We should probably bring up on the call.

Could you review the attached, which Brian wants to send to the comm. Dems.

ATT CREATION TIME/DATE: 0 00:00:00.00
File attachment <P_V6EP4004_WHO.TXT_1>

GENERAL POINTS

- A premise of this legislation is that a short-term federal program is necessary to address the substantial uncertainty faced by the insurance industry in pricing terrorism risk. The largest piece of this uncertainty, in many cases, results from the risk of third-party liability. It does not make sense, in our view, to design a system to allow the insurance industry to better manage uncertain terrorism risks without addressing a fundamental cause of the uncertainty – unmanageable and unpredictable litigation.

- The procedures for litigation arising out of mass tort terrorism incidents should achieve the following goals:
  (i) Ensure that plaintiffs have access to fair and expeditious litigation procedures;
  (ii) Provide economic stability by avoiding, where appropriate, widespread bankruptcies from litigation arising out of a mass terrorism incident where terrorists, by definition, are the wrongdoers, not the legitimate bystander property and business owners; and
  (iii) Preserve the available pool available for victims' compensation by ensuring that liability is related to actual damages;
  (iv) Appropriately spread the costs of terrorism incidents without requiring federal taxpayers, in the first instance, to incur the full costs of compensation for injuries and property damage.

- Legislation should merely establish the basic contours of the litigation process, and should not attempt to pre-ordain every substantive and procedural detail, which is best left to the discretion of the district court in light of the facts and circumstances of particular events.

CONSOLIDATION

PURPOSE

- A single federal court and a uniform standard of liability are necessary to ensure that the legal system is not overwhelmed by multiple cases in multiple courts in multiple states -- with similar claims in multiple forums decided under widely varying standards for liability, causation, defenses, and damages.

- Consolidation of cases in a single court is a common procedure in mass tort cases and was a central feature of the legislation recently enacted by Congress for the tort cases arising out of the September 11 attacks.

- A uniform standard of liability helps ensure that plaintiffs can litigate cases expeditiously. Requiring a court to apply multiple, varied state standards will prolong the litigation.

ANALOGUE IN AIR TRANSPORTATION ACT

- Section 408(b) of the Air Transportation Act consolidates all cases arising out of the September 11 attacks in a single federal court.

PROPORTIONAL NON-ECONOMIC DAMAGES

PURPOSE

- Without this provision, a court could hold any defendant "jointly and severally" liable for the full amount of the plaintiff's non-economic damages, even for those damages attributable to the terrorists' acts and are unrelated to the defendant's actions.

- Limitations on joint and several liability are commonplace and this proposal is a modest version of those limitation. Over 35 states have enacted some form of proportional liability. Seventeen states have adopted proportional liability even for economic damages. Another eight states have adopted proportional liability for economic and non-economic damages for any marginally-involved defendant (e.g., one found to be less than 50% at fault). This proposal would apply proportional liability only to non-economic damages.

- Some studies suggest that non-economic damages can comprise 40-50% of damages in certain classes of tort cases. If any defendant, even the marginally involved, could be made to pay the full extent of non-economic damages in a mass terrorism incident, these damages could easily threaten to bankrupt hundreds of legitimate businesses.

ANALOGUE IN AIR TRANSPORTATION ACT

- Section 408(a) of the Air Transportation Act limits recovery against air carriers to the limits of their liability policies, which is an effective cap on non-economic damages against air carriers, and applies state law limits on joint and several liability, which in many cases will be more restrictive than this proposal.

PUNITIVE DAMAGES

PURPOSE

- In mass tort cases, only a limited pool of resources will be available to plaintiffs who prove liability (whether because of bankruptcy or settlement).

- Because of the limited pool of resources, it would be grossly inequitable and unfair to allow one plaintiff or class of plaintiffs to receive an excessive award -- including a punitive component entirely unrelated to the plaintiff's injuries -- that could greatly limit or outright preclude recovery by other plaintiffs.

- Even for defendants who face no possibility of bankruptcy, the possibility of massive punitive or non-economic damages creates pressure to settle even unmeritorious cases and economic instability for potential defendants in terrorism cases.

- A business defendant who engages in the kind of wrongdoing that otherwise would trigger punitive damages will face a variety of federal and state criminal and administrative investigations and sanctions.

ANALOGUE IN AIR TRANSPORTATION ACT

- Section 408(a) limits any recovery against air carriers to the limits of their liability policies, which effectively precludes punitive damages. Section 201 prospectively precludes punitive damages in any terrorism-related case against airlines for 180 days after enactment. Section 405(b)(5) of the Air Transportation Act precludes recovery of punitive damages in the victims' claims process.

OFFSET

PURPOSE

- This procedure, which Congress adopted for the victims claims process applicable to individual cases arising out of the September 11 terrorist attacks, will ensure that plaintiffs are compensated for their losses, yet also prevent double recovery by plaintiffs. It thus will help preserve the limited pool of defendant resources available for successful plaintiffs without penalizing injured victims.

- The procedure is consistent with the principle that first-party private insurance and, where necessary, standard government benefits have been (and should be) the primary means for promptly and appropriately compensating the parties injured in a terrorism attack. Through these resources, injured parties will receive appropriate care and compensation without resort to an inefficient judicial process that would trigger widespread bankruptcies.

- Even in ordinary tort cases, many states offset past and prospective insurance benefits paid or payable to the plaintiff against the plaintiff's recovery.

ANALOGUE IN AIR TRANSPORTATION ACT

- Section 405(b)(6) of the Air Transportation Act requires that recovery by a claimant in the victims' claims process be reduced by the amount of collateral source compensation the plaintiff has received or is entitled to receive.

The New Republic

ON THE HILL
Personal Time
by Michael Crowley

Post date 11.08.01 | Issue date 11.19.01

Patrick Leahy doesn't look like an especially groovy guy. He is bald and pale, speaks in a gravelly monotone, and wears drab gray suits. If you didn't know he was a U.S. senator, you might peg him for a nasa engineer. But upon closer inspection, the Vermont Democrat turns out to have some unexpectedly funky tastes. He is, for instance, an avowed Grateful Dead fan who can explain the bootleg concert-tape trade, and who once brought Jerry Garcia to the Senate dining room. He has dined with U2 singer Bono and, at last year's Democratic convention, hosted a bash at Hollywood's Sunset Room featuring sultry rocker

Sheryl Crow. Leahy even took to the Senate floor in 1994 to hail the mass appeal of his state's answer to the Dead--the trippy jam band Phish. ("Add two trampolines, a vacuum cleaner, a first-rate light show, and you have a live performance that is hard to forget," he explained to the American people.) Leahy is also a Batman fanatic who owns hundreds of masked-man comic books, has appeared in a Batman movie, and penned the introduction to a Batman book. Throw in his other signature issues--defusing old land mines, protecting Internet privacy (he has been called "the cybersenator"), promoting Ben and Jerry's ice cream--and Leahy starts to seem pretty cool for an old white guy in a suit.

This quirky repertoire delights liberal fans from Burlington to Berkeley--especially since Leahy's ascension this year to chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee. In his new post, Leahy is one of the most powerful Democrats in Congress. He has the power to block George W. Bush's judicial nominees, including any future Supreme Court appointments and, since September 11, has been a fulcrum of the debate over granting law enforcement new powers to fight terrorism.

But it has been a rough transition from Senator Mellow to Mr. Chairman. Leahy has found himself under near-constant assault from Republicans who say he plays vindictive games with their judicial nominees. The attorney general has suggested that he endangered the public by trying to stall and water down anti-terrorism legislation. Even fellow Democrats claim he has been imperious, hypersensitive, and a pain to work with. Indeed, Leahy is fast becoming one of the most resented members of the Senate. And this isolation--from his Democratic colleagues as well as his Republican antagonists--is starting to undermine the political causes about which he cares so much.

For most of his 27 years in the Senate, Leahy has been less a legislative heavyweight than a spokesman for the NPR set, a champion of liberal causes like expanding political asylum, death sentence reviews, and ending the travel ban on Cuba. When the Senate gave nonbinding approval to missile defense in 1999, Leahy cast one of just three dissenting votes. Throughout the 1990s he pushed, in opposition to the Clinton administration, for a global treaty outlawing land mines. And Leahy was among the Senate's bluntest critics of the Supreme Court after its Bush v. Gore decision, fuming, "Their credibility ... and their moral posture is so diminished, it will take years to repair."

All that changed in May, when the defection of his fellow Vermonter, Jim Jeffords, tipped the Senate to Democratic control. Delaware Senator Joe Biden was next in line to chair the Judiciary Committee, but instead chose to take over Foreign Relations. And so, Leahy suddenly had a powerful perch. Liberal interest groups were thrilled. But on Capitol Hill the reaction was less effusive. Some Democrats considered Leahy to be fairly pleasant, someone with "a real low-key affability," as one party operative puts it. But many others

him prickly and arrogant. "He always had a much higher view of himself than anyone else," says a former top aide to another liberal Senate Democrat who remembers his boss disliking Leahy despite their ideological kinship.

And, as feared, Leahy hasn't made many friends during his short tenure as chairman. Even by the testy standards of judicial nominations, Republicans have reacted viscerally to his stewardship. On one level, the complaints are hard to take too seriously. Though The Wall Street Journal editorial page has attacked him for "unprecedented stonewalling on judges," Leahy has treated nominees no worse than Republicans treated Clinton's. A Democratic operative notes that Leahy has an "extraordinarily difficult" job as Judiciary chairman and should be given some slack. But GOP senators insist Leahy has made the process unusually personal. According to a Senate Republican aide, after Idaho Republican Larry Craig criticized Leahy in the media, Leahy told him that one of his home-state judges would have to wait until next year for a hearing. The aide also says Leahy warned Charles Grassley of Iowa that if he signed a letter of grievance circulating among Republican Judiciary Committee members, his judges' scheduled hearings would be canceled. (Aides to the senators didn't respond, and a Leahy staffer says he doesn't know anything about the charges.) Meanwhile, Colorado's two GOP Senators, Wayne Allard and Ben Nighthorse Campbell, told Roll Call last month that Leahy implied their support for a GOP filibuster--protesting stalled nominations--would affect the fate of their judges. (A Leahy aide told me that anyone familiar with the senator's dry wit would understand that he was kidding.) As a result, Leahy has become the subject of profane denunciations by Republican senators during their weekly policy lunches, according to one attendee. Adds a top Republican aide, "They are taking his actions personally because it seems to be the way he operates."

Such accusations would be easier to dismiss as partisan sniping if members of Leahy's own party weren't grousing as well. Democratic staffers are still buzzing, for instance, about Leahy's harsh treatment of California Democrat Dianne Feinstein at a September 13 Judiciary hearing on a Justice Department authorization bill. Feinstein wanted to introduce an amendment adding several new judicial slots for California's Southern District Court, where she argued backlogs had created a state of "crisis." She'd tried for months to add the judges, Feinstein pleaded, without avail. "I don't do this lightly," a transcript shows her saying. "I obviously don't like to annoy my chairman. I have tried and I have tried and I have tried, and now I fight."

"Don't speak of annoyance," Leahy snapped. "This is not a time to be personal on these things." Leahy then patronizingly suggested that Feinstein "may not have understood" an earlier promise he made to pass the measure if she would hold off for now. "I was told you would not approve that," Feinstein fired back, "and I would be 'Rule Sixteened'"--i.e., shot down. Several other senators--including the liberal Democrat Dick Durbin--rose to Feinstein's defense. Growing ever more irritated, Leahy turned "beet red," according to an aide, and snapped at Feinstein for talking to her staff while he was speaking. The two senators finally retreated to a private anteroom, from which they could be heard yelling at each other. By the end of the exchange, witnesses say, Feinstein was practically in tears.

Multiple people to whom I related this story replied that anyone who so upsets Dianne Feinstein--less than a fan favorite herself--must be doing something right. And a Leahy aide notes that Feinstein's amendment was added to the bill a few weeks later. But others say that Leahy's response to this mild insubordination was typical. "He'll blow up at you," says a basically sympathetic observer. "Even if you don't make it personal, he'll take it personally."

nd Leahy's prickliness is starting to have national policy ramifications. Consider what happened during negotiations last month over emergency anti-terrorism legislation. At the outset, the Bush administration was confident it would get enhanced law enforcement authority from the GOP-controlled House. It was Leahy and the Democratic-controlled Senate they worried about. After all, last year Leahy, a former prosecutor deeply wary of broad law enforcement powers, almost single-handedly sank a similar anti-terrorism bill crafted by Feinstein and Arizona Republican Jon Kyl (See "Sin of Commission," by Franklin Foer, October 8). And the September 11 attacks appeared to do little to change his mind. When Attorney General John Ashcroft asked Congress for swift passage of expanded wiretapping, detention, and evidence-sharing powers, Leahy insisted on opening up detailed negotiations with Justice Department and White House officials before advancing a bill out of his committee.

Few people objected to such consultation. But Leahy proceeded to alienate his colleagues by limiting the talks to a narrow circle consisting of himself, Ted Kennedy, ranking Judiciary Republican Orrin Hatch, and Justice Department officials. When other Judiciary Committee senators-- primarily Feinstein and New York's Chuck Schumer-- suggested changes, Leahy and his famously thorny chief counsel, Bruce Cohen, closed ranks further, implying that the negotiations were his responsibility alone. "I think it was a mistake to go ahead with that view of the world," says one civil liberties lobbyist.

And, in a sad irony, Leahy's insularity appears to have made the bill less protective of civil liberties. Had Leahy been more open to working with his fellow senators, some observers say, he might have had enough support in his committee to alter the bill more to his liking. Instead he went it largely solo.

At an October 2 press conference, Ashcroft, joined by Hatch and Senate Minority Leader Trent Lott, implied that Leahy was stalling the legislation and leaving the public "susceptible" to more attacks. It was a startlingly partisan move--and one that appalled Leahy, who accuses the White House of shifting its own time-consuming delays--but it worked. Without allies on his committee, and quite likely under pressure from Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle, who was concerned about the Democrats looking weak on terrorism, Leahy was forced to cave, according to observers.

The outcome: The Senate, as The Wall Street Journal put it, "produced a bill whose vast expansion of law-enforcement powers delivers almost everything the Bush administration sought." In the House, by contrast, a coalition of ACLU liberals and anti-government conservatives succeeded in adding a sunset provision phasing out expanded wiretap authority after five years, along with other restraints. (The final bill includes a four-year sunset.)

Leahy takes credit for slowing down and restraining Ashcroft's original plan. But the anti-terrorism fight clearly left a sour taste in his mouth. At an October 25 press conference celebrating Senate passage of the final bill, he wore the sullen frown of a sore loser. Even as the C-SPAN cameras rolled, he couldn't resist scowling and bickering with Hatch. Things got so touchy that Lott had to step in and defuse the tension with a joke about what a "magnificent achievement" it was getting the two to agree.

But then, despite his Deadhead tastes, Leahy has never pretended to be all sunshine and flowers. Indeed, when he emerged from the 1997 premiere of Batman & Robin, Leahy complained that the movie presented too cheery a vision of a superhero who was, after all, first conceived as an obsessed loner seeking vengeance for his parents' deaths. "I'd love to get back to the dark side," Leahy told The Hill. In his own work, at least, he seems to be succeeding.

The New Republic

ON THE HILL
Personal Time
by Michael Crowley

Post date 11.08.01 | Issue date 11.19.01

Patrick Leahy doesn't look like an especially groovy guy. He is bald and pale, speaks in a gravelly monotone, and wears drab gray suits. If you didn't know he was a U.S. senator, you might peg him for a nasa engineer. But upon closer inspection, the Vermont Democrat turns out to have some unexpectedly funky tastes. He is, for instance, an avowed Grateful Dead fan who can explain the bootleg concert-tape trade, and who once brought Jerry Garcia to the Senate dining room. He has dined with U2 singer Bono and, at last year's Democratic convention, hosted a bash at Hollywood's Sunset Room featuring sultry rocker Sheryl Crow. Leahy even took to the Senate floor in 1994 to hail the mass appeal of his state's answer to the Dead--the trippy jam band Phish. ("Add two trampolines, a vacuum cleaner, a first-rate light show, and you have a live performance that is hard to forget," he explained to the American people.) Leahy is also a Batman fanatic who owns hundreds of masked-man comic books, has appeared in a Batman movie, and penned the introduction to a Batman book. Throw in his other signature issues--defusing old land mines, protecting Internet privacy (he has been called "the cybersenator"), promoting Ben and Jerry's ice cream--and Leahy starts to seem pretty cool for an old white guy in a suit.

This quirky repertoire delights liberal fans from Burlington to Berkeley--especially since Leahy's ascension this year to chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee. In his new post, Leahy is one of the most powerful Democrats in Congress. He has the power to block George W. Bush's judicial nominees, including any future Supreme Court appointments and, since September 11, has been a fulcrum of the debate over granting law enforcement new powers to fight terrorism.

But it has been a rough transition from Senator Mellow to Mr. Chairman. Leahy has found himself under near-constant assault from Republicans who say he plays vindictive games with their judicial nominees. The attorney general has suggested that he endangered the public by trying to stall and water down anti-terrorism legislation. Even fellow Democrats claim he has been imperious, hypersensitive, and a pain to work with. Indeed, Leahy is fast becoming one of the most resented members of the Senate. And this isolation--from his Democratic colleagues as well as his Republican antagonists--is starting to undermine the political causes about which he cares so much.

For most of his 27 years in the Senate, Leahy has been less a legislative heavyweight than a spokesman for the NPR set, a champion of liberal causes like expanding political asylum, death sentence reviews, and ending the travel ban on Cuba. When the Senate gave nonbinding approval to missile defense in 1999, Leahy cast one of just three dissenting votes. Throughout the 1990s he pushed, in opposition to the Clinton administration, for a global treaty outlawing land mines. And Leahy was among the Senate's bluntest critics of the Supreme Court after its Bush v. Gore decision, fuming, "Their credibility ... and their moral posture is so diminished, it will take years to repair."

All that changed in May, when the defection of his fellow Vermonter, Jim Jeffords, tipped the Senate to Democratic control. Delaware Senator Joe Biden was next in line to chair the Judiciary Committee, but instead chose to take over Foreign Relations. And so, Leahy suddenly had a powerful perch.
Liberal interest groups were thrilled. But on Capitol Hill the reaction was less effusive. Some Democrats considered Leahy to be fairly pleasant, someone with "a real low-key affability," as one party operative puts it. But many others found him prickly and arrogant. "He always had a much higher view of himself than anyone else," says a former top aide to another liberal Senate Democrat who remembers his boss disliking Leahy despite their ideological kinship.

And, as feared, Leahy hasn't made many friends during his short tenure as chairman. Even by the testy standards of judicial nominations, Republicans have reacted viscerally to his stewardship. On one level, the complaints are hard to take too seriously. Though The Wall Street Journal editorial page has attacked him for "unprecedented stonewalling on judges," Leahy has treated nominees no worse than Republicans treated Clinton's. A Democratic operative notes that Leahy has an "extraordinarily difficult" job as Judiciary chairman and should be given some slack. But GOP senators insist Leahy has made the process unusually personal. According to a Senate Republican aide, after Idaho Republican Larry
Craig criticized Leahy in the media, Leahy told him that one of his home-state judges would have to wait until next year for a hearing. The aide also says Leahy warned Charles Grassley of Iowa that if he signed a letter of grievance circulating among Republican Judiciary Committee members, his judges' scheduled hearings would be canceled. (Aides to the senators didn't respond, and a Leahy
staffer says he doesn't know anything about the charges.) Meanwhile, Colorado's
two GOP Senators, Wayne Allard and Ben Nighthorse Campbell, told Roll Call last month that Leahy implied their support for a GOP filibuster--protesting stalled nominations--would affect the fate of their judges. (A Leahy aide told me that anyone familiar with the senator's dry wit would understand that he was kidding.) As a result, Leahy has become the subject of profane denunciations by Republican senators during their weekly policy lunches, according to one attendee. Adds a top Republican aide, "They are taking his actions personally
because it seems to be the way he operates."

Such accusations would be easier to dismiss as partisan sniping if members of Leahy's own party weren't grousing as well. Democratic staffers are still buzzing, for instance, about Leahy's harsh treatment of California Democrat Dianne Feinstein at a September 13 Judiciary hearing on a Justice Department authorization bill. Feinstein wanted to introduce an amendment adding several new judicial slots for California's Southern District Court, where she argued backlogs had created a state of "crisis." She'd tried for months to add the judges, Feinstein pleaded, without avail. "I don't do this lightly," a transcript shows her saying. "I obviously don't like to annoy my chairman. I have tried and I have tried and I have tried, and now I fight."

"Don't speak of annoyance," Leahy snapped. "This is not a time to be personal on these things." Leahy then patronizingly suggested that Feinstein "may not have understood" an earlier promise he made to pass the measure if she would hold off for now. "I was told you would not approve that," Feinstein fired back, "and I would be 'Rule Sixteened'"--i.e., shot down. Several other senators--including the liberal Democrat Dick Durbin--rose to Feinstein's defense. Growing ever more irritated, Leahy turned "beet red," according to an aide, and snapped at Feinstein for talking to her staff while he was speaking. The two senators finally retreated to a private anteroom, from which they could be heard yelling at each other. By the end of the exchange, witnesses say, Feinstein was practically in tears.

Multiple people to whom I related this story replied that anyone who so upsets Dianne Feinstein--less than a fan favorite herself--must be doing something right. And a Leahy aide notes that Feinstein's amendment was added to the bill a few weeks later. But others say that Leahy's response to this mild insubordination was typical. "He'll blow up at you," says a basically sympathetic observer. "Even if you don't make it personal, he'll take it personally."

nd Leahy's prickliness is starting to have national policy ramifications. Consider what happened during negotiations last month over emergency anti-terrorism legislation. At the outset, the Bush administration was confident it would get enhanced law enforcement authority from the GOP-controlled House. It was Leahy and the Democratic-controlled Senate they worried about. After all, last year Leahy, a former prosecutor deeply wary of broad law enforcement powers, almost single-handedly sank a similar anti-terrorism bill crafted by Feinstein and Arizona Republican Jon Kyl (See "Sin of Commission," by Franklin Foer, October 8). And the September 11 attacks appeared to do little to change his mind. When Attorney General John Ashcroft asked Congress for swift passage of expanded wiretapping, detention, and evidence-sharing powers, Leahy insisted on opening up detailed negotiations with Justice Department and White House officials before advancing a bill out of his committee.

Few people objected to such consultation. But Leahy proceeded to alienate his colleagues by limiting the talks to a narrow circle consisting of himself, Ted Kennedy, ranking Judiciary Republican Orrin Hatch, and Justice Department officials. When other Judiciary Committee senators-- primarily Feinstein and New York's Chuck Schumer-- suggested changes, Leahy and his famously thorny chief counsel, Bruce Cohen, closed ranks further, implying that the negotiations were his responsibility alone. "I think it was a mistake to go ahead with that view of the world," says one civil liberties lobbyist.

And, in a sad irony, Leahy's insularity appears to have made the bill less protective of civil liberties. Had Leahy been more open to working with his fellow senators, some observers say, he might have had enough support in his committee to alter the bill more to his liking. Instead he went it largely solo.
At an October 2 press conference, Ashcroft, joined by Hatch and Senate Minority Leader Trent Lott, implied that Leahy was stalling the legislation and leaving the public "susceptible" to more attacks. It was a startlingly partisan move--and one that appalled Leahy, who accuses the White House of shifting its own time-consuming delays--but it worked. Without allies on his committee, and quite likely under pressure from Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle, who was concerned about the Democrats looking weak on terrorism, Leahy was forced to cave, according to observers.

The outcome: The Senate, as The Wall Street Journal put it, "produced a bill whose vast expansion of law-enforcement powers delivers almost everything the Bush administration sought." In the House, by contrast, a coalition of ACLU liberals and anti-government conservatives succeeded in adding a sunset provision phasing out expanded wiretap authority after five years, along with other restraints. (The final bill includes a four-year sunset.)

Leahy takes credit for slowing down and restraining Ashcroft's original plan.
But the anti-terrorism fight clearly left a sour taste in his mouth. At an October 25 press conference celebrating Senate passage of the final bill, he wore the sullen frown of a sore loser. Even as the C-SPAN cameras rolled,

he couldn't resist scowling and bickering with Hatch. Things got so touchy that
Lott had to step in and defuse the tension with a joke about what a "magnificent achievement" it was getting the two to agree.

But then, despite his Deadhead tastes, Leahy has never pretended to be all sunshine and flowers. Indeed, when he emerged from the 1997 premiere of Batman &
Robin, Leahy complained that the movie presented too cheery a vision of a superhero who was, after all, first conceived as an obsessed loner seeking vengeance for his parents' deaths. "I'd love to get back to the dark side," Leahy told The Hill. In his own work, at least, he seems to be succeeding.
